Newhouser Routed In 4th as Griffs Paste Loop Leaders Again; Mele Homers

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 21.—Sandalio Consuegra, the Nats' thin-shanked senor from Havana, rudely introduced himself to the league-leading Detroit Tigers this afternoon. He gave 'em a five-hit brush-off and the Nats won in a breeze, 12-4.

Manager Bucky Harris was getting over the second part of his Cuban pitching parlay in the wake of Conrado Marrero's four-hit victory here last night.

Unabashed by the fact that he was pitted against the Tigers' ace, Hal Newhouser, long-time nemesis of the Nats, Consuegra also checked George Kell's 20-game hitting streak in the process of beating the Tigers.

To the 9477 Briggs Stadium fans it looked like high confusion of identities. The Nats began acting like murderers row against Newhouser, and chased him out of the game in the fourth inning. They wound up with 14 hits and their biggest run-total of the year.

Newhouser Routed in Fourth

Sam Mele served first notice on Newhouser that the Nats were going to be tough today with a two-run homer in the first inning, and by the end of the fourth they had endowed Senor Consuegra with a gorgeous 8-1 lead.

The senor was a bit wild, issuing eight walks, but when he was whipping his curve ball over the plate he was something to contend with. In the last five innings he surrendered exactly two hits and one run to the Tigers.

Not only that, but Sandy was acting kind of tough with a bat in his hand, too. He drove over the Nats' first two runs in the five-run fourth inning with a bases-loaded single to center, and in the seventh he bashed another single to drive in another run.

Mickey Vernon set the Nats up in a quick 1-0 lead with a single to right that scored Combs in the first inning, and on the next pitch Mele made it 3-0. He whaled a Newhouser pitch into the left field seats for his fifth homer of the year.

Out Comes Newhouser

There was more trouble for Newhouser in the fourth when Mele's single to left, Ostrowski's walk and Dente's single to right filled the bases. Nobody scored on Evans' line drive out to Wertz, but Consuegra got two home with his single to center.

With two out, the Nats scored three more runs. Noren drove two in with a single to center, and when Newhouser hit Vernon on the

Fired Clerk Held After Executive Of Hotel Is Slain

Kansas City, June 21 (AP).—Marshall H. Dean, 35-year-old assistant general manager of the President Hotel, was shot and killed today as he entered his office.

Police held Earl G. Murrell, 37, who had been a room clerk at the hotel in 1948.

Police said Murrell told them that he shot the hotel executive because Dean had caused him to lose jobs in hotels in various cities.

Congress Acts

U. S. Employe Politics Ban Eased Here

A 42-32 Senate vote yesterday sent to the White House a Hatch Act revision that would let Federal workers enter local party politics in communities near the District.

Government workers in nearby Maryland and Virginia now are barred from local party politics; they are limited to an "independent" or "nonpartisan" role in such activities. This limitation is fixed in Civil Service Commission regulations.

The Commission has not yet considered what to do under the new bill. The measure gives the agency power to close or leave open the door to local political participation by Federal workers near Washington. But if the door is left open at all, under the bill it would have to be wide open to local party politics as well as nonpartisan activity.

Another major feature of the bill lets the Civil Service Commission impose penalties less than removal from office for Federal employes who violate a key "clean politics" provision of the Hatch Act. This is the one that says officials may not use their office

Rail Tieup Threatened Over Nation

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—AFL switchmen today called a strike for Sunday against five big western and midwestern lines. The carriers said a Nation-wide tieup is threatened for July 15 by a walkout of two other unions.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, one of the five lines named in the switchmen's strike call, said it will shut down completely Sunday if the men go out. The Rock Island operates an 8000-mile rail system between Chicago and the West Coast. It also serves the Southwest.

The AFL Switchmen's Union of North America also called a strike for 6 a. m. local time Sunday against the Great Northern, Chicago Great Western, Denver and Rio Grande Western and the Western Pacific lines.

The carriers said the switchmen's union and the big trainmen and conductors' unions notified them they were rejecting wage and hour recommendations made June 15 by a presidential fact-finding board.

Can Strike Anytime

The switchmen's union can strike legally at any time, having complied with all peace machinery of the Railroad Labor Act. The trainmen and conductors are restrained from striking before July 15 by a 30-day "cooling off" requirement of the Act.

There was a chance that some other roads named in the switchmen's strike call would not attempt to operate. Daniel P. Loomis, chairman of the Association of Western Railroads, said before the Rock Island announcement he understood "some of the railroads" planned to shut down.

The presidential board recommended a 40-hour week and 18-cent hourly pay boost for 75,000 railroad yard employes but denied wage raises for 125,000 trainmen and conductors who man the trains. The ruling applied specifically to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors. In a separate case the board recommended a 40-hour week and 18-cent hourly pay increase for 4000 yard work-

Excise Cuts May Delay Adjournment

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The new House tax bill slashing excise levies by more than a billion dollars but boosting rates on big corporations was definitely slated yesterday for Senate action, even if it holds up adjournment.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) disclosed this decision as House Ways and Means Democrats prepared to report the big bill today and push it through the House late next week.

House Republicans meanwhile were reported seriously worried over the "political" risks involved in staging a straight party fight on the proposed corporate tax increase.

The definite decision to put the tax bill through the Senate, even if it means holding Congress here until August 15 or later, was reached at a closed meeting of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee on Friday.

Hope to Quit July 31

"I still hope to adjourn by July 31, but we've got to pass the tax bill, no matter how long it takes," said Lucas.

Indorsing the House committee's tax action, he predicted the Senate will pass "the same kind of bill."

"It's the only kind of bill we can pass," he said.

Thus far Ways and Means Republicans have been unable to reach any agreement on a GOP motion to recommit the bill—their only chance to amend the legislation under "closed rule" House tax procedure.

Several GOP House tax makers are known to believe it would be "political suicide" to frame a motion striking out the 433 million dollar increase in taxes on big corporations.

"There are plenty of strong arguments against the increase, but just as sure as we try to strike it out, we will be branded again with the 'big corporation' label," said one Republican spokesman.

What apparently aggravates the GOP political dilemma is the fact that the bill actually cuts tax rates on small and moderate size business firms earning between $5,000 and $167,000.

Still split on procedure, the committee minority is considering an alternative motion sticking strictly to the GOP commitment for excise cuts.

Seek House Action

Such a motion would ask the House to send the bill back to committee with instructions to report a slash in excise taxes and nothing else.

Even that course would involve political risks, since it would result in a "deficit" tax bill, one member said.

Senate Republicans were reported similarly torn, but in that

Tenants Oppose Westchester Sale As Cooperative

Three hundred and seventy-seven of Westchester Apartment's 526 tenants have voted against sale of the property to them as a cooperative, it was revealed last night. Only two favored the sale, with 149 lessees not heard from.

Alvin L. Newmyer, chairman of the Tenants' Protective Committee, formed to handle the occupants' interest in connection with the proposed $7,500,000 sale of the property at Wisconsin and Cathedral aves. nw., said that more than 71 percent of the tenants oppose the sale, according to ballots sent out by his committee.

Under the District Rent Control Act, 65 percent of the tenants must consent to a cooperative sale before evictions may be undertaken.

Edwards Is Convicted Again Of Mahlan-Kline Murders

Baltimore, June 21 (AP).—Thomas A. Edwards was convicted for a second time today of first-degree murder in the killings of John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline, of Glen Burnie.

Imposition of sentence was delayed pending motion for a third trial in the sensational case. The verdict carries with it a sentence of death by hanging or life imprisonment.

Edwards displayed little emotion as the verdict was announced after 25 minutes' deliberation by the two-judge court, sitting without a jury. Miss Kline's mother and Mahlan's parents wept.

Mahlan, 25, and the 18-year-old Kline girl were killed in September, 1948.

The young postal worker and his high school friend had been on a Friday night date in Mahlan's car. The blood-stained, bullet-pierced auto was found in a bean patch near Glen Burnie the next day. It was three days before the bodies were discovered in a lover's lane 26 miles away.

Edwards, a 26-year-old sugar refinery worker, was arrested about two months later and charged with the twin killings.

At his trial before three judges in Criminal Court here, prosecutors produced two confessions which Edwads repudiated. He was convicted, sentenced to be hanged, and spent many months in the death house.

An 18-year-old Air Force private has confessed to the murder of Gordon C. Brown, jr., 24, part time cab driver who was shot to death in his cab at Bolling Air Force Base May 27, police said last night.

Bolling officials identified the youth as Pvt. Gilbert W. Reynolds of Sayre, Pa., an airman stationed at the base, arrested after more than 4000 persons at the base had been questioned.

At Washington police headquarters he was locked up with out bond, charged with murder.

They said he was taken into custody at the base yesterday at 5:30 p. m. and within 10 minutes broke down and admitted the crime.

Police said Reynolds admitted it was he who fired a slug from a .38 caliber revolver into the head of the cabman on May 27, about 2 a. m., at the south end of Bolling.

The murder victim was a Post Office Department employe, but drove a cab part-time to help finance the home he had built for his wife and 4-year-old son at 224

Rent Control Measure Sent To President

Post Reporter

The Senate and House yesterday completed action on a compromise bill to continue Federal rent controls until December 31 and let local communities still under control keep them another six months if they wish.

The compromise bill now goes to the White House where President Truman is expected to sign it into law even though it is far short of his demand for a one-year extension of the present law.

The House voted 176 to 145 to approve the conference report and the Senate followed with a 40-to-24 vote.

The measure as finally passed by both houses retains the 6 months and 6 months local option provision as originally drafted by the Senate, instead of 7 and 5 months as drafted by the House.

Only discussion in both houses centered about the Senate's yielding on its provision to decontrol apartment hotels in Chicago. This amendment had originally been offered in the Senate by Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.).

House Conferee Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) angrily raised the issue of the provision's being dropped in conference when the measure came to the House floor.

When the conference report came to the Senate, Douglas asked Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to explain why the provision had been dropped.

Maybank said he felt that since the House had yielded on the important six months provision, he felt he had to yield on the apartment house amendment.

Douglas said he brought up the point because he understood there had been a suggestion in the other body that he had not been sincere in proposing the amendment.

International Crime Angles To Be Studied

Senate crime investigators decided yesterday to send sleuths abroad in an effort to track down international operations of America's crime kings.

The announcement was made by Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) as his special Senate Crime Committee prepared to hold its first public hearings today on Nation-wide crime.

The lead-off witness will be Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission. He will tell about use of interstate communications to further organized criminal activities.

Kefauver said his group has hired Boris Kostelanetz, former Justice Department prosecutor credited with helping jail members of the old Capone gang, to "survey any international operations now being conducted by criminals who have connections in the United States."

Kostelanetz will visit law enforcement officers in a number of European countries, Kefauver said. He said the committee is "particularly interested in narcotics, smuggling and black market operations, as well as investments made abroad with the proceeds of criminal activities here."

There was immediate speculation Kostelanetz will check with Italian officials on the Mafia "Black Hand" Sicilian secret society, in which Charles "Lucky" Luciano has been mentioned as a leader.

Federal Narcotics Chief Harry J. Anslinger told the committee June 12 he believes the Mafia is behind an 800-man crime, vice and narcotics ring in this country.

Luciano, who served a prison term here after his conviction as a New York vice lord, was deported to Italy several years ago. His name continually crops up in the underworld here and in Cuba.

2 Give Lie To Charges Of McCarthy

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A Senator and a high Federal official yesterday gave the lie to Senator Joe McCarthy (R., Wis.).

The Senator was Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of a special subcommittee investigating McCarthy's charges. The FBI has reported to him, Tydings said, that the files his subcommittee is examining of 81 persons McCarthy has accused of procommunism, are complete, intact, and contain all the FBI material gathered about the people concerned.

The Department of Justice wrote him, Tydings said, that the files are not, as McCarthy has charged, "raped, tampered with or skeletonized."

The Government official was Deputy Undersecretary of State John E. Peurifoy, who testified in closed sessions before Tydings' subcommittee. McCarthy accused him a week ago of entering into a "payoff" deal with an important witness, so that the witness would not testify to the Tydings group in a manner hostile to the person accused by McCarthy.

Denial Is Positive

Peurifoy's denial of this was complete, explicit and documented, it was learned.

According to McCarthy, in a speech at Groton, Conn., on June 15, Peurifoy promised full loyalty clearance for any Government job, plus free advice from the State Department's legal adviser, to Emmanuel S. Larsen, a former employe who was fined $500 for his part in the 1945 Amerasia case. He had supplied classified Government documents to the editor of the now defunct Amerasia magazine.

In return for this promise, McCarthy said, Larsen agreed to "go easy" when he should be called on to testify about the activities in the Amerasia case of John S. Service, longtime State Department diplomat. Service was arrested but never indicted in the Amerasia affair.

Peurifoy, it was learned yesterday, told the subcommittee this story:

Charged McCarthy Pressure

1. Larsen sought and received an appointment with Peurifoy, who did not know him, in mid-March. He came to complain of the treatment he had received when he was summoned a few days before to McCarthy's office. Larsen said one of McCarthy's investigators tried to intimidate him to testify to McCarthy's liking, against Service.

2. Peurifoy told Larsen that when he was called to testify before the Tydings' subcommittee, he should tell the truth, regardless of whom it affected.

3. He thanked Larsen for giving him the information about his session with McCarthy, and told Larsen that if he knew anything

Clay H. Henderson, U. S. Official, Kills Self at Frankfurt

Frankfurt, Germany, June 21 (U.P.).—American Vice-Consul Clay H. Henderson, 33, committed suicide in his quarters here yesterday, United States officials announced today.

The announcement said Henderson shot himself after writing several notes, one of them to his mother, Mrs. Virginia R. Henderson, of Ventura, Calif.

None of the notes, the announcement said, indicated any reason for suicide except mention of Henderson's deafness. The vice-consul wore a hearing aid and associates said he was extremely sensitive about his loss of hearing.

Henderson, a native of Pocahontas, Ark., attended Arkansas State College and George Washington University law school in Washington, D. C. He has been with the State Department since 1942, stationed in London, Stockholm and Brussels.

C. M. Spofford Gets Bid for Pact Council

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

After a month of delays and false starts, President Truman and Secretary Acheson have asked Charles M. Spofford, a New York lawyer, to serve as American deputy on the North Atlantic treaty council.

Spofford, 47, was a wartime brigadier general who helped formulate occupation policies in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. At present he is a member of the New York law firm of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Sunderland & Kiendl.

Acheson has a high opinion of Spofford's abilities, and has hoped for many months to bring him back into public service. Spofford has not yet agreed to take the deputy's job, which would mean being stationed in London, but has promised to give his answer by the end of this week.

Last week the President tried personally to persuade former Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett to serve as American deputy, but Lovett declined for reasons of health.

Senate Kills Segregation In Draft Bill

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate late yesterday defeated an amendment to the Draft Extension Act which would have required strict segregation of races in the armed forces for all who demanded it.

By a vote of 42 to 29, the so-called Russell amendment—aimed at nullifying the present gradual integration of races in the ranks ordered by President Truman—was stricken from the bill.

A final Senate vote on extension of the expiring selective Service Act, however, was deferred until today. And threat of another segregation battle and a House-Senate deadlock over whether Congress or the President can order induction cast doubt on whether the legislation can receive final Congressional action by the Friday midnight deadline.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) had indicated he would seek to tack civil rights legislation onto the bill, including the immediate ban of all segregation within the armed forces. This could well mean a prolonged filibuster by Southern Senators.

Humphrey declared after the vote on the Russell proposal that in light of that action and "the creditable record" of the President and the Army on the racial question, he would not press his amendments. Senator Russell, however, refused to agree to a fixed time for a final vote on the bill without assurances that others might not propose the same amendments.

Seeking an agreement to limit debate on the draft bill and a final vote by this afternoon, Majority Leader Scott Lucas (Ill.) declared that failure to pass the measure by Saturday would create "confusion and chaos." Even if the bill were approved later, it would be necessary to re-register 10 million young Americans who have been registered and for the most part been examined and classified dur-

Parliament Of Europe Proposed in Pool Setup

Coal-Steel Combine Would Be Subject To Public Control Under French Draft

Paris, June 21 (AP).—France today proposed a European federal parliament to hold the reins over Europe's coal and steel.

Jean Monnet, French economic planner, unwrapped the project in a two-hour outline of the Schuman Plan when delegates of six countries began working sessions on the revolutionary scheme to unite their basic industries under a supranational authority.

Monnet declared the coal-steel authority—the kernel of the plan advanced May 9 by French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman—should be responsible to a common parliament and its decisions reviewed in a public debate each year.

It would, however, be independent of national parliaments and governments.

Monnet said a formula must be found for democratic control of the high authority. He suggested a common parliament should be chosen by and from the national legislatures, in much the same way that the European Consultative Assembly is picked, to exercise this control.

Delegates from West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg who are attending the conference made no immediate comment on the Monnet outline.

Such an international parliament as he proposed would resemble the European Consultative Assembly which sits at Strasbourg each August. But it would hold real powers, not the merely advisory functions of the Strasbourg assembly.

It would also be smaller, since nine nations represented at Strasbourg are not in the pool talks.

Other Members Envisioned

It appeared probable, however, that France's ultimate objective is to place the steel-coal authority under the Strasbourg assembly if other nations, particularly Britain and the Scandinavian nations, can be persuaded to join.

In the Strasbourg assembly, each member nation can designate its representatives as it sees fit. In some cases the national legislatures pick the men; in other cases the government chooses them. But always the men chosen are members of their national parliaments.

Monnet, credited with being the real author of the Schuman Plan, said its purpose was the creation of a single market in all participating countries with prices as low as possible and a standard of living as high as possible.

In general, devices used by the various governments to protect their coal and steel industries and which increase costs in Europe would be removed.

Monnet said France thought it

Hoffman Warns Of 'Sixth Column,' Spreading Doubt

Atlantic City, June 21 (AP).—Foreign Aid Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said tonight that a dissension-sowing "sixth column" can crack the solid front America needs to win its struggle with Russia on peaceful grounds.

In a speech prepared for the annual convention of Optimist International, the Marshal Plan director said:

"Internal dissensions and strife can cripple the strength of free men. We must be constantly vigilant that the sixth column—not the Communist fifth column—does not sap our vitally needed strength.

"This sixth column is made up of those right here at home—not Communists, mind you—who spread dissension, disunity and doubt in these critical times."

The president of Optimist International, Franklin A. Steinko, of Washington, D. C., said "modern prophets of gloom and despair" are wrong if they think the United States is losing the cold war. "Viewed in perspective, the record of the last few years is one of declining Soviet prestige."

Two du Ponts Face Call in Lobby Probe

By the United Press

Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) said yesterday he will ask his House Lobby Investigating Committee to summon Irenee and Lammot duPont to testify on their connection with the National Economic Council.

The two duPonts have been described as large contributors to the council, now under investigation by the committee. Irenee duPont is president, and Lammot duPont, a director of the I. E. duPont de Nemours & Co. of Wilmington, Del.

The group is headed by Merwin K. Hart who testified earlier that the word "democracy" should be erased from the Nation's political vocabulary because it smacks too much of communism.

Both Republican and Democratic Congressmen have described the council as "right-wing."

Letters between the duPonts and Hart revealed that Irenee duPont contributed $11,000 in 1948 to pay for subscriptions to NEC pamphlets sent to colleges, churches and libraries.

Earlier, the committee charged that the National Economic Council obtained confidential information about the investigation of its affairs.

The information related to a closed-door committee meeting January 17 but Harry S. Barger, the council's Washington representative, refused to say how it was obtained.

The group produced a memo from Barger to Hart which said "a friend of mine (Barger's)" saw a report of the meeting. Barger refused to name the "friend," demanding a committee ruling on whether he must answer.

Buchanan said the issue would be considered at a closed meeting.

Barger's memo also said the committee had discovered that $90,000 had been contributed to the council "from the duPonts" and that the committee thought the council was "somewhat subversive in character."

It added that "the CIO and kindred spirits" were running the investigating committee and that "the setup should be very carefully exposed if and when the representatives of the council are called before the Buchanan committee . . ."

In his testimony, Hart said the United States was established as a republic and "it is time for us to return to that conception."

He added that the word democracy didn't become popular until after it was used by Georgie Dimitrov at a meeting of the Communist Internationale in Moscow in 1935.

To Support Prices

House Okays $2 Billion Farm Fund

A bill for boosting funds for Government farm price supports by two billion dollars was passed yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate.

The roll-call vote was 235 to 81.

The bill previously had passed both chambers, but a dispute over foreign farm imports caused a deadlock that finally ended in a compromise.

The additional authorization is for use of the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corporation, which previously had been given $4,850,000,000 for the price support program. The program this year is to bolster prices of cotton, wheat, corn, rice, tobacco, peanuts and several other crops.

Canada Paper Tariff Review To Be Sought

By The Associated Press

President Truman will be asked to instruct the United States Tariff Commission to check whether Canadian newsprint manufacturers have violated the unfair practices provision of the Federal Tariff Act.

This developed yesterday at the House Judiciary Subcommittee's inquiry into reasons for newsprint shortage.

Chairman Celler (D., N. Y.) told reporters he will make "a double request"—to the President and to the Tariff Commission itself to investigate.

Section 337 of the act deals with unfair practices. If the President finds that such practices exist he has authority under this section to order the Secretary of the Treasury to bar the product.

Free Since 1913

Newsprint has been admitted tariff-free since 1913.

Earlier, Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, told the committee he has "a deep conviction" that further controls over newsprint are not needed. He said control of newsprint supply is a means of trying to control newspapers and what they print.

The committee yesterday was told that an increasing shortage of newsprint is endangering the free press throughout the world.

Joshua B. Powers of New York City, foreign newspaper representative, testified:

Source of Pressure

"As it becomes more difficult to buy paper, enemies of the free press continue pressure to suppress this only effective means for informing the public that so far they had not been able to control."

Powers said the difficulties of the free press outside the United States were often ascribed to dollar shortages, "but there is no doubt that in many cases control of foreign exchange has been a tool to secure greater control over the press."

He named two of South America's greatest newspapers, La Prensa and La Nacion of Buenos Aires, as possible victims of government expropriation of newsprint reserves for use by papers more amenable to the Peron government.

It is not certain that they will not have to suspend, Powers told the committee, "even though authorities have recently kept them supplied from stocks of unknown amounts accumulated by government newspapers." By withholding dollars, Powers said, the Argentine government can prevent them from buying the newsprint needed to publish.

The two great problems of Latin-American publishers today are assurance of newsprint supplies and maintaining the freedom of their national press. Both are related, Powers declared.

Food Purity Probers Eye A-Effects

Representative James J. Delaney, 49-year-old New York attorney and former prosecutor, was reported slated yesterday to head a Congressional investigation of the purity of the Nation's food.

One of the first things that may be investigated is the possible effect that food grown on land fertilized with a by-product of the atomic bomb would have on humans who eat it.

The House unanimously ordered the investigation Tuesday and directed Speaker Sam Rayburn to appoint the seven representatives to make it. While Rayburn made no announcement of the selections, persons close to him said Delaney, a Democrat, probably will be the chairman. Four of the seven members will be Democrats, the other three Republicans.

The resolution creating the committee gives it wide latitude for its investigation. It directs the committee to inquire into:

1. The nature, extent, and effect of the use of chemicals, compounds, and synthetics in the production, processing, preparation, and packaging of food products.
2. The nature, extent, and effect of the use of pesticides and insecticides with respect to food and food products.
3. The nature, effect, and extent of the use of chemicals, and synthetics in the manufacture of fertilizer, with emphasis on the effect on soil, vegetation and the health of humans and animals consuming food produced on the soil.

In the event he lands a committee assignment, Delaney said, he plans to inquire into the use of fertilizer produced in connection with atomic energy products.

"There is no way of telling now what the effect of this fertilizer may be on the human body," he told newsmen. "Perhaps we may find out."

U. S. Will Never Experience Major Depression, Tobin Says

Geneva, Switzerland, June 21 (U.P.)—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin predicted today that the United States would never suffer another major depression.

Tobin said unemployment in the United States was dropping at present, that production was approaching it's 1948 peak, that steel operations were at capacity level and that total consumption of goods and services by American families was greater than ever.

In a speech at the annual conference of the International Labor Organization, he attributed America's resistance to depressions to the "great advances" in social and economic legislation since 1933.

"I do not believe we will ever experience a major depression such as we had in the early thirties," Tobin said, and added a reference to Russia's persistent propaganda:

"Any person or nation who makes its plans on the basis of an expected collapse in the United States is doomed to disappointment.

Tobin said the Government was "gravely concerned" with a downward economic trend early last year but that supports provided by previously enacted social and economic legislation "stood us in good stead."

"They will be equally helpful in protecting our economy against a serious recession in the years ahead," Tobin continued. "They are both a deterrent to depression and are concrete evidence of the determination of the American people that we shall not have a repetition of that tragic era"—of the 1930s.

Tobin told delegates from 50 nations that unemployment is at a level of three million—less than 5 percent of the country's total labor force.

The real earnings and standard of living of American workers is higher than ever before, he added, with the level about 40 percent over prewar figures.

Senate Gets Proposal to Transfer RFC

By The Associated Press

The Senate Expenditures Committee yesterday passed on to the Senate without recommendation President Truman's plan to transfer the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Commerce Department. A House committee yesterday approved the plan.

Only seven of the 13 Senate committee members were present. Chairman McClellan (D., Ark.) said most of them indicated opposition to the RFC transfer.

"Most of us feel," he said, "that as a loaning agency the RFC ought to be independent and not under Cabinet direction."

The plan will go into effect July 9 unless the Senate or House adopts a resolution of disapproval before that date.

The committee indorsed two other reorganization plans. One would transfer to the housing and home finance administrator all RFC functions dealing with financing of factory-built homes. The other calls for reorganizing the Treasury Department, but exempts the Comptroller of the Currency.

Recovery Funds' Use For Arms Is Urged

Plan Supported

70-Group Air Force Nears Okay

By The Associated Press

Backers of a 70-group Air Force won a victory at least in words yesterday through a Senate-House conference agreement to authorize that top strength for the areial arm.

Both Houses are expected to approve the agreement. The actual size of the Air Force, however, will depend on how much money Congress puts up for planes, equipment ano men. Air-minded House members for several years have been trying to get direct and permanent authority for 70 groups.

They wrote it into a House bill setting maximum strengths for the Army and Air Forc, the National Guard and Reserves. The House provision was that the Air Force "shall have an authorized strength of 70 United States Air Force groups, 22 sepaate United States Air Foce squadrons and 61 Air Force Reserve groups, together with the necessary supporting and auxiliary United States Air Force and Reserve units."

The Senate, on the other hand, took a different approach, aiming at a top limit of 24,000 serviceable planes or 225,000 air-frame tons. Senators argued that new developments in aircraft and strategy might make such changes in the desirable size of air units that "70 groups" would not mean anything specific. The "group" is already a highly variable unit, its number of planes and men depending on such factors as whether it is a bomber or fighter outfiet, and the job assigned to it.

The House conferees, however, won their basic point with agreement setting the Air Force ceiling at "not to exceed 70" groups plus such separate squadrons, reserve groups, supporting, auxiliary and reserve units as may be needed.

The compromise allows procurement of planes and equipment for tha tforce, with th eSecretary of the Air Force authorized to determine the buying total. That provision is a substitute for House language allowing purchase of 5200 planes or 42,500 air-frame tons a year.

Air Force strength now is about 48 first-line groups, limited by appropriations and orders from President Truman and Secretary of Defense Josnson.

By The Associated Press

A proposal to tap European recovery funds for a portion of the cost of rearming western Europe, rejected two days ago by two Senate committees, was advanced again yesterday by Senator Lodge (R., Mass.).

Even before the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees formally reported a $1,222,500,000 foreign arms authorization to the Senate, Lodge filed an amendment to dip into Marshall Plan funds for a share of the cost.

The two committees are expected to report the bill today. Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee hopes to call it up for debate on Friday.

Trouble simmered up, meanwhile, for another key Administration foreign policy measure.

A group of Republican Senators worked on an amendment to the Economic Cooperation (ECA) Act designed to put pressure on Great Britain to join in a projected pool of western Europe's coal and steel resources.

Would Cut British Aid

The penalty amendment, still in the drafting stage, would reduce by one half the 685 million dollars of Marshall Plan funds earmarked for Britain next year if she fails to join in the pool proposed by French Foreign Minister Schuman. The ruling British Labor Party has been cool to the idea.

Sponsors of this amendment have asked that their names be withheld for the present. They plan to push their proposal in the Senate Appropriations Committee or, if it fails there, on the floor.

Still another suggestion for amending the ECA and foreign arms bills came yesterday from Senator Knowland (R., Calif.).

In what he described as a move aimed at blocking the seating of Chinese Communist representatives in the United Nations, Knowland told the Senate he will move to limit congressional allotment of recovery and arms program funds to seven months. Pending bills would carry money for a full year.

Knowland said this would enable Congress, when it returns in January, to have additional facts to go on as to whether the British government and other governments receiving United States aid are going to vote to seat the Chinese Communist regime in the United Nations. Russia and her satellites have been boycotting all U. N. sessions over the issue.

Congress Then Could Decide

Knowland told reporters Congress then could decide, before appropriating the rest of the authorized aid funds, "whether to withhold them or adjust them in the light of developments."

An outspoken foe of recognizing the Communist regime in China, Knowland said if the State Department is unwilling to take the lead in resisting Soviet pressure to seat the Communists, it is time that Congress did so. The official United States position has been that it will not vote to seat the China Reds, but will abide by a majority decision—that is, it will not use its veto.

Great Britain favors ousting Chinese Nationalist representatives and seating the Communists in the U. N.

Lodge's amendment to the foreign arms bill would divert to military uses a portion of the five-billion-dollar reserve which Marshall Plan nations have built up in so-called counterpart funds. These are local currencies placed on deposit to match dollar aid from the United States.

Strange Craft Is Described By 3 Airmen

Hamilton Field, Calif., June 21 (AP).—Three airmen told today of sighting a mysterious flying object over their base, traveling "at a great rate of speed," and spraying a blue-green flame.

It was first sighted at 1:35 a.m., they told newsmen, and they saw it repeatedly. But because of the speed and the darkness, they couldn't discern its shape.

All agreed it was not a jet plane, at least not a conventional jet plane. There are many jets at this big Air Force base, and the airmen said they have seen them countless times at night.

Air Force intelligence men questioned the three observers all morning.

Corpl. Garland Pryor, 20, of White Hall, Mont., told reporters he was the first to see the interloper in the sky.

Pryor was in the field control tower. He called it to the attention of Staff Sergt. Ellis Lorimer, 25, of Burbank, Calif., who had had three years experience in control tower observation.

Lorimer, who did most of the talking today, said he then saw the craft make three separate passes across the field.

Opposite the control tower, in another observation post, was Staff Sergt. Virgil Cappuro, 36, of San Leandro, Calif.

Lorimer said the exhaust or "tail" of the craft "resembled the flame of a blowtorch."

The first report on the mystery plane credited it with a speed of "1000 to 1500 miles an hour." Lorimer was asked about this. He said "it is very difficult to estimate speed, height and distance at night," and wouldn't commit himself to a figure.

The three men agreed that the craft came first from the direction of the nearby Pacific Ocean, and on the last pass over the field, disappeared toward the sea.

Vogeler Ransom Crown Long Sought by Reds

The 1000-year-old crown of St. Stephen, reputed "ransom" demanded by Hungarian Communists for the release of American businessman Robert A. Vogeler, is a prize the Communists have been trying to get for five years.

The relic itself has only slight intrinsic value, though it is studded with some jewels and ancient enamel work. Its real value is as a political symbol to the Hungarians, who see it as the sign of constitutional government.

This feeling runs very deep, it was learned yesterday from Hungarian sources. The crown symbolizes the power and laws of the state; it vests importance in the king or ruler, not the other way around.

Some Hungarian leaders feel that as long as it is outside Hungary, it is a token of anti-Communist resistance in the west. The Communists, it is felt, wish to get it back into Hungary and reduce its significance until it becomes a mere antique and artistic relic without political importance.

Used Last With Puppet

The last Hungarian ruler to be inducted in the presence of the crown was Szalasi, Nazi puppet fuehrer of the country. He took the oath on November 4, 1944, while the crown, according to tradition, was exposed from the iron chest in which it was kept.

Half an hour later he fled from Budapest, with the Russian vanguard only 10 miles away, carrying with him the crown, crown jewels and Hungary's most sacred religious relic, the holy right hand of St. Stephen, tenth century first King of Hungary. He also took with him the scepter, orb and royal gown, embroidered by Stephen's wife, Gizella.

Szalasi stayed in Western Hunary until March 27, 1945, when he left Hungary. He and the loot were captured by American forces in Salzburg. Little by little, the Americans restored most of the relics, each restitution being accompanied in Hungary by large pro-American demonstrations. In particular, the restoration of the holy right hand, discovered in Stephen's Tomb when he was canonized in 1083, was made in time for the annual religious procession on his day, August 20, in 1945, and occasioned a tremendous pro-American manifestation.

Nyaradi Recounts Story

According to Nicholas Nyaradi, former finance minister of Hungary and now a lecturer and writer in this country, the Communist boss of Hungary, Rakocy, was anxious to get back the crown. Nyaradi, then in charge of effecting restitution of Hungarian property looted by the Nazis, wanted the crown left outside.

To repeated demands of Rakocy, Nyaradi observed that if he were successful in getting it back from the Americans, the crown obviously could not be smuggled in the back door. It would be returned with pomp and fanfare, and the occasion might set off a considerable anti-Communist demonstration. Rakocy thereupon dropped the idea, Nyaradi said.

There are innumerable legends, but no facts, on how the cross at the top was bent. One story has it that it occurred when Louis Kossuth, Hungarian hero of democracy, took the crown with him after he lost his battles with the Germans and Russians in 1849, and buried it near Orsova. A workman's pickaxe, used in digging it up 10 years later, was supposed to have pierced the lid of the iron chest and dented the crown. However, there is evidence that the cross was bent long before that.

Kings Wore It Once Only

When Hugary was under a monarchy, the kings wore the crown at times of coronation, and only once. One Hapsburg emperor, Joseph II, refused to be crowned with it, since he declined to observe the Hungarian constitution. He was thereafter known, derisively, as "the King with the hat."

Safety of the crown was the responsibility of two guardians, a Catholic and a Protestant aristocrat, elected by the Parliament. The chest that held it could be opened only in the presence of these men.

The tradition of the crown in Hungary is such that all Hungarians are known as "members of the crown," i.e., of the state, and judicial sentences were always announced "In the name of the sacred crown."

The lower part of the circlet was given to King Stephen, who Christianized Hungary, by Pope Sylvester, II, in 1001. The upper part, the cross piece and cross, was given about 100 years later, according to legend, by the Byzantine Emperor. The two pieces were then joined together.

Arabs Accept Arms Stand

Cairo, Egypt, June 21 (AP).—The seven Arab League nations told the United States, Britain and France today that the Big Three plan to arm the Middle East against aggression is generally satisfactory to them.

Western diplomats were openly jubilant over the friendly tone of the joint reply from Egypt, Syria, Leabonon, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Yemen. They had feared the governments might veer toward the line of the isolationist press which has charged the Big Three with interfering with national sovereignty.

Jordan is bound by the League reply although King Abduliah boycotted the League sessions because of the refusal of other Arab states to recognize his annexation of eastern Palestine.

Copies of the reply were sent to the ambassadors of the Big Three. Their governments had announced on May 25 a guarantee of the Middle East's national frontiers against forceful changes and said they would provide Arab nations and Israel with arms to be used only for defense and internal security.

The Arab countries crisply noted they "are not prepared to admit any action which might cause prejudice to their sovereignty or independence."

New Formosa Policy Seen in Tokyo Talks

America's hands-off policy toward Formosa is expected to come up for review in the National Security Council when the present top-level talks in Tokyo are over.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, Gen. Omar N. Bradley and John Foster Dulles are now getting Gen. Douglas MacArthur's views on Formosa and other strategic areas of the Far East.

The story they bring back to Washington will help determine whether, and to what extent the United States should act to keep Formosa out of Communist hands.

Last January President Truman decided not to send military advisers or military equipment to Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Formosa, and this policy is still in effect.

At that time the President declared Formosa was Chinese territory, and announced that the United States "will not pursue a course which will lead to involvement in the civil conflict in China."

Since then Chiang has strengthened the island's defenses, has benefited from small-scale American economic aid, and has held Formosa longer than most officials thought possible last winter. At the same time Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist leader, has given high priority to winning Formosa, either by outright military and naval invasion or by an internal uprising.

Secretary Acheson was careful this week not to commit himself on future policies in the Far East. When questioned on the subject Tuesday at the Governors' Conference at White Sulphur Springs, he said it would not be appropriate for him to comment while Johnson, Bradley and Dulles were meeting with MacArthur.

This was taken as a hint that the talks in Tokyo might conceivably lead to changes in American policy, in Formosa or elsewhere.

Likewise, Dean Rusk, the Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Far Eastern Affairs, has been getting the views of Republican Senators on Formosa and other Far Eastern issues in recent weeks. He has talked with Senators Taft (Ohio), Brewster (Me.), Bridges (N. H.), Millikin (Colo.), Knowland (Cal.) and Wiley Wis.), most of whom argued vehemently last Winter for American military help to Chiang on Formosa.

The Republicans are said to have told Rusk they would hold their fire until Johnson and Bradley returned. Officials said yesterday that Rusk's talks were part of the Department's stepped-up effort to keep members of Congress informed and to get their views on foreign problems.

New Laurel Bypass Is Not a Speedway, Motorists Learn

Motorists who think the new Laurel bypass on the Washington-Baltimore hwy. is a super speedway are finding out this is not the case.

Maryland State police and Laurel town police report between 50 and 100 arrests for speeding over the new northbound bypass and the old route, which now carries southbound traffic only. The bypass opened Monday.

Drivers who try to drive the wrong way on the one-way routes are being dealt with patiently for the time being, however. Police say they are merely explaining the new setup to the drivers and directing them to the proper routes.

caused a serious log-jam in North Atlantic defense planning. Last month, in London, the Foreign Ministers of the 12 treaty governments agreed to appoint full-time deputies who would meet in London on a continuing basis.

The Foreign Ministers hoped their deputies would be hard at work by now, proposing, among other things, how to reconcile the defense needs of the North Atlantic area with the budgetary positions of the member countries.

But the other governments have postponed naming their deputies until the United States did so, and the Administration here has had a hard time finding someone other than Lovett who would take the job.

Although the deputies have not yet started work, the State Department already has begun sounding the other treaty nations on the time and place of the next meeting of the 12 foreign ministers.

May Meet Here

The American suggestion was September 12, a week before the scheduled start of the General Assembly of the United Nations. The place suggested was New York, but the State Department said it would not object to having the Council meet in Washington if other governments preferred.

In addition there will be three-power talks among the American, British and French Foreign Ministers, just as there were in London last month ahead of the treaty council meetings.

Special deputies of the Big Three, probably including Ambassador Philip C. Jessup for the United States, are expected to meet well in advance of September 12 to prepare the ground for their Ministers.

essential for peace to create a European community to reunite what had been divided.

This also is an objective of the Marshall Plan. American administrators of the plan have pointed out that removal of various national barriers to trade and industry would create a mass European market which would foster mass economic production and a higher standard of living.

Monnet's talk occupied the entire session today. It was based on the French draft of a working paper for a treaty.

A joint communiue afterward said the chiefs of delegations would meet Thursday to voice their reactions. The French pledged to submit a second working paper later which would take these reactions into account.

Fellow Workers Rescue Lineman Burned on Pole

A lineman was burned critically yesterday when he touched a high-tension wire while descending a pole in the 100 block of Chesapeake st. sw.

Casualty Hospital authorities said Earl Bashelor, 50, of Waldorf, Md., suffered electrical burns of the right arm, left leg and foot.

Senate Kills Draft Bill Segregation Clause

ing the past two years, he declared.

Lucas declared that a legislative "crisis" faced the Senate, and warned that the legislators would be held in session, at night if necessary, to pass either the bill or a concurrent resolution continuing the present law for a month.

"We can't take the responsibility of letting the country down at this particular time," he said.

The bill before the Senate would continue the present draft law for another three years. While there have been no actual inductions—except for a handful of stragglers—since January, 1949, the Administration has strongly urged that the power to draft be kept should a lack of volunteers reduce the Army below a safe strength.

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told the Senate that the Army already is 27,000 men below its minimum, authorized strength and that failure to extend the act would slow down recruiting still further. Mere existence of the law serves as a stimulant to young men to volunteer and get their military obligation completed, he said.

Inductions Might Be Needed

According to Pentagon leaders and the "tables of experience," Congress will have to return and enact a "compulsory draft" this fall or winter if the present bill is not approved, Tydings said. That would mean actual resumption of inductions, he declared, while passage of the bill now probably would mean draft calls only in an emergency.

The House-approved version of the draft extender would not go as far as the Senate bill. It would continue the draft machinery for only two years more, with registrations, examinations and classification going on, but bar any actual inductions until Congress later declares a national emergency to exist.

Under the defeated Russell amendment, every person volunteering or drafted into the armed forces, would have been asked to state in writing whether he prefered to serve in mixed racial units or in those composed only of members of his own race.

Those who declared for a segregated unit could not be assigned to a mixed one, and any officer who neglected to give a recruit or inductee the right to state his preference and failed to abide by it would be deemed "guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman." This charge calls for heavy penalties under the Articles of War.

Russell contended that it is President Truman's anti-segregation policy that "is drying up enlistments." He declared it was adopted two years ago against the advice of Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Omar Bradley, who favored keeping the races divided in separate platoons.

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) said that "forcing our white boys to serve in mongrelized units will stir up such racial strife as can never be overcome in a decade." But Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) declared that military leaders say the new policy is working out well and without friction.

Twenty-six Republicans joined 16 Northern Democrats in the vote to strike the Russell amendment from the bill. It had been added by the Senate Armed Services Committee. Twenty-five Democrats and four Republicans voted for it.

MacArthur Staff Encouraged by Talks

By Marguerite Higgins

Tokyo, June 21 (NYHT).—Occupation headquarters, after four days of conferences with America's visiting defense chiefs, was expressing confidence today that concrete steps toward a peace treaty with Japan will be taken before the summer is out.

After talking with Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and John Foster Dulles, State Department special representative, key officials at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters believe also that the urgent case they have made out for saving Formosa from Communist attack will result at least in a review by Washington of that island's importance to the containment of communism in Asia.

Officials here expect Johnson and Bradley will join with the defense Secretaries in drawing up a uniform department policy on the and Bradley will join with the Department also will iron out its views by August. It will be up to President Truman to reconcile any differences that may remain between the State and Defense Departments on the treaty question.

Once the United States has formulated its policy, the call to a peace conference could go out immediately, probably this fall.

Russia would be invited but since she would be denied veto power it is questionable whether she will attend.

Confidence at headquarters is based on the apparent acceptance by Johnson and Dulles of many of the basic tenets of MacArthur's estimate of the situation.

Dulles, who arrived today from Korea, stated: "The United States has positive ideas that it wants to carry out in the Far East. Johnson, Bradley and myself are here to confer with General MacArthur. We are all working in a cooperative spirit, and we are expecting positive results."

Club 'Blackballs' Member Who Led Raid

Jefferson City, Mo., June 21 (AP).—Police Officer Otto Hildebrand was notified yesterday he is no longer a member of the Eagles Club because he "violated his obligation to the organization."

Hildebrand led a police raid on the club June 9. The following day four trustees of the club were fined a total of $100 for permitting operation of a bingo game.

Love Warmed Over

Jersey City, N. J., June 21 (AP).—A grand jury today indicted Edward Fietcher, 34, on a charge of arson. Police said he became annoyed at his girl friend and tried to burn down her house.

Ships Strafed

Nationalist Use Planes In Blockade

Hongkong, June 21 (U.P.).—The Chinese Nationalists bombed and strafed three British ships today as they stepped up their war on foreign vessels trading with Communist-held ports.

Nationalist planes attacked the British freighters Hanyang, Lady Wolmer and Anhui at the Communist-held port of Swatow directly across from Formosa. The 3494-ton Anhui was half submerged after hitting a mine a few days ago.

The Lady Wolmer, a 1883-ton vessel, reported the raiders slightly damaged the superstructure and that its chief officer was slightly wounded.

The attack came less than two days after Panamanian freighter Valve and the Greek ship Santos struck mines at the entrance to Shanghai harbor. Latest reports indicated six persons were injured aboard the Santos and one on the Valve. All nine officers and 32 crewmen of the Valve were rescued and taken to Shanghai.

Unconfirmed reports from Shanghai said authorities have ordered the port closed after Monday's two sinkings at the mouth of the Yangtze.

'Rain Check' Week Set

Albany, N. Y., June 21 (AP).—Mayor Erastus Corning today proclaimed June 25-July 1 as "Rrain Check Week." He urged all Albanians who in the past year uttered the words, "I'll take a rain check on that" to collect during the period.

British Seek U. N. Support For Red China

London, June 21 (AP).—Government sources disclosed today that Britain is campaigning actively for votes to get Nationalist China thrown out and Red China seated in the United Nations.

Britain, with a big commercial stake in the Communist-ruled China mainland, broke off with Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa government in January and recognized Mao Tze-tung's Peiping Red regime.

But Britain abstained in votes on the representation question in the U. N. and has been needled by Mao's government for this non-support.

The Reds meanwhile have dallied about exchanging diplomats with Britain.

The test may come at the summer meeting of the 18-nation Economic and Social Council at Geneva starting July 3.

These seven Council members recognized Red China: Czechoslovakia, Denmark, India, Pakistan, Poland, Russia and Britain. The other 11, which have stuck by the Nationalists, are: Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, France, Iran, Mexico, Peru and the United States.

Britain is expected to try swinging some of the 11 over to Red China before the session. The Council decisions are by simple majority votes.

[Britain and France will be expected to consult the United States before making any move to unseat the Chinese Nationalists in the U. N., officials in Washington said yesterday.

[Such consultation was agreed upon at last month's meetings of the Big Three Foreign Ministers in London. The United States has agreed to abide by a majority decision in the U. N., but has announced it would vote against unseating the Nationalists.

[The French as well as the British have been reconsidering their attitude on Chinese representation in the U. N. Reports from Paris said the French probably would not decide their stand for several weeks at least.—Editor's note.]

United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie, who has led the campaign to seat Communist China as a "common sense" way of bringing Russia back to meetings, is returning to Europe to make a speech in London, July 3, visit the Geneva Council sessions and vacation in his native Norway.

After his recent save-the-United Nations tour of Washington, London, Paris and Moscow, he said the China question must be settled by the end of July to avoid a chaotic condition when the 59-nation General Assembly meets in New York September 19.

'31-Knot' Burke Nominated Rear Admiral by Truman

President Truman yesterday nominated Arleigh A. Burke, one of the Navy men figuring in last year's Armed Services row, for promotion to the temporary grade of rear admiral.

As a captain, Burke was the head last year of the Navy's "Operations Division 23." That was a group unofficially described as having the job of working up the Navy's case in the stormy row with the Air Force and the Army over the role of each service in defense preparations.

The Navy quarreled strongly with official policies that cut down on its air role and blocked the proposed construction of a super aircraft carrier.

President Truman, in effect, lined up against the Navy in the controversy and cracked down on it by the removal of Admiral Louis P. Denfeld as Chief of Naval Operations.

There was wide speculation at the time that many Navy men—possibly Burke among them—had wrecked their careers and would never get a promotion.

Burke's name was on the selection list, however, when a Navy board listed last December the captains approved for promotion to flag rank.

There had been reports that his name was once crossed off—then put back. Whether that was true never has been officially disclosed.

Known in the service as "31-Knot Burke" because of the speed he demanded in destroyer operations, Burke had a brilliant war record.

Admiral Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations, has expressed high regard for Burke's ability as a naval officer.

Red Ban Loses in Australia

Canberra, Australia, June 21 (AP).—The labor dominated Senate risked the possibility of new general elections today by rejecting a government bill to outlaw the Communist Party.

The House of Representatives yesterday refused to accept a Senate amendment which placed on the government the burden of proof that an outlawed organization is in fact Communist. It also turned down a Senate amendment which gave a person accused of being a Communist the right to trial by jury.

The Senate today refused to pass the law without the amendments.

The action meant that the bill is unlikely to become law for several months. The constitution provides that the government may submit the bill again after three months. If the Senate again refuses to yield, the Government has the privilege of asking a dissolution of both houses of parliament and calling for a new election.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies' conservative coalition of Liberal and Country Parties won a majorty of 27 seats in the House in parliamentary elections last December, unseating Joseph B. Chifley's Labor government. Because of holdovers, however, Labor retained a majority in the Senate.

'State of War' End Sought

Paris, June 21 (NYHT).—France will propose shortly that the three Western powers occupying Germany take the necessary steps to stop treating the Germans as enemies, Foreign Office spokesmen disclosed today.

A French memorandum will be submitted to a three-power study group which will meet at London July 3 to discuss the problem of ending the state of war with Germany. The study group was set up last month by a decision on the foreign ministers of France, Britain and the United States.

The French view is that it would be a mistake to issue a joint declaration ending the state of war, and that the desired ends can be achieved by a different procedure.

The French argue that to declare now that the state of war has ended, would be to imply that the Bonn federal government is the legal successor to the Nationalist Socialist regime, and that the West was making a separate peace with it. Furthermore, it would destroy the legal basis for the maintenance of Allied high commissioners in Germany.

Instead, the French say, it must be considered that the war ended with the unconditional surrender of Germany, and that the state of war "disappeared" at that time. It is therefore up to the occupying powers to make individual declarations noting that the state of war has ceased to exist for domestic legal purposes, and to take measures to stop treating the Germans as enemy nationals.

N. J. Gov. Driscoll Asks More GOP Attention To Progressives; Strikes Back at Rebuke

By a Post Reporter

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 21.—Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, one of three Republicans who criticized Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) this week, today heard from a constituent who didn't like his stand.

Governor Driscoll struck back at sion:

the man, and at the same time took a crack at the Republican National Committee for not paying more attention to progressive vote-getters in the GOP.

Raymond Connolly, a South Orange, N. J., real estate man, sent Driscoll the following telegram to the Greenbrier, where the Governors Conference has been in ses-

"Cannot understand Governors' attitude on McCarthy. All I have talked with are delighted with his vision and patriotism. Neither do we like Governor Driscoll's 100 percent budget increase.

Copy to Gabrielson

"It is very unpopular course. If Republicans cannot read public opinion more successfully they cannot be elected."

Connolly sent a copy of his message to Republican National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson.

Governor Driscoll, who rebuked McCarthy for making charges about Communists in the State Department without being able to offer concrete evidence, telegraphed Connolly and Gabrielson as follows: "I am appalled by the lack of clear thinking in Washington and among some Republicans.

"I cannot condone methods that, in the name of patriotism, may contribute to the destruction of our form of government.

Praises Warren, Duff

"Governors Warren and Duff have just been nominated by Republicans in their great States. No one can successfully question their patriotism or fine representation of Republican thought in their States. It is time the Republican National Committee gave more attention to men as well as Republican groups that have demonstrated their ability to beat the Democrats and who today are working for a forward-looking, progressive, sound, economical government.

"Governors Duff and Warren have given their States good government and demonstrated that where government serves its people its representatives will be given a vote of confidence. I am proud they are Republicans. They have been producing the goods while others have been engaged either in destructive criticism or headline hunting.

"There is, of course, room for criticism, but the criticism should be constructive. The target should be clearly defined and the methods adopted by the critics designed to help us achieve constructive objectives."

A London Bridge Falls

London, June 21 (U.P.).—One of London's bridges fell down last night. The first span of the Bailey Bridge being strung across the Thames River for the 1951 Festival of Britain toppled into the water as it was being pushed on rollers onto its supports.

thank-you resolution for Paul G. Hoffman, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration, who spoke Monday night.

Resolutions were adopted urging Statehood for Alaska and Hawaii, stronger defenses for Alaska, cooperation among the States and the Federal Government to find a solution for improving the lot of the American Indian, a study by the States to bring about uniform legislation on highway safety and motor truck regulation, bus. He let it be known this afternoon, however, that he would attend lest the wrong implication be placed on his absence.

In its final session, the Governors Conference adopted a resolution saying it was under "a very great debt" to Secretary of State Acheson, Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup, Special Consultant John Sherman Cooper and Security Officer Carlisle H. Humelsine for "the very frank and informative ways in whch they presented to the conference the problems confronting the Nation at this time."

The conference also approved a legislation to enable States to assist one another in the support of dependent wives and children, and a study to bring about the widest recreational use of artificial lakes within the States.

At a round-table discussion on the care and treatment of the mentally ill this morning, Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl of Minnesota said the States must "place people ahead of dollars".

Overloaded Trucks Debated

"The conservation of our human resources is the only true economy we have," he said, "and I speak here not only of programs in treatment, but of those in prevention, training and research."

A lively debate followed on the question of overloaded trucks and state highways.

Governor Warren of Florida complained that the varying regulations in the different States, with some States permitting heavier truck loads than others, was tending to hamstring interstate commerce. One result was, he said, that Florida produce doesn't reach as many Americans as it should.

Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia said his State wanted to cooperate with others, but did not want overloaded trucks from Florida and other States destroying the Old Dominion's roads.

Later Governor Warren "apologized" to Battles and other Governors whose state roads have suffered from overloaded Florida trucks.

U.S. Aide Expelled by Romania

The State Department disclosed yesterday that Communist Romania has expelled Capt. Herschel Hutsinpiller, assistant United States military attache in Bucharest, on "distorted" charges of plotting to arm revolutionary forces.

In a sharp note to the Romanian Foreign Office, the department said the expulsion was part of "a deliberate and centrally directed" campaign of Communist countries to drive American diplomatic representatives from Eastern Europe.

It was the closest the department has yet come to charging formally that Russia is instigating the campaign by Red satellite countries to harass United States diplomats.

Department spokesmen Michael J. McDermott declined to answer questions about possible retaliatory moves against Romania. But the note indicated the two nations are edging toward a complete rupture in diplomatic relations.

While emphasizing no such drastic step yet has been decided upon, officials made no secret of their concern over the general situation.

Romania had previously imposed tight restrictions on American officials in Bucharest. The State Department retaliated last month by ordering Romanian diplomats restricted to an area 35 miles around Washington.

Communist Bulgaria carried its harassment of United States officials so far that this country broke off diplomatic relations last spring. Relations with Hungary also have been severely strained, particularly over the imprisonment of American Businessman Robert A. Vogeler. Negotiations for his "ransom" are now underway.

The department said Romania declared Hutsinpiller persona non grata on charges that he possessed small arms ammunition which he planned to supply to anti-Communist underground fighters.

While announcing its intention to recall Hutsinpiller at once, the department bluntly rejected the accusations.

It said they were an "artificially exaggerated and distorted" outgrowth of a perfectly legitimate incident in which Hutsinpiller ordered two subordinates to destroy "a small amount" of ammunition left behind by the Allied Control Commission for Romania.

The ammunition was dumped into Lake Snagov near Bucharest, the department said "in an open manner which belies assertions that this action had a clandestine or secretive character."

Fists Save $52,500 From Cap Pistol Bandit Near Bank

Angier, N. C., June 21 (U.P.).—A bandit with a child's cap pistol robbed the Bank of Angier of $52,500 today but was felled in the street outside by a father-and-son team using fists.

Harry Hamilton, 30, of Harnett County, entered the bank at 10:15 a. m. and pulled out his cap pistol. The bluff worked. Cashier C. G. Fields said Hamilton herded three bank employes into the vault and ordered them to turn over the money.

However, another bank employe, Mrs. Marie Roderick, had managed to slip outside and tell H. C. Strickland and his son Henry about the robbery. Hamilton, still brandishing his toy and carrying $52,500, walked from the bank and met the Stricklands.

Young Henry slammed his hand against his pistol and his father punched Hamilton. The bandit went down, the police came and the loot was returned. Hamilton was held for Federal authorities.

39 Witnesses Face Contempt Charges

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee decided yesterday to bring contempt of Congress proceedings against all witnesses who refused to answer its questions.

As a starter, the committee voted for contempt proceedings against 39 witnesses who refused to answer questions during an investigation of communism in Hawaii in April.

Representative Walter (D., Pa.) told reporters that Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, New York Communist newspaper, "probably" will be among the first added to the list.

Bart, a witness yesterday, declined to answer almost all questions put to him. These included whether he had used an alias in obtaining a passport in 1932.

Walter said the committee will consider later this week whether to proceed against Marcel Scherer, who followed Bart on the witness stand.

Bart and Scherer were called primarily for questioning about a passport issued to John William Fox in 1940. The application was witnessed by Scherer.

Bart refused to say whether the photograph on the passport was his; whether he used the passport; whether he went to Russia on it.

Scherer refused to say whether he signed the passport application; whether he knew John Wiliam Fox; whether Fox and Bart are the same person.

Bart once referred to the Communist Party as "my party." Scherer refused to say whether he is or ever was a Communist.

Benjamin Gitlow, one time high ranking official of the Communist Party, told the Un-American Activities Committee in September, 1939, that Scherer had held "all kinds of positions in the Communist Party" and was "one of its oldest and most trusted members."

Bart even refused to tell the committee his name before he changed it through court proceedings about 15 years ago.

"My legal name is Philip Bart; I vote under that name," he said.

Bart acknowledged that he used to be a Communist Party organizer in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio "and many other places." But he steadfastly refused to give the committee any names of party officials.

In refusing to answer questions, Bart and Scherer contended their constitutional rights were being infringed.

While the session was called for the main purpose of inquiring whether Bart had obtained a passport under another name, the questioning covered a wide range of subjects—such as charges of communism in the radiation laboratory of the University of California, and the New York Labor Conference for Peace.

The thing Scherer most wanted to talk about was the "peace movement."

He said Representative Marcantonio (Am-Lab., N. Y.) had signed a peace petition yesterday and suggested that members of the House Un-American Activities Committee sign up. No one jumped at the opportunity.

more about the Amerasia case, he should make it known to the State Department legal adviser.

The conversation between Larsen and Peurifoy was witnessed by another State Department officer, and a memorandum of it was made, which was available to the subcommittee.

4. As for the alleged offer of loyalty clearance, Peurifoy testified that many months ago a Congressman, wanting to help get Larsen a Government job, called Peurifoy to inquire if there was any derogatory matter in Larsen's files. Aside from the Amerasia matter, Peurifoy replied, there was not.

If Larsen understood from that, and so testified, that Peurifoy had given him loyalty clearance, it was not Puerifoy's doing, the official said.

It was understood that the two-hour session was conducted in a friendly fashion on all sides. Angry words passed only once, and briefly, it was known.

That was when Peurifoy commented on McCarthy's charge that he was "consorting" with Larsen, "a thief of Government secret documents." Peurifoy said he did not "consort"; it was Larsen who asked for the appointment. The "consorting" was done a few days before by McCarthy, who summoned Larsen to his office to get him to testify in support of the Wisconsin Republican's charges.

Service, the man at issue in all this, will testify before the Tydings subcommittee Friday. Besides his involvement in the Amerasia affair, McCarthy has charged he sought to undercut the government of Chiang Kai-shek in China and to support the Chinese Communists.

Yesterday, Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), a member of the subcommittee, demanded that the hearing be public, and said he would raise the issue again today. But Tydings replied that the subcommittee had voted unanimously to end open sessions, after the other Republican member, Senator Lodge (Mass.) asked to "take the show off the road."

Tydings' denial of McCarthy's assertions that the files his committee was studying were stripped was couched in the polite phrase that the camplaint "is not supported by the facts."

Tydings said the Justice Department and the FBI, at his request, made a thorough investigation of the 81 loyalty files to determine whether any FBI reports or other damaging material had been removed.

Files Not "Raped"

Their report, he said, shows that "the files are intact, the files have not been raped, skeltonized or tampered with."

"I have been advised by FBI agents that all of the material gathered by the FBI touching on the loyalty of the employes in question has been sent to the State Department and are part of the files which our committee has examined," Tydings said.

Tydings set next Sunday night as the deadline for his subcommittee to complete their two-month review of the files. He said he has read all of them, but wants to review material in about seven.

In another development yesterday, Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), a member of the subcommittee, joined his four colleagues in requesting that a citation for contempt of Congress be issued against Philip J. Jaffe.

Jaffe was the editor of Amerasia magazine, to whom the Government documents were passed by Larsen. He was fined $2500. But recently, called as a witness before the subcommittee, he refused to answer anything more than elementary self-identifying questions.

Senate Group Approves Ritter

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 5 to 3 yesterday to approve the nomination of Willis W. Ritter as United States district judge in Utah.

Two members of thet committee reserved their votes until today.

If they should vote against the nomination it could result in a tie vote in committee.

Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) told reporters, however, that he did not anticipate a tie. He added that he plans to submit the nomination to the Senate today.

Some observers said the two Senators might disagree on the nomination. This would mean one additional vote for and another against the nomination. This would not change the result.

Senator Watkins (R., Utah) was called into the committee room before the vote was taken. He would not tell reporters what he said to the committee, but Senator McCarran said Watkins opposed the nomination.

Previously Watkins has said he wanted only to make sure the committee had all the facts necessary to make its decision. He said he had not decided how he personally would vote. He is not a member of the committee.

Colombia Sets Elections

Bogota, Columbia, June 21 (U.P.). An executive decree today ordered national congressional elections held on June 3, 1951, to renew the entire membership of both houses of Congress and of state legislatures.

Cause, Cure Found In Disease of Cattle

Ithaca, N. Y., June 21 (AP).—The cause and cure of one of the most costly diseases in dairy cattle was reported here today by a University of Maryland research team.

Dr. Shaw

Dr. Joseph C. Shaw and Dr. B. C. Hatziolos reported the find to the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association at Cornell University.

The disease is ketosis, sometimes called acetonemia.

The cause is abnormal glands—adrenal and pituitary.

The cure: Cortisone, the wonder drug that has been so effective against some forms of human arthritis.

Shaw said the finding that the disease is linked to the adrenal and pituitary glands may lead to some important discoveries in human medicine. There is somewhat of a relationship, for example, between ketosis in cows and human diabetes.

Ketosis is described as the greatest single health problem in many dairy herds. It usually develops two or three weeks after a cow drops a calf. The cow refuses to eat. Her milk production falls off. She loses weight. She may act crazy, pawing at partitions and walking through barbed wire fences. She may foam at the mouth. Paralysis sometimes set in.

Cortisone, Shaw reported, had sick cows come back on their feet within 18 hours. In between three and six days their milk production was back to normal.

Rail Tieup Threatened

ers represented by the Railroad Yardmasters of North America.

The trainmen and conductors did not set a strike date. They will meet in Chicago July 10 to consider future action.

The board did not hear the switchmen's case but recommended to President Truman April 19 that the findings in behalf of other yard workers be applied to these employes. The switchmen's union rejected this recommendation and has been legally free to strike since May 19, when the 30-day "cooling off" period ended.

The yard workers represented by unions had asked 40 hours work at 48 hours pay. In addition the 125,000 operating employes represented by the trainmen's and conductor's unions had demanded a sliding scale of pay rates depending on weight of locomotives and reduction of the basic day on passenger trains from the present 150 miles or 7½ hours to 100 miles or five hours.

Enka Nonstrikers Fired at From Ambush

Morristown, Tenn., June 21 (U.P.). — Three carloads of nonstrikers were ambushed and fired on today after they passed through picket lines of the CIO Textile Workers Union at the American Enka rayon plant. No one was injured.

'Nothing Conclusive' In N. Y. Guild Strike

New York, June 21 (U.P.).—Representatives of the New York Newspaper Guild and the New York World-Telegram and Sun said after concluding a two-hour "exploratory" talk today that "nothing conclusive" had been accomplished toward settlement of the 8-day-old strike of editorial and commercial employes.

Ford Plans to Charge AFL Union Is Unfair

Detroit, June 21 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. said today it would file unfair labor practice charges against an AFL union in connection with a two-day strike at Ford's Canton, Ohio, forge plant.

Ford said the strike was threatening to close down its entire operations and idle all its 177,000 hourly rated workers.

Nonstriking Milkman Beaten in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, June 21 (U.P.).—Unidentified men drove a milk truck over a hillside today and dragged another nonstriking milkman from his truck, beat him and dumped his load of milk in the street.

The violence came in the thirteenth day of a strike

Judge Given 60-Day Term For Contempt; Goes to Penal Farm

Indianapolis, June 21 (AP).—The Indiana Supreme Court today sent Judge Norval K. Harris of Sullivan County Circuit Court to the penal farm for 60 days.

The court did not conceal its irritation with the judge. It refused to give him time to settle his affairs before being taken to the farm at Putnaville this afternoon.

Today's sentence was the climax of a series of legal fights carried on by the judge, who was cochairman with Singer Paul Robeson of the committee for the defense of the 11 Communists convicted in New York.

The judge has been rowing with his county prosecutor, John K. Purcell; is under a charge in his own court of issuing a fraudulent check to a woman whose funds were held by the court, and is out on $100 bond on a drunkenness charge in Indianapolis Municipal Court.

It was the fight with the prosecutor which led to today's contempt sentence, which included a $300 fine.

The court told the judge not to order a grand jury to investigate Purcell, who had filed the check charges against Harris.

It ruled June 13 that the judge defied its orders.

Harris, a Democrat, said he did not know whether he would appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The court action will have no effect on Harris' holding his bench, which he took over January 1, 1949, for a six-year term. A special judge will be named to preside while he is at the farm.

This is Harris' second sentence to a prison. He served seven months in the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1933 after pleading guilty to forging his name to a veterans' bonus certificate. The late President Roosevelt later pardoned him.

Three High Schools Get New Principals

46, a native of Pennsylvania, is a graduate of Columbia University. He joined the local school system in 1935 as a statistician, but was promoted the next year to assistant principal of Central.

Hoover, 65, of 116 Baltimore ave., Takoma Park, was a biology teacher and assistant principal at Central before he was named principal in 1936. A native of West Virginia, he came to Washington during the First World War as an Agriculture Department employe.

Mrs. Wells becomes the third principal to serve Roosevelt since it was founded as the old Business High School in 1890. The first was the late Allan Davis and the second Miss May P. Bradshaw. Mrs. Wells succeeded Miss Bradshaw last year but only as acting principal.

The principalship was held open while the school board debated the closing of Central. At one time the school board had before it a recommendation that Hoover be transferred to Central. School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning withdrew the recommendation after Roosevelt alumni petitioned the board for the appointment of Mrs. Wells.

The board also retired 16 teachers with long service. Three taught at Central High School and two were graduates of that school. Miss Bessie Whitford, 3364 18th st. nw., English teacher at Central and an alumna, was retired after 46 years. Miss Dorothea Sherman, 1430 Belmont st. nw., also an English teacher and an alumna of Central, was retired after 43 years. The third Central teacher was Miss M. Esther England, 5420 Colorado ave. nw., music teacher for 36 years.

In other actions yesterday, the board:

Asked Congress to amend the Teachers' Salary Act of 1947 to eliminate the requirement that teachers show professional growth and development at 5-year periods to be eligible for salary increases.

Accepted a report from Dr. Corning concerning a proposal that Negro and white high schools compete in athletic games. Dr. Corning recommended that the board study its entire policy of segregated student activities before considering inter-racial sports.

Asked the superintendent to prepare a study on the need of school facilities for deaf children.

Mrs. Wient Wathen-Dunn and Mrs. Lois Campbell, members of the parents' study group of the Washington Hearing Society, presented a report urging that the board provide oral training for deaf children. They said the training should begin at pre-school age. Mrs. Campbell estimated that in the city there are from 30 to 40 white children and the same number of Negro children who would benefit from such a program.

Others retired:

Miss Edna F. Holbrook, 3206 Wisconsin ave. nw., mathematics teacher at Coolidge, 37 years.

Dudley C. C. Jackson, 32 Columbia ave., Takoma Park, machine-ship teacher at Eastern, 38 years.

Miss Virginia J. Willis, 4009 Davis pl. nw., English teacher at McKinley, 31 years.

Miss Alice O. McCauley, 1354 Monroe st. nw., English teacher at Roosevelt, 45 years.

Miss Catherine M. McGrath, 2253 North Nottingham st., Arlington, Va., mathematics teacher at Western, 25 years in District schools and 9 years in English schools.

Mrs. Mabel J. Matthews, 1121 Columbia rd. nw., home-economics teacher, Armstrong, 35 years.

Talley R. Homes, 1345 T st. nw., mathematics and German teacher, Armstrong, 39 years.

Mrs. Miriam W. Lewis, Ardwick rd., Ardwick, Md., clerical-practice teacher at Shaw Junior High School, 35 years.

Mrs. Rose C. Humphrey, 3321 16th st. nw., Thomas School, 49 years.

Mrs. Vera L. Ebert, 1383 Manchester lane nw., Raymond School, 36 years.

Miss Helen F. Jones, 917 S st. nw., English and history teacher at Banneker, 45 years.

Miss Kitty B. Bruce, 744 Girard st. nw., art teacher at Francis, 38 years.

Mrs. Bertha H. Collins, 100 Massachusetts ave. nw., history and general science at Shaw, 37 years.

Loose Words

It is one thing to criticize Trygve Lie for his conduct of the secretary generalship of the United Nations; it is quite another to impugn his motives. Mr. Lie is an international public servant, and as such open to criticism, and in the past this newspaper has not spared him; criticism of Mr. Lie is a reflection of the interest that the public has in the future of the United Nations. But the charges that Senators Bridges and Knowland level against Mr. Lie do not constitute fair criticism. They are a reflection on his impartiality and on his fidelity to the United Nations as a world organization. They say that Mr. Lie is "cooperating in a scheme" to give Russia another vote in the U. N. Security Council. His tactics are as "insidious" as Communist tactics, and he is at least a Communist tool, if not a Communist ally.

It may be that the Senators see nothing offensive in flinging at Mr. Lie the same loose words that they fling at the Secretary of State. But they are offensive. The "tactics" complained of were the tactics of a secretary general anxious to keep the United Nations alive, and he has full authority under Article 99 to use his initiative. The misuse of the veto power, moreover, is as much against his grain as against the Senators'. One thing is sure: there would probably be no world organization left in which to exercise a veto power if Mr. Lie ever quit as secretary general. So low is the stock of one-world organization that, as we said the other day, we doubt whether there is another person upon whom the United States and the Soviet Union could agree as a successor. Don't let us drive him into resignation when his five-year term is up next February!

Peekskill Presentment

A grand jury of Westchester County, New York, having completed its investigation of the Peekskill riot of last September 4, has returned a presentment which substantially supports the opinion expressed at the time on this page. We mention this because we were subjected to rather harsh criticisms by some of our readers for having asserted that the Peekskill concerts had been organized by the Communists with a view to provoking trouble, and also for asserting that Governor Dewey and the New York State authorities had taken every possible precaution in their difficult duty of at once protecting the right of free assembly and preventing, if possible, the outbreak of violence.

Violence, of course, did occur. The grand jury uses strong language in condemnation of the "un-American, unwarranted and unlawful acts" of some residents of the county inflamed by propaganda against the Communist invasion. But most of the violence occurred at some distance from scene of the concert and while Paul Robeson's audience was returning to New York by motor cars and chartered buses, as the grand jury points out, it was impossible for the police to be everywhere at once. It observes that the countryside near Peekskill is > hilly and wooded and in many places along the roads there are high wooded banks from which stones could be hurled without detection. Some hoodlums were arrested on the spot and are being prosecuted but under the circumstances it was not possible for even the large police force . . . to apprehend all those guilty of stone-throwing. Stonings occurred as far away as Tarrytown, approximately 20 miles from the point where the police were required to be concentrated.

Nevertheless, the acts of violence committed by the anti-Communist demonstrators were sporadic and unorganized. The Communists, according to the grand jury had come to the concert with what amounted to an organized and disciplined private army.

> The testimony . . . shows that more than 2500 men were assembled at the concert as [Mr. Robeson's] security guard. They came from Brooklyn, Manhattan, the Bronx, Long Island, from Westchester and from Communist camps located in other counties. Most of these men carried baseball bats. Their leader wore the uniform of an United States lieutenant. They were stationed in military formation, shoulder to shoulder, in two huge circles. This force remained in position for eight to ten hours . . . [It was] the first time that Communists had disclosed their organized and militant forces on so large a scale in the Nation. These forces . . . have been used on lesser occasions in smaller numbers in an offensive and aggressive manner. What the American people had not hitherto witnessed was the power of the Communists to mobilize their militant forces quickly and in sufficient strength to constitute a potential challenge to the authority of the government.

It was, in other words, a situation charged with the most serious possibilities. Had a violent incident occurred at the scene of the concert, the result might have been a riot beyond the power of the police, strong and alert as they were, to suppress or control.

Of course, the veterans' organizations, who thought it necessary to organize a counterdemonstration, must share a certain responsibility for the creation of an incendiary situation. Thus one moral of the affair, as we see it, and as the grand jury sees it, is contained in another passage of the presentment:

> Patriotic and loyal Americans, both as individuals and groups, must [avoid] being drawn into Communist traps which may be set for the purpose of inviting situations that might encourage violence. Responsible local organizations . . . should actively discourage their members from being present when affairs sponsored by subversive groups are being held.

Sixth Column

The Governors' Conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., has produced some healthy symptoms of returning sanity and revitalized conscience. A natural revulsion against McCarthyism seems to have become widespread. The Governors, accustomed as they may be to the rough and tumble of politics, don't like blows below the belt. A number of them, all Republicans, spoke out on the subject in forceful terms.

Governor Warren of California led off with an appeal for "a bipartisan investigation that would be wholly objective in its approach." His suggestion sounded like a reecho of this newspaper's proposal on the same subject. So far, he said, he hadn't seen any proof to back up Mr. McCarthy's charges. "I don't think good comes of making accusations of that kind," he added, "unless there is an intention to prove the statements in court through democratic processes." Governor Duff of Pennsylvania observed: "I feel that it is unwise to make random blanket charges without specific data to back them up." Governor Driscoll of New Jersey declared that Senator McCarthy has handicapped efforts to uproot Communists by "making sweeping charges that haven't stood up under public scrutiny." The reception accorded Secretary of State Dean Acheson by the Governors suggests that Mr. McCarthy's stock is now pretty low.

But it remained for the administrator of ECA, Paul Hoffman, to put McCarthyism in perspective and give it a label which should stick with it for a long time. "Let's take stock of things and admit that we face a very dangerous column here at home," he said. "I'm not talking about the fifth column, either. Dangerous as their treachery can be, American Communists are pretty well discredited. I'm talking of the sixth column—those people who would spread dissension, disunity and doubt."

The malignancy of the sixth column is in no way diminished by the patriotism of its purposes. It seeks, no doubt, to promote the security of the country. But its disruption of mutual confidence and its suppression of democratic debate by reckless denunciation have impaired the real sources of national security. Mr. Hoffman said he was convinced the free world will win out against the Kremlin because, as he put it, "it has been truly said that the strength of 1000 free men is many times that of 1000 slaves." But to be strong, we must remain free.

Atomic Blindness

Some time ago several cases of cataract blindness developed among laboratory workers in subatomic research who had been exposed to the radioactive particles released in nuclear fission. This alarming development led to an ophthalmic study, directed by two members of the faculty of the Harvard Medical School among the survivors of the Hiroshima bombardment of 1945. Some details of the results of the preliminary survey were released last weekend by the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission of the National Research Council. The first group examined at Hiroshima consisted mostly of persons who at the time of the bombardment were within a radius of 1000 yards of the point over which the bomb was detonated.

Four percent were found definitely to be suffering from cataracts, and incipient cataracts were suspected among another 4 percent. The incidence, however, may be even higher than is indicated by these figures, for, according to the commission, many Japanese "who were nowhere near the explosions now claim [for reasons of social prestige] to have been in the vicinity at the time of the bombing." Thus the work of eliminating spurious subjects five years after the event has been extraordinarily difficult.

This pathetic illustration of a universal human snobbery becomes even more ironical in view of the steadily growing fear that the residual effects of atomic bombardment may be even more terrible than the immediate effects. One of the great anxieties is the possible hereditary consequences of radioactivity, of which Mr. Aldous Huxley made so much in his post-atomic-age fantasy, Ape and Essence.

Certainly, as the commission says, all the medical studies now being made among the populations of Hiroshima and Nagasaki emphasize the urgency of the problem of civil defense. However, the prospect may not be quite as frightening as it appears at first glance. Given time, no doubt, the same technological ingenuity that provided the atom bomb will prepare an effective defense against it. It is comforting, at any rate, to reflect that nearly all the earlier workers in the field of roentgenology sacrificed their lives to it, but as the result of their experiments, their sufferings and self-sacrifice, devices were found that now permit the use of the X-ray with relative safety to both operator and patient.

Still, the reports from Hiroshima do indicate that the anticipated industrial applications of atomic energy will not be at hand in the near future. Quite obviously, atomic energy is too dangerous a toy to be played with promiscuously.

Basing Point

Both the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice have repeatedly stated that existing law does not prohibit delivered pricing or freight absorption as such, provided it does not have the effect of restraining competition or tending to create a monopoly. Nevertheless, conflicting interpretations of court decisions in basing point cases have created doubts in the minds of many businessmen as to the legality of these pricing practices. The purpose of the bill that President Truman has just vetoed was to remove such doubts by clarifying existing laws. Various protective clauses were inserted in the bill designed to safeguard small business from discriminatory kinds of pricing banned by the Robinson-Patman Act.

Unfortunately, the bill itself as finally passed by Congress is far from satisfactory owing to obscurities in its terms. Opponents claim that it would weaken the anti-trust laws and inflict a mortal blow on small business. Advocates, including Senator O'Mahoney, who led the Senate fight for its passage, maintain that it would benefit small business, promote competition, and aid the development of the economy. The result is more confusion than clarification.

In our opinion delivered pricing systems and absorption of freight charges, if undertaken in good faith to meet competition, help to break up local monopolies based on freight advantages. For that reason we had hoped that declaratory legislation would be enacted providing more definite rules for the guidance of businessmen. However, as the President points out in his veto message, the bill that finally emerged "is so far from clear that each of its major provisions is capable of widely conflicting interpretations." Under the circumstances he concludes that it is impossible to determine how its enactment would affect the anti-trust laws. Hence his decision to veto.

Sponsors of the bill may derive some comfort from the President's assurance that "it is quite clear that there is no bar to freight absorption or delivered prices as such." However, this broad statement will not resolve the confusion that, to quote Senator O'Mahoney, "has been a real source of concern to honest managers of business who have no responsibility for having created the confusion, and who wish to make their contributions to the economy by expanding their operations and financing new enterprises."

Copper Trouble

Latin America, which is already seething over the coffee report of the Gillette Subcommittee, is also worried over the possibility of a tax on copper exports to this country. Unless Congress acts before June 30, a tax of 2 cents a pound on imported copper, suspended during the war, will go back into effect. This tax, which is promoted by legislators from mining States, would be a severe blow to Chile, where copper is the main product, as well as to Peru.

Chile has not been altogether liberal in her treatment of the American firms which make up the copper industry there. For instance, she imposes heavy taxes which must be paid in dollars, yet an unrealistic exchange rate penalizes the companies on their plant expansion. Nonetheless, there are several important reasons why in our domestic interest the reimposition of the tax would be unwise. This country requires about 1,195,000 tons of copper annually. Domestic production accounts for some 890,000 tons, leaving the balance to be imported. To impose a tax amounting to $40 a ton might be to increase the cost of our own imports and provide a heyday for speculators. The tax is particularly questionable at a time when domestic production does not meet consumption and when this country is seeking to add to its strategic stockpile. Nor is there economic reason for the tax, which was contrived during the depression when prices were low and miners out of work.

From Chile's standpoint, the disadvantages of the tax are obvious. It probably would curtail an important source of dollar income to Chile. The practical effect would be to encourage unrest in a country which has been striving for stability through democratic means. The tax would harm the position of President Gonzalez Videla, who recently completed a tour of this country, by giving a handle to the extremists anxious to spite the United States.

The roadblock established by mining State Senators is most effective in the Senate Finance Committee, where the restoration of the tax has been tied to a scrap metal bill to increase the difficulty of defeat. However, the House has a good chance to act by passing the Patterson bill, which would suspend the tax for another two years; the Senate could then approve this bill separately. It is not too much to ask that legislators take a mature look at our foreign policy and the injury ill-considered measures can do to patient effort at understanding.

THE WIND AND THE SAND

The wind all day has worked the empty beach,
Flinging white sand like smoke along the shore
And over land where waves could never reach.
A drift of sea-dust seals the fisher's door,
Sand climbs the plank steps of the boarded store.
Sand leans on window ledges of the school
And spills through broken panes across the floor.
And brings the teacher level with the fool.

If wind alone can work so great a task
And in one day make room for so much water, Knowledge, there is still hope for room for you!
Just time and wind enough are all I ask,
And here and there a fisher's son or daughter
With open mind, to let the wind sweep through!

"Postal Subsidies"

I have just read your June 19 editorial entitled "Postal Subsidies". Among other things it states:

"Particularly disheartening is the manner in which the Comptroller General has blocked every effort to introduce a modern budget and accounting system."

No falser statement has ever been written than this. The General Accounting Office is eager and willing to assist the Postoffice Department in getting the finest accounting system obtainable. This has always been our position, and such is well known to the Bureau of the Budget, the Postoffice Department and the committees of the Congress.

The great difference between the Postoffice Department and the General Accounting Office boils down to this one point. The Postoffice Department insists that the power of disallowance and settlement of postmasters' accounts, always exercised by the General Accounting Office as the agent of the Congress, be taken away from that office and turned over to the Postmaster General. Another difference is that the Postoffice Department's bill would permit the department to make its expenditures without regard to numerous laws enacted by the Congress to safeguard public funds.

These proposals strike at the vitals of the congressional power over the purse. The General Accounting Office can never agree to any such course of action under the guise of accounting improvement. You may be sure that Congress understands the issue. It is regrettable that you have apparently been misinformed by a flood of untrue propaganda on this subject.

LINDSAY C. WARREN,
Comptroller General of the United States.
Washington.

Editor's Note: Dr. Robert L. Johnson, chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report, in a public statement last week charged that one of the two stumbling blocks preventing realization of Hoover Commission recommendations on the Postoffice is "the unwillingness of the Comptroller General to relinquish his present cumbersome control over postal accounts."

Teacher Sick Leave

As approved by a Senate District Subcommittee, the amended Johnson bill (S. 2930) on sick leave for District teachers is a distinct improvement over the 1949 Sick Leave Act.

Teachers who are ill and exhaust their paid sick leave now will have a reassuring measure of security through receiving the salary difference between what they earn and what they pay a substitute teacher.

Teachers will also have annually three days with full pay for personal business, a desirable provision in view of the fact that teachers have no annual leave during the school year. The compromise bill further provides for five days with part pay, with the teacher paying the substitute, under rules of the Board of Education.

On behalf of more than 700 public school teachers who signed a petition sponsored by Local 27 of the American Federation of Teachers in support of the Johnson bill, and particularly in support of the right to pay a substitute during extended illness, we commend Senator Leahy, subcommittee chairman, for his willingness to examine the entire sick leave question fairly and carefully. We thank Senator Johnson for his bill and for his strong defense of the teachers' welfare. Local 27 also commends Gerhard van Arkel, Senate District Committee counsel. Mr. van Arkel patiently worked out a most acceptable compromise.

Unity as a Defense

One of the most feasible solutions for combating international communism, klanism, or any other doctrine that infringes upon human liberty, is not, I'm sure, in the mass production of numerous devastating weapons, but rather through a unified America. An America which can point with pride the way to world peace; an America which has freed itself from a multiplicity of superfluous tensions within and numerous supercilious attitudes without; an America that can put into reality the fundamental concepts for which millions of its native sons have fought, bled, and died; an America which has the courage to utilize its unprecedented ingenuity and potentialities in vigorously suppressing all, not some, forms of un-American activities; an America in which every State respects and executes the decisions of the Federal Government which it created and is responsible to.

Communism or any other nefarious doctrine can not flourish if it satisfies no need. The needs that such doctrines satisfy must be sought out and our institutions must be made flexible enough to absorb the same. As we begin to utilize this avenue of approach to today's perplexing problems the world may again hope for peace.

Forced Listening

With every respect for our judiciary and for Judge Tamm, may I politely and temperately expresss my firm belief that his recent decision, asserting that the imposition of compulsory listening upon unwilling Capital Transit Co. riders "injuries no one," is less than harmonious with the obvious facts of the situation?

Many thousands of residents of the Washington metropolitan area are compelled to use the facilities of CTC for the reason that CTC has a monopoly upon mass municipal transportation at moderate cost. While riding in these vehicles, passengers have just as much right not to be forced against their will to listen to aurally published bilge inflicted upon them by those who have the riders imprisoned in moving trolleys and buses as they have the right not to be forced against their will to read printing-press-published matter which they do not desire to read.

The National Citizens' Committee Against Forced Listening and Forced Reading is not against music and it is not against advertising. But it is our inflexible position that the individual has the right to determine for himself whether he will listen to music or to broadcast advertising.

It is our conviction that unwilling, forced listeners are injured very materially, just as Judge Tamm or any other jurist would be injured if at times when he desired to read his favorite newspaper or converse with a good friend or meditate upon a legal principle, he were tied to his chair and forced against his will to listen to the raucous clamor of a super-powered jukebox. The infringement upon the liberty of the individual is identical in both instances.

BERNARD TASSLER.
Chairman, National Citizens' Committee against Forced Listening and Forced Reading.

Copper Vs. Copper

Your June 3 editorial, "Coal vs. Oil," contained an interesting comment on the adverse effects which would follow the restriction on petroleum imports from Venezuela. Your comment is quite correct and should be adopted as a general doctrine of an economic character, with vast political scope.

With slight modification, this comment could be applied to the excise tax on foreign copper. The United States produces about 800,000 metric tons of copper per annum, and consumes around 1,100,000 tons. It must import for current consumption and reserves around 300,000 tons. In the event of war it must import more than 500,000 tons annually.

During World War II, Chile, which is the second largest producer of copper in the world, exerted a tremendous cooperative effort and furnished the United States this half million tons annually at a low price, fixed by the United States Government. Thus, Chile made a great economic sacrifice for the war effort. She even mobilized thousands of agricultural workers, who were moved to the mines in the north of Chile to increase the production of copper to its maximum.

Notwithstanding all these vital considerations, there is now noted an effort to reestablish the excise tax of 2 cents per pound on imports of foreign copper. The United States Congress, which has approved aid in the billions of dollars to other countries (for sound reasons), has shown no disposition to enact legislation which would impede the automatic reestablishment of the excise tax on July 1.

Chile, a friendly nation, and the principal foreign source of supply of copper for the United States, will be the one most damaged. The Administration understands the situation perfectly, and has brought it to the attention of the Senate Finance Committee by letters approved by the Bureau of the Budget. The large consumers of copper in the United States have shown that the tax will bring about an unjustified additional rise in the price of industrial products containing copper: Automobiles, radios, washing machines, electrical installations, etc.

If a war should occur, the United States would be obliged to call on Chile, in the first place, and on Peru and Mexico, in the second place, to produce the largest possible quantity of copper. But these nations may not understand why the United States in peacetime burdens an essential product; nor may they understand precisely what is meant by "continental solidarity." They may fail to understand, also, the purpose of all the Pan-American literature. We are already seeing the profound reaction of the coffee-producing countries of Latin-America.

Therefore, it would seem urgent to insure the additional sources of copper of Latin-America for the normal needs of United States industry and for emergencies. It would seem, also, that it is not politically wise to menace the basic products of Latin-American countries, which receive their largest dollar income from the sale of copper, coffee and oil.

Pensions—Part Of The Answer

By Malvina Lindsay

Maginot Line Peril

"WELL, THE pension movement rolls on," remarked the retired man of the pre-pension era. "It won't be long now till every American over 65 has a pension."

"I've got 15 years to wait," sighed the man of 40.

"Wait? And what else?"

"Oh, of course I'll save all I can. I'll need more than a pension to live on. But it's certainly something to look forward to."

"Yes, everybody seems to have pensions on the brain."

"You talk as if you didn't believe in 'em."

"No, I'm strong for Social Security widening its coverage, raising its benefits—as it's doing. The pension system is the best way to take care of the aged. But there's a lot of things besides pensions people like you will need at 65, things Uncle Sam can't furnish. It's high time people woke up to this."

"You mean we're all too hipped on security?"

"Do I look old enough or prosperous enough to be croaking about that? Of course people are anxious about security. They've always been in one way or another—the ones who didn't have it. But just the same we should wake people up to the fact that pensions are only part of the answer for living the 'best of life'—the 'last of life'."

"WELL workers are putting them first, the surveys show—ahead of higher pay, sick leave, vacations, health insurance."

"People are putting them not only first, but middle and last as well. We're making them a Maginot Line against the time past 65, or even 60 as it may soon be, and forgetting other defenses."

"What else can a fellow do but invest what money he can save?"

"He can invest in three other things—health, skill in occupation, and human friendship. Those are the things Dr. Clive M. McKay, Cornell University nutrition professor, has just warned Americans to be thinking about along with their pension checks. What's sending up the population in our mental hospitals? Mostly senile men and women past 65. Now what are you doing to build a body and mind so you will escape senility in your eight or nine or more years of retirement?"

"Who, me! I'm all right I guess. Anyway I'm so busy—"

"Yes; so you keep going on coffee and gooey cakes and pies at drug store counters."

"No I'm not that dumb. Anyway, I'm in pretty good shape. Most people think I'm around 35—at least when I wear a double breasted coat and keep it buttoned."

"MAYBE then you're an exception to all those Americans who get old 20 years before their time, that this professor at Iowa State University has been talking about."

"Who's he?"

"Dr. C. H. McCloy, research professor of physical education. The other day he woke up the Association for Physical and Mental Rehabilitation when he reported that the physical condition of Americans was 'pretty poor,' that the average person who works is so out of shape physically he has to spend his weekend resting up, that most persons neglect both physical exercise and medical checkups, and that a person 70 years old ought to be able to do a day's work, if it were not too strenuous, without exhaustion."

"Why should a 70-year-old person work?"

"For his own happiness and health, also for the paycheck. Why should everybody, or anybody be thinking only of an armchair at 65? That's the result of this pension psychology."

"But we've got to get these older guys out of the labor market?"

"So you guys of 40 can support 'em? No we've got to change our approach to this pension business. Have pensions certainly for those who must or want to retire. But let those who can keep on working."

"When I'm 65 I'll be willing to sit down."

"You think so now. But at 65 you might be thinking you didn't look a day over 59, in a buttoned up coat, and you might have developed some new skills or hobbies, made a lot of new friends, and be wanting to stay on your own awhile longer."

"Yes and if he were smart he'd be selling you this idea along with his pension plans."

"Communist" Security

It is amazing how many members of Congress in both parties are following the "Communist line". Take the social security expansion bill voted by the Senate. Its enactment would nearly complete plank No. 9 of the Communist Party U.S.A. platform published in 1935.

This un-American legislation hits directly at the South (deliberately, perhaps) in forcing housewives to pay social security taxes for servants, threatening the sanctity of American homes with intrusion by Federal snoopers. It would make Government dependents out of independent small businessmen.

The extent to which left-wingism has infected the Senate was revealed by its vote on this un-American measure imposing compulsory "social security" on some 10 million more Americans. The public should know that to date Congress has enacted into law about 30 percent of the United States Communist Party platform of 1935!

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Concerning The New Weapons

WE SHALL almost certainly be hearing more, rather than less, as time goes on about the new weapons which favor the defense. For behind the tantalizing leaks and announcements there is in the making a momentous debate. It should come to a head in next year's military appropriations.

Lippmann

The subject of the debate is American strategy: whether as presently understood it is not obsolescent and how it is to be renovated. There are reasons for thinking that the Russians will in a few, say five, years' time be able by the use of the new weapon, as Dr. Vannevar Bush foresaw and predicted in his book, to make strategic bombing of the Soviet vital centers too costly in planes destroyed and in atomic bombs that missed their targets. There are also reasons for thinking that by the use of the new weapons western Europe could be defended successfully against the Red Army, and that with other of the new weapons western Europe could make it much too expensive for the Russians to use eastern Europe as a springboard for an atomic offensive.

ALL THIS, if true, means that the two cardinal assumptions of United States postwar strategy are becoming obsolete. One is the assumption of victory through strategic airpower. The other is the assumption that the Red Army with all its reserves, its tanks, its artillery, can be dealt with only by a military effort in western Europe which approaches a total mobilization of men and materials.

Is this true, and in what sense is it true? Nobody is saying that American strategic airpower is now obsolete. Nobody is saying that the Red Army could not now overrun western Europe. It is correct to say, as one correspondent did, that "so far the tactical revolution is primarily in the drawingboard or prototype stage . . . one or two" of the new weapons "actually are in production but the rest still are a long time, perhaps four or five years, away from effective positions in the field." But while this is no doubt a correct report, it can easily be misunderstood. Mr. Joseph Alsop recently showed how to misunderstand it when he wrote that we shall all "collapse into ruin" . . . "if the Pentagon merely continues to emit smoke screens about nonexistent new weapons while the West remains a military vacuum." Mr. Alsop's misunderstanding, which is a serious one, rises from a failure to realize that while the new weapons are "nonexistent" so also nonexistent are the "40 powerful, thoroughly modern divisions" which he thinks will be enough.

THE FACT is that it will take four or five years to arm western Europe in the old military style—that is to say of 1945—and it will also take four or five years to arm it in the new style, which Dr. Bush and General Collins and others are talking about. The practical question is whether to invest in the newer weapons with all their far-reaching tactical, strategical, and diplomatic consequences, or to adhere to the ideas and doctrines of 1945.

When, after some authorized and calculated leaks, General Collins made his remarks about the new weapons it was a signal that within the Pentagon the military progressives, the proponents of the new military styles are ready, having satisfied themselves that their position is technically sound, for the great debate with the military conservatives.

The military conservatives are the soldiers, sailors and airmen who believe in armed forces that are stronger, faster, fiercer than those we had in 1945 but are nevertheless essentially the same. The military progressives believe that the third world war, if it comes, will not begin where the second left off, and that a sound military policy will call for changes in the training of men and in the investment of military capital, in the development of new weapons, in tactics and in strategy at least as radical as that caused by the development of the submarine, the long-range bomber, and the armored divisions.

THERE ARE many indications, and perhaps some direct intelligence, that the Kremlin have been making their military and diplomatic arrangements for some sort of showdown around about 1953 or thereafter. What we think we know about their military preparations does not suggest that they have any intention of starting a world war for the military conquest of the world. Their chief antagonist in a world war would be the United States, and there is nothing to indicate, unless the available information is totally false, that they have or will have by 1953 the weapons and the forces to knock out or even to neutralize the United States. Jet fighters, tanks, armored divisions, submarines, radar nets, airfields in eastern Europe, and B-29 strategic bombers do not look like preparations to make war against the United States. But unless the Soviet Union is prepared to make war against the United States, it cannot make war at all.

What the military preparations do suggest is that the Soviet Union is working to make it impossible for the United States to make war successfully against it. If the Kremlin can achieve that, then they can use military pressure, not necessarily direct invasion, to accomplish their ends in Asia, the Middle East, in the Balkans, and elsewhere on the periphery without too great a risk of American intervention. It is, I believe, a reasonable assumption that we have staked so much on strategic airpower with atomic bombs, that the main military preoccupation of the Kremlin is to make the Soviet Union invulnerable to our chief instrument of military power.

THE NEW weapons, particularly the new atomic weapons which do not depend on the big bombers to deliver them, would not only strengthen the defense against the general pressure of Soviet power, they would also tend to make eastern Europe and the frontiers of the Soviet Union more difficult to defend.

Thus, though the race of armaments will go on, it may evolve into a race for invulnerability rather than, as it is in the minds of so many, a competition for the means of extermination. In this way the evolution of military thought and technology may bring about that condition of coexistence without war, which in the last analysis is the only possible alternative to the ruin of what is left of civilization.

'Amerasia' Case

By Marquis Childs

Clean Bill For State Department

POLICY-MAKERS in the Department of State are working on the outline of a statement aimed at putting a period to the McCarthy affair. It may wind up as the main theme of one of the series of speeches Secretary Acheson is making this month.

Childs

The objective is to sum up the situation to date. It will state:

1. That not one of the charges leveled at the department has been substantiated by documentary or other proof.

2. That both top officials and subordinates have spent hundreds of man hours presenting the facts to refute the charges.

3. That this has seriously hampered the department in doing its job, and that the time has now come to get down to the business of waging peace, ignoring any further distractions; assuming that all except those who prefer for political or partisan reasons to believe the charges have had ample chance to be convinced of their untruth.

Several developments indicate that this decision is, if anything, overdue. One was the action of the Federal Grand Jury in New York in failing to find any Government department blameworthy in the handling of the Amerasia case.

A second development is the forthcoming report of a State Department loyalty board in the case of John S. Service, the foreign service officer who was one of those originally arrested on the Amerasia charges. This will be the fourth time a board has considered every detail of Service's career and record, and the expectation is that he will be cleared again.

IN ADDITION, department officials have gone into every aspect of the Amerasia case. They have conferred at length with the lawyers in the Department of Justice, who originally handled the case.

One of those on whom the heaviest burden has fallen is Deputy Undersecretary John J. Peurifoy. Peurifoy is a genial, likable South Carolinian, who supplies a quality that the State Department has always badly needed.

That is the ability to get along with Congress. Entirely devoid of department starchiness, Peurifoy can meet with Senators and Representatives on their own ground.

Evidence of this is the determination of the Senate Appropriations Committee to attach an almost unprecedented rider to the appropriations bill, specifying that Peurifoy shall receive $17,500 a year instead of $15,000, to which his rank entitles him. Another piece of evidence came when Senator McCarthy directly attacked Peurifoy. One of the first Senators to defend him was Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Throughout, Peurifoy has kept his perspective and his native good humor. I have never seen any inclination on Peurifoy's part to "whitewash" any individual in the State Department named by McCarthy. Quite apart from the honesty of such an approach, from the viewpoint of strategy, any effort at whitewash would be a mistake.

ON THE other hand Peurifoy has all along been determined not to yield to political pressure or hysteria, but to maintain the procedures intended to purge the Government of Communists and fellow travelers, while at the same time safeguarding the basic rights of the individual. He has frankly recognized, too, the origins of the Amerasia case.

It came out of a conflict of policy between two factions fighting over our China policy. On the one hand was Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, our then Ambassador to Chungking. Opposing him were Gen. Joseph Stilwell, head of the military mission to Chiang Kai-shek, and later Gen. George C. Marshall.

The Senate Investigating Committee is to hear Hurley. At the same time the committee should call Gen. William J. Donovan, head of the wartime Office of Strategic Services, who has privately given his views on the loyalty aspects of the Amerasia case to the State Department.

In all the smoke of charge and counter-charge, smear and counter-smear, one important aspect of the New York grand jury's presentment has been almost entirely overlooked. That was a statement on the need for tightening security procedures. Two months ago it was pointed out that the Senate had ignored recommendations of the Department of Justice, some of them made two years ago, to close loopholes in present security laws. Some people are apparently more interested in bringing the past to trial than they are in trying to insure peace and security in the present.

Senate Leadership Backs Cain On D. C. Rent Control Extension

Senate Administration leadership last night swung behind a proposal by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) to extend Washington rent control to the end of this year, leaving authority for an additional six months' regulation to the District Commissioners.

Cain proposed his plan as a substitute for the bill which has been cleared by House and Senate District committees. The committees' bills continue the District Rent Act to January 31, 1951, leaving it up to Congress to decide next January on a further extension.

Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), Senate majority leader, said he saw no objection to the Cain plan, and stated it might come up for Senate action today.

Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), Senate District chairman, indicated he was willing to go along with Cain's proposal, but wants first to clear it with members of the Senate District Committee, which passed on the seven-month extension bill.

Chairman Neely said the important thing to him is not to let District rent control die at the end of this month. The present law ends June 30.

Senator Cain, formerly a member of the District Committee, said he opposes a seven-month extension of District control, both because he wants the matter out of the hands of Congress after this year, and because he feels leaving it to the Commissioners to decide if controls are to continue after this year would be a "home rule note."

Cain said his plan was drafted, at his request, by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West. He indicated that the formula would constitute a proper arrangement for delegating authority to the Commissioners. In effect, it would impose rent controls by act of Congress throughout the next 12 months—but for the final six months of the period, the controls would operate only if the Commissioners decided housing shortages were such as to justify extension of controls.

Cain said he had every confidence that the Commissioners would make a decision to drop or continue controls only after public hearings.

To such hearings, Cain served notice, he will go as a citizen of the District to oppose the continuing of rent controls beyond December 31, 1950.

Cain's plan is modeled on the national measure for continuing Federal controls through the end of this year, and leaving it to communities to decide by local option if their own controls are to be retained to June 30, 1951. His plan is also like one that Senator Neely had proposed for the District during discussion of the national rent control bill.

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee which handled the national rent bill, said he was not ready to support Cain's plan for the District, but would back the 7-month extension proposed by his fellow South Carolinian, Chairman John L. McMillan of the House District Committee. The bills cleared by McMillan's and Neely's committee are identical.

Senate to Act on Excise Cut

body it hasn't yet reached the "party policy" stage, and some leading GOP Senators are still mum on the corporate tax issue.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) for example declined flatly to discuss the proposed corporate tax increase. He said he wanted to study it more, and wouldn't have any comment "for at least a month."

Wherry Opposes Increase

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) said the proposed increase on corporations is "debatable" but that he personally is opposed to any increase in taxes. Improved business resulting from an excise tax cut would make up much of the lost revenue, he said.

"We are going to insist that the Senate pass some kind of tax bill," Wherry said. "If we don't like the bill, we will do our best on the floor to amend it. Certainly an amendment will be offered restoring Tariff Commission authority to recommend 'peril points' on tariff cutting."

Senate Majority Leader Lucas meantime referred all questions on Senate handling of the tax bill to Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.).

George told newsmen his finance committee will open hearings the week following House passage. Senate hearings may run from 10 days to two weeks, he said, and in no event can the committee complete the bill before the latter part of July. George estimated it would take the Senate "well into August" to pass the tax measure.

The Georgian declined to make any commitment as yet on the proposed corporate tax increase, however. He said he personally would prefer not to increase any tax rates but wants to analyze the House bill before he makes up his mind.

"The desire to adjourn may control a lot of Senators who wouldn't otherwise go along with that kind of a bill," he told reporters.

Haspel Refreshables have a new look this season

It's hard to see how Haspel Refreshable Clothes could be improved . . . but they have been. The cotton cords are now woven with maximum crease-resistance. An entirely new, patented blend of nylon, cotton, and rayon has been used for Haspel's Sir Preme suits. Haspel's are still the lightest, coolest of all hot weather suits, and are still completely washable. Lewis & Thos. Saltz show them now in great variety.

Haspel Cotton Cords—cooler and crisper than ever, and crease-resistant to keep their shape on the hottest days $18.75

Haspel Sir Preme—with a high content of nylon specially treated for perfect blending with cotton and rayon. Corded stripes and smart plaids $25.50

One on the Aisle—

Contrivances Mar An Earnest Story

By Richard L. Coe

"JOHNNY HOLIDAY," at Keith's, is an earnest little picture about an Indiana school for delinquent boys.

It was filmed at the Indiana Boys School at Plainfield and produced by Ronald W. Alcorn, who spent his formative years there and later rose to considerable riches via the wheat fields of South America. Now a wealthy man—he's only 30—Alcorn made the picture to show what a fine influence such an institution can be.

As with most such well-intentioned films, there are too many moments of contrived dramatics in "Johnny Holiday." Though Alcorn wrote the story (which three others turned into a screen play), he's embodied too many illogical events for the sake of his story to be convincing.

Newcomer Allen Martin plays a youngster left to his own devices in a poor part of town by the illness of his widowed mother. He falls under the spell of a teenage gang boss and takes the rap for a robbery he didn't do. A tough case, he's pulled into the spirit of the place by the boss of the farm stables, played by William Bendix. The boy takes to one horse in particular, it takes to him and the school authorities understandingly contrive the lad's improvement.

However, his old thug buddy pops up at the school and the boy is torn between his two influences. In a melodramatic finale, he makes his decision.

All that is to the good, but, in propelling the yarn, the judgment of the school authorities is ignored. Surely Bendix would have briefed the boy on how the beloved mare will have her colt and surely the background of the boy and the thug, which Bendix knows, would have warned the authorities to keep the boys well apart.

There is, then, a sugary, pat air about "Johnny Holiday" which detracts from its purpose. The actual setting of the school has been helpful and the boys of the school give a natural appearance to the sequences. Hoagy Carmichael makes a brief visit to the school for Christmas and the states governor, Henry F. Schricker, is on hand to review a parade.

"JOHNNY HOLIDAY" United Artists release produced by Ronnie W. Alcorn. Story by Alcorn. Screen play by Jack Andrews, Willis Goldbeck and Frederick Stephani. Music by Franz Waxman. Filmed at the Indiana Boys School. Photographed by Hal Mohr. Directed by Willis Goldbeck. At Keith's.

LISA GARDINER is pretty joyful about saying "bon voyage" soon to two of her graduates, Liane Plane and Jacqueline Williams . . . Both girls will be off to Europe next month as members of the two major American ballet companies to be dancing this summer in Europe. . . . Both had all their training at the Washington School of the Ballet, under Miss Gardner's and Mary Day's direction, and they are old friends and mutually happy . . . Liane will be dancing with Ballet Theater, which tour, including the Edinburgh Festival, has the cooperation of the State Department's cultural division; Liane will be getting as far north as Copenhagen, as far east as Cairo . . . Jacqueline, who had a chance with the Ballet Russe, joined the New York City Ballet company, which had a mighty successful spring season, and is to sail July 5 for engagements in London and Paris.

MARION VENABLE is pleased, too, since one of her girls, Jenny Workman, will be in the Ballet Theater company . . . Before sailing July 15, Jenny and Liane will be dancing in Canada, with a final New York appearance at the Lewisohn Stadium's ballet night.

ROBERT WARK, of Olney's "Caesar and Cleopatra" cast, calls this reviewer's attention to the fact that when Caesar calls Britannus "Britannicus," it's at Shaw's behest in Act II, "this magniloquent version of his secretary's name is one of Caesar's jokes. In later years it would have meant 'Conqueror of Britain'." . . . Right he is, but I do seem to remember hearing the magniloquent version also from a voice other than Francis Compton's . . . Albeit, to Wark and associates, apologies, but I did probe my copy without success until their note on Act II . . . Miss Goddard's Olney allure has prompted two more bookings after the two Cape Cod weeks, at Westport and Princeton . . . Saturday night the costumes leave for the Cape by truck.

TRYOUTS for the Cross Roads Theater production of "Rain" will be held Sunday afternoon from 3 o'clock on . . . Director Cecil Willis says that people from 13 to 113 have all yearned to him that they want to play Sadie Thompson or the Reverend Davidson. . . . "We'll have the scripts," he promises. "Don't bring your own".

"IL TROVATORE" concludes its run today at the Plaza and it's also the night's bill at the Watergate far the San Carlo company. . . . Gertrude Ribla, whom Mr. Hume was praising for her "Aida," will be Leonora. . . . The Plaza's new bill starting tomorrow will be a French version of "Gigi," by France's great, fabulous favorite, Colette.

A VERSE signed by his 1½-year-old son, Jeffry, brings a bright New York "South Pacific" weekend to John Hand, 6230 Allentown rd. se., and his wife . . . The Hands' three sons, masterminded by 7-year-old Jackie, won the Hecht Co.'s "My Dad Is Tops" contest, two "South Pacific" seats and a stay at the St. Moritz overlooking Central Park . . . Jimmy, Jeffry and Jackie put it like this:

"He does so many things for the three of us boys,
Reads us stories and repairs our toys.
When Mother's away to her club meetings at night,
He gives us our baths and tucks us in tight."

Second prize-winner is Mrs. Stephen T. Kasper, the eldest of nine children, who paid tribute to her father for "growing with his nine children" and making "going home a happy adventure for all of us, our husbands and our children." And third prize goes to Billy Moser, 6, of 4811 S. 30th st., Arlington, whose Agriculture Department Dad will take him to Gotham.

CAPITOL SET—Hollywood set up shop on the steps of the Capitol yesterday to record a scene for the film, "The Magnificent Yankee." Director John Sturges' camera crew shoots Eduard Franz, in the role of Justice Brandeis, talking to reporters as he leaves the Capitol

Movie Director Finds Actor Had Real-Life Experience

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

"And I was telling him how to be a reporter."

So spoke John Sturges, director of the film, "The Magnificent Yankee," after learning that one of his movie newsmen was a longtime Associated Press man.

Sturges, surrounded by a camera crew and many other supernumeraries necessary to make a Hollywood epic, was perched on the steps of the Capitol as six 1916 reporters dashed after Justice Louis Brandeis for a statement.

They caught the justice as he descended, blocking him from his Packard, and four eager newsmen (including Vern Haughland, vacationing APite) chased him down the steps to the car, forming another block there. Then the four got together as the car departed, probably to check each other's notes.

Haugland, a newspaperman for 19 of his 42 years, was up and down "those stairs a hundred times," his wife, also an extra in the film, said last night. "He said he never worked such a day in his life."

Reporting was about the same then as now. Haughland had his pen and pencil and kept trying to squeeze out some juicy quotes, but the attire—that was different. He wore a high starched collar, heavy wool suit, handlebar mustache and a derby for the film—not the usual thing on his Interior Department beat.

The Hollywood group gained one advantage from his participation. Haugland won't be criticizing the way newspapermen are portrayed on the screen.

He got into the film production because his wife, Tesson and 3½-year-old daughter, Taya, were extras in the Washington scenes. Being on vacation, he decided to pick up the $10-a-day pay, too.

Some of the other movie newsmen had some newspaper backgrounds. Charles Alldredge and Leonard Hamilton are former newspapermen now in public relations and Frank W. Greene, jr., is a copy boy at the Washington Times-Herald. The other reporter-actors were George Sinclair, retired Navy man, and Harry Talbott, interior decorator.

The only professional actor in the scene was Eduard Franz, who plays Brandeis. Later he joined Louis Calhern, who plays Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, in a scene along the Tidal Basin. The pair strolled down a path, arguing about a case.

New Optimism Is Replacing Pessimism in U. S., Believes Catholic Bishop-Elect McCormick

"There is new optimism replacing the pessimistic attitude in this country," the Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, newly appointed auxiliary to the Archbishop of Washington, believes.

The 59-year-old rector of Catholic University also said yesterday that education has much to do with "things looking up."

Early in September, soft-spoken Monsignor McCormick will be elevated to the bishopric at ceremonies in the Immaculate Conception Catholic University, where he has the distinction of being the first alumnus to become rector.

"My original and first assignment will be with the university," he explained. "Whatever duties I will be expected to perform in my new capacity will come from the Archbishop. These probably will include officiating at church functions, pontifical masses, ordinations, confirmations, dedications of schools, churches and institutions."

Asked if the new appointment indicated a definite growth in the Archdiocese of Washington, he said:

"One conclusion definitely to be drawn is that the diocese is expanding. Just look at your new developments, and there's the answer—New homes—new parishes."

Although all the rectors of Catholic U., with the exception of Bishop John Keane were elevated after heading the university, to Msgr. McCormick his advancement was a real surprise."

"There is nothing in church procedure which designates that the rectors should be Bishops" he stated in explanation.

Being named Auxiliary to Archbishop O'Boyle makes the new prelate af official of the Washington Diocese, by transfer from his home diocese of Hartford, Conn.

Msgr. McCormick, of Irish descent, was born in Norwich, Conn. He has two brothers, and a sister who probably will come to the consecration ceremonies. A nephew, John McCormick, is a student at Catholic University.

Msgr. McCormick is proud of the fact that since he came to Catholic University as a teacher the university has doubled its enrollment.

Guill, Texas, Placed On Agriculture Group

Representative Guill, Texas' new and lone Republican Congressman, was elected yesterday to the House Agriculture Committee.

He took the place of Cotton (R., N. H.), who quit after being promised a place on the Appropriations Committee.

to influence elections, participate in political management or political campaigns.

Sharp dispute over the relaxing of penalties was stirred up before the bill passed, and led to a split almost entirely along party lines in the final rollcall. Democrats supported the measure, and with only a few exceptions, Republicans opposed it.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) who attacked the bill at length last week, predicted a Presidential veto, withdrew both his opposition and his prediction. He said he had been satisfied by the Civil Service Commission that the bill was drawn so as to safeguard confidential personnel files from a congressional "fishing expedition." He said he now feels the President will sign the bill.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) launched a final attack in the Senate on the provision for letting the Civil Service Commission by unanimous vote fix penalties as low as 30 days' suspension without pay for violating some provisions of the Hatch Act.

Taft said the party for whom the employe worked probably would pay his salary for 30 days of suspension from his job. The effect, he said, was to leave no penalty at all, except a "wishy-washy slap on the wrist" for violating the key provision of the Hatch Act.

Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) and Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kans.), who helped prepare the compromise bill in conference, joined in urging approval. Stennis presented a Civil Service Commission letter saying that under the bill, removal from office would continue to be the penalty for violations covered by the bill, unless the unanimous vote of the three commissioners fixed a lower penalty.

Senators Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) joined in urging approval of the bill for its effect on the local politics of communities in nearby areas.

Senator Byrd said the existing Civil Service Commission ban on local party politics is "manifestly unfair."

"One of the foundation stones of our representative democracy is the party system," Byrd added.

Hotel Incomes In 1949 Reach Five-Year Low

By S. Oliver Goodman

The hotel industry showed a continued decline in net earnings and occupancy rate last year, according to a study released yesterday.

Horwath & Horwath, accountants, said in its annual survey that 100 hotels in 52 cities realized only 5.26 percent on property value in 1949 compared with 7.01 percent in 1948 and 7.70 percent in 1947. The peak for net earnings in the past decade was 8.22 percent in 1944.

Occupancy last year dropped to 82 percent from 86 percent in 1948. The highest occupancy rate in recent years was 93 percent in 1946.

"Although the trend of occupancy has been downward during the past four years," the survey pointed out, "upward adjustments of rates have helped to maintain the sales volume. Room sales last year decreased 1 percent compared with 1948. Since it does not seem practical to continue rate increases, hotels now are faced with the serious problem of paring down expenses in order to maintain a reasonable level of earnings."

One of the largest expense items is payroll and this has been mounting steadily, Horwath & Horwath said. In hotels last year the payroll ratio to total sales rose 35.6 per cent, the highest ratio in 17 years.

Salaries and wages in the past five years have risen relatively more sharply in hotel restaurants than in rooms departments.

Hotels still are spending large sums for renovation and improvement. Last year the average hotel in the Horwath study made major improvements costing $138 per available room. In 1948 the comparable figure was $146; in 1947 it was $114 and in 1946 it was $71.

HONOR: The Posner Agency of Columbus Mutual Life Insurance Co. will be honored at a banquet Tuesday night in the Mayflower. Although the local agency was only established on April 1, its production during April and May placed it second highest among the Ohio firm's agencies. Carl Mitcheltree, president of Columbus Mutual, will be the principal speaker at the fete.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Capt. Howard T. Orville, one of the Nation's foremost weather authorities, will retire July 1 from the Navy to become director of engineering for the Friez instrument division of Bendix Aviation Corp. in Baltimore. Capt. Orville lives at 6232 23d st. N., Arlington, Va. . . . Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, won seventh place in the national Stevenson Trophy contest among 103 chapters . . . Milton C. Kerschner is the new president of the Washington Claim Men's Association . . . George E. Mack has been elected executive vice president of J. C. Penny Co.

Capt. Orville

IMPROVEMENT: President Walter J. Touhy said yesterday in a letter to Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's stockholders the road's business probably would continue satisfactory for the balance of 1950. Results of the C. & O.'s operations in June are expected to come close to results in May, Tuohy said. He reported C. & O.'s net income in May was equal to 57 cents a common share, compared with 51 cents in May, 1949. For the first five months of the year, he added, the railroad earned $1.15 a share, against $1.69 in the like period of 1949.

DIVIDENDS: National Bank of Washington voted usual semi-annual dividend of $3 a share, payable July 3/June 28 . . . Bank of Commerce & Savings declared special dividend of $1 a share in addition to regular quarterly dividend of $2.50, payable June 30/June 20 . . . Second National Bank voted usual quarterly dividend of $1 a share, payable June 30/June 20 . . . Suburban National Bank declared semi-annual dividend of 60 cents a share, payable June 30/June 20, thereby placing stock on 12 percent annual rate vs. 10 percent previously.

NEW MEMBERS: A. Stanley Wolfe of Riggs National Bank and Miss Mary Ann Wright of Lincoln National Bank are the newly elected members of the executive council of the Safe Deposit Section of the D. C. Bankers Association. Claude Miller, American Security & Trust Co., was installed as section chairman at the annual dinner meeting Tuesday night in the Mayflower. Guest speaker was Shane MacCarthy, author and political scientist, who pointed out that of 200 million residents of the Soviet only 6 million are members of the Communist party and rule the country. He emphasized figures showing a dwindling vote in the United States and urged that "we do not default on our privilege of electing our leaders . . ."

Senators Restore $5 Million for D. C.

Close to five million dollars in additions to the House-approved District budget were recommended yesterday by a Senate District Subcommittee.

Details were not disclosed, but members said the subcommittee approved:

1. Funds to start the East Capitol st. bridge over the Anacostia River. About two million was sought by District officials for the 12 million dollar bridge in the first year of construction.

2. A two-million-dollar increase in money for expanding the Washington water supply system, including the first loan of a 23-million-dollar borrowing program authorized recently by Congress over a 10-year period.

3. A $245,000 additional amount for District payments to private Washington hospitals for the care of indigent patients. The House cut the fund from $745,000 to $500,000. The subcommittee action erases the House cut.

4. An increase of $500,000 in sewer construction, half of the amount cut from this program by the House.

The bill, as revised by the District subcommittee headed by Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) will be revised next by the full Senate Appriations Committee.

The full committee yesterday approved and sent to the Senate floor the deficiency bill, including $6,638,400 to cover this year's costs of last year's District employe pay increases, and $520,712.94 in other District funds.

The second figure includes $160,000 added by the Senate group for the cost of the teachers' sick leave bill, $1912 for salaries of two Municipal Court judges secreteries, and $6318 for furnishing judges chambers and secretaries offices in Municipal Court.

Other House-approved District funds were unchanged by the Senate committee action.

Falls Church Tells of Its School Plans

The City of Falls Church plans to add 49 classrooms to existing school facilities if it is successful in its annexation suit against Fairfax County, a three-judge Annexation Court was told yesterday.

The city is seeking to acquire 10.75 square miles of Fairfax County territory to the south, east and west of the present city limits.

Testifying in the third day of the suit, School Superintendent Irvin Schmitt told the Annexation Court the city already has planned new school facilities sufficient to meet increased demands if the annexation is approved. He said the school additions would give the new city a total of 123 classrooms.

Schmitt testified briefly after Harlan Bartholomew, St. Louis planning consultant, took most of the day in an explanation of charts and maps of the annexation area. Testimony so far has been devoted principally to familiarizing the judges with the area involved in the suit.

Schmitt is slated to testify again when the trial resumes today at 10 a. m.

Va. Wins First Round In $500,000 Grants

By The Associated Press

Virginia has won the first round in a suit involving gifts of about $250,000 each to Virginia Military Institute and the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary at Alexandria.

The State was held to be immune to suit in any other than the Circuit Court at Richmond, in an opinion handed down Tuesday by Judge Burnita Shelton Matthews of the United States District Court here. Judge Matthews dismissed the suit as to VMI.

The money is claimed by Mrs. Agra B. Williams, Pittsburgh, a niece of the late Miss Mary E. Maxwell of Washington, who willed it to VMI and the seminary. The plaintiff contended the State-controlled VMI and the seminary cannot take the money under Virginia State laws.

Special Plane Planned for Agriculture

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Civil Aeronautics Administration yesterday listed the airplane as a farm implement, along with plows, tractors, combines and hoes.

The announcement revealed that CAA has contracted with the Texas Agriculture and Mechanical College System to design and build a special agricultural plane. Jointly sponsoring the project are the National Flying Farmers, the Department of Agriculture, Texas A and M and CAA. Thereafter, the plans will be furnished at cost to anyone wanting an airplane for his farm.

CAA said a recent survey disclosed there are 75 different civilian uses for aircraft besides carrying passengers and cargo, all but a dozen in agriculture. Agricultural uses include:

1. Shooting coyotes on western range lands.
2. Seeding lakes with fish.
3. Farm mapping.

'Copters Help Cherry Crops

4. The use of helicopters to blow moisture off cherries "at a certain stage when the combination of the moisture and hot sun would crack the cherry skin."
5. Dusting fields with 2, 4-D to kill weeds. (2, 4-D, the report by CAA reveals, was developed in Maritime by the Army Chemical Service to destroy enemy crops, "especially the rice crop in Japan. Fortunately," CAA continues, "2, 4-D will kill broad-leaved plants like most weeds, but will not harm grasses such as rice, the common grains, sugar cane, etc.")
6. Dusting with a chemical that defoliates plants. This is a great aid in cotton picking by machinery. The leaves fall off and simplifies the work for the picker. It helps the hand picker, too.
7. Last year hundreds of thousands of acres of corn in Illinois and Iowa were treated by air to control the corn borer. "This particular pest offers quite a challenge," CAA said. "He gets himself born and starts eating very fast. He stays outdoors a very short time. After that, he is safely inside a juicy cornstalk where no spray can reach him. He has to be hit at exactly the right time. The airplane is the most effective tool for this job."

Spotting Schools of Fish

The list of agricultural uses goes on and on. The list of industrial uses is shorter, and not as important. It includes spotting schools of fish for commercial fishermen, sky-writing and other aerial advertising, patrolling pipelines and power lines, etc.

Some citrus fruit growers in Florida, Arizona and California use airplane propellors to blow frost off their trees on cold nights. The Forest Service, another agricultural agency, uses airplanes for fire spotting. The Soil Conservation Service goes to air for farm planning. Reclamation uses them for flood control.

The airplane has been used in Agriculture since 1920, says CAA. It was first used to dust cotton to kill the boll weevil.

CAA has issued a safety manual for flying farmers, entitled Protection of Pilots Against the Potential Hazard of Poisoning by Agricultural Chemicals. It is sponsoring meetings in farm areas to discuss the dangers involved. It is preparing a Duster Handbook for use by pilots who specialize in dusting crops. It is preparing a booklet on how to convert an ordinary airplane to farm use, how best to fly in the various occupations. It also has written a Code of Ethics of farm pilots.

Cheaper Pork Seen by Fall; Pigs Up 3 Pct.

Pork should be cheaper this fall, the Agriculture Department indicated yesterday.

The reason was contained in the annual forecast of this spring's little pig crop. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimated 60 million spring pigs will grow into hogs by fall. This is 3 percent greater than last year's 58.4 million. It is the biggest crop of spring pigs ever raised in peace time, but quite a distance behind the 74.2 of the war year 1943.

The estimate on next fall's pork came shortly after BAE forecast more cattle will be slaughtered for beef this winter than in the winter just past.

Together, the two reports add up to more meat this winter.

Wynn Holds Yanks to 4 Hits, Tribe Triumphs, 5-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, June 21.—Detroit, which always was the best baseball town in the majors, Brooklyn's reputation notwithstanding, now finds that the 54,000 seats in Briggs Stadium aren't enough what with the Yankees coming to town over the weekend.

The city is quite mad about its Tigers who took over the league lead last week, and you can't buy a ticket to any of the Yankee games Friday night, Saturday or the double-header on Sunday. In those three days, the Tigers will draw 160,000 or about 60 percent of what the St. Louis Browns will draw at home all season.

POVICH

The Detroit folks are properly excited about their Tigers who started the season as third choice behind the Red Sox and Yankees, and during the last fortnight caught the Yanks and gained nine full games on Boston.

Manager Red Rolfe is saying very little at this point. He knows that it is thinnish ice he's skating on, with a woeful lack of reserve if his front-line men are hurt.

ROLFE AND THE Detroit people are rooting for George Kell to keep his good health. The Tigers have nobody on the bench as an adequate replacement for Kell at third base or Lipon at short or Gerry Priddy at second. And nobody in their minor league holdings who can qualify.

That flashy Tiger outfield of Hoot Evers, Johnny Groth and Vic Wertz is probably the league's best, but freedom from injury is a high demand there, too. The Tigers don't boast another outfielder who can carry the gloves of any of that trio.

Going for the Tigers, though, is the league's top pitching staff of Newhouser, Hutchinson, Gray, Houtteman, Trucks and Trout. Even with Newhouser out for the first month of the season, the Tigers stayed in striking distance of the league lead until Newhouser could pitch 'em into it with six wins in his first eight starts.

THE TIGERS are still laboring without a solid first baseman. Dick Kryhoski, the Yankee cast-off hasn't measured up, and Don Kolloway is a converted second-sacker. Even with that weakness, however, the Tigers have been looking like the best club in the league and when Trucks is rid of his sore arm they'll be tougher.

Rolfe will certainly qualify for the manager of the year label if he gets his Tigers down in front. All his moves are well calculated. He owns a portable typewriter, writes a voluminous report on both his players and the opposition after every game and files it for his own perusal later.

Thus it was that Rolfe willingly traded off a pitcher recently. He looked at his files and discovered that the fellow invariably walked the next batter after he had given up a hit. "To me, the evidence was conclusive that the fellow lacked heart and I didn't want to see any more of him," said Rolfe.

BILLY EVANS, who gets $60,000 for general managing the baseball interests of Owner Briggs, has declared that the Tigers are no longer interested in paying bonuses to school boys. On the Tigers' bench is a constant reminder of that folly.

He's 20-year-old Frank House, the kid catcher whom the Tigers paid $67,500 for signing a Detroit contract two years ago, plus two automobiles (one for his father). The Tigers used up their year's option on House with the Flint, Mich., team for whom he hit a mere .261. They can't send him out again, and he's spending the season in the bullpen.

"We can't take a chance on catching him while we're fighting for the pennant," said a Tiger spokesman. "That means he's learning nothing, and it hurts us on the player-limit. He's crowding off another player we might use. The bonus rule is hurting him and us. As long as it is in effect, we won't pay any fancy prices for any more kids."

Only Two Break Par In PGA Qualifying

Columbus, Ohio, June 21 (AP).—The professional golf brigade suffered one of its most serious setbacks today in the opening 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifier for the $40,000 mid-century PGA championship.

Scioto Country Club's old man par—he's 72—defeated all but six of the top-flight field of 129, and broke even with 13 others.

Melvin (Chick) Harbert, the Detroit slugger who hits home runs off the tees, and Marty Furgol of Albuquerque, N. Mex., a switch-hitter on the greens, paced the field with 70 strokes, two under par.

Harbert, 1947 finalist against Jim Ferrier, had four birdies, three of the par fives falling victim to his distance-eating shots. Furgol canned a 20-foot birdie putt on the seventeenth, and a four-footer for an eagle on 18, to match Harbert. Furgol, who has been "dilly-dallying" with a cross-handed grip on the greens, made both his big putts with the unorthodox grip.

Back of the leaders came four 71-scorers, one under par for the treacherous terrain, the quartet comprising Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., last year's finalist against Champion Sam Snead; Dick Metz, the curly-haired rancher from Arkansas City, Kan., Ellsworth Vines, the former tennis star from Los Angeles, and Veteran Al Watrous, 52-year-old Birmingham, Mich., star who was on the Ryder Cup team a score of years ago.

Two 18-hole match play, rounds are slated Friday, and then the survivors swing into 36-hole man-to-man play through Tuesday's finals.

Snead, after posting his 72, said he wasn't satisfied with his game and spent some time on the practice tees and greens.

Fazio, Worsham Have 74s, 2 Over Par

(Complete scores on Page 19)

Columbus, Ohio, June 21.—George Fazio of Woodmont Country Club, and Lew Worsham, Washington, D. C.'s two hopefuls in the P.G.A. qualifiers, today had identical 38-36—74 cards in the first round. They were two over par.

WHO'S ON THIRD?—Two players, and both of 'em are Dodgers. In typical Brooklyn fashion, Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo pulled this skull yesterday. Robinson returned to third after being caught in chase between third and home. Racing back to third, he found Carl Furillo on the bag. Both were tagged and Furillo was declared out. Brooklyn Coach Milton Stock (center) and Umpire Frank Dascoli round out the scene.

Page Fails Again, Giving Up 3 in 8th; Raschi Loser

Cleveland, June 21 (AP).—A ninth-inning home run by Bobby Brown deprived Early Wynn of a shutout today as the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Yankees, 5-1, before a crowd of 16,737.

Wynn allowed only four hits in gaining his fifth victory against four losses. He had a no-hitter until his mound opponent, Vic Raschi, singled with one out in the sixth inning.

The loss was Raschi's fourth against eight victories.

Raschi allowed only three hits before being removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning. New York was trailing, 2-0, at the time. Joe Page, relieving for the 20th time, was clubbed for three runs in the eighth through a walk, successive singles by Larry Doby, Al Rosen and Ray Boone, a two-run throwing error by Shortstop Phil Rizzuto and an infield out.

Wynn's tightest moment came in the New York eighth when he lost control and loaded the bases on passes to Gene Woodling and Pinch-hitters Bill Johnson and Johnny Mize. There was only one out but Joe DiMaggio bounced back to the mound for a pitcher-catcher first base double play to end the threat.

Pierce Fans Williams Twice, Beats Bosox, 3-1

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—Little Billy Pierce pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox today—yielding only seven hits. It was his fifth triumph.

Birdie Tebbetts' fourth inning double, Boston's only extra base hit of the game, accounted for the Red Sox' only run. Tebbetts' drive to deep center followed two of seven walks Pierce surrendered.

Pierce, a 23-year-old southpaw, struck out eight batters, getting Ted Williams twice. The second time Williams fanned was in the ninth inning after Billy Goodman walked with one out.

For the White Sox it was the sixteenth win in 27 games since manager Johnny Corriden was promoted to replace ousted Jack Onslow.

Coach Steve O'Neill and not Coach Earle Combs is directing the Red Sox with manager Joe McCarthy down with the flu.

Consuegra's Five-Hitter Beats Tigers

arm to fill the bases, Calvert moved in as the Tigers' pitcher. He walked Mele and forced a run in.

Sol Rogovin was the victim of a four-run assault by the Nats in the seventh. Stewart opened up with adouble to right, and Consuegra singled him home. After two walks filled the bases, Noren got solidly into the act with a three-run three-bagger to right field.

Consuegra's only rough inning was the fourth when the Tigers came up with two runs on Groth's double, a pair of walks and Lipon's double to center. Harris showed patience and left him in and the Cuban got rid of Priddy for the third out.

In the eighth, the Tigers loaded the bases against him with none out on a pair of singles and a walk, but Sandy limited the damage to one run. But with a 12-3 lead, he was coasting by that time.

There were boos for Consuegra in the ninth when he walked the hitless Kell for the second time to check that man's hitting streak, but Kell had his whacks at him previously only to fly out twice and line out once to Eddie Yost.

IN SHORT . . . Newhouser took a lifetime record of 28 wins over the Nats, 18 defeats, into today's game . . . after Chico Marrero's four-hit victory over the Tigers yesterday, today's Detroit News headlined in 60-point type:

"Los Tigres Son Mis Amigos' Dice Chico" ("The Tigers are my friends," says Chico) . . . Cass Michaels is on crutches after spraining his ankle last night and may be sent back to Washington. X-rays showed no fracture or bone chip, but he will be out for 10 days . . . the first six men in the Detroit batting order are hitting more than .300 and are rated more of a murderers row than the Red Sox . . . half of 'em are using the widely-popular Larry Doby model bat . . . Bob Kuzava, winner over Chicago in his last start, will pitch against the Tigers tomorrow probably with dizzy Trout as his rival.

Cincy Chases Newcombe, Beats Bums, 6-5

Brooklyn, June 21 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds snapped a couple of streaks today when they rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to come from behind and defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-5.

A base-clearing double by Peanuts Lowrey not only ended Brooklyn's five-game winning streak but put a halt to the Reds' seven-game losing skein.

Don Newcombe had a 5-3 lead going into the ninth and appeared on his way to his eighth triumph. Manager Burt Shotton yanked him, however, when he walked Bobby Adams, the first man to face him in the ninth. Newcombe had been tagged for two runs in the eighth and appeared to be tiring.

Jack Banta took over and walked Virgil Stallcup on four pitched balls. He threw two more to John Pramesa and was replaced by Clarence Podbielan. Pramesa walked to load the bases.

After Lloyd Merriman forced Adams at the plate, Lowrey came through with his three-run double.

Pirates Down Phils, 5-3, Beat Roberts

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—Fine relief pitching by Bill Werle and timely hitting by the Pirates in the sixth inning off Robin Roberts gave Pittsburgh a 5-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies tonight.

Rookie Bill MacDonald gained credit for the victory, his third of the season and the second over the Phils as Robin Roberts dropped his third in 11 decisions.

Tie for Lead

Cards Wallop Giants, 14-6

New York, June 21 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals ran up the biggest score against the Giants since opening day as they crushed the New Yorkers, 14-6, today to move into a first place tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Manager Eddie Dyer's Red Birds pounded five Giant pitchers for 17 hits with Rookie Bill Hoverton, Del Rice and Marty Marion collecting three hits apiece. The loss snapped a four-game Cardinal losing streak.

The Cards blows included only three extra base wallops, a double by Red Schoendienst and triples by Johnny Lindell and Rice. In their previous four games all of the Cards' runs came as a result of homers.

580 in AAU Nationals Here With 3-Team Fight for Title

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The entry list has soared to 580 for tomorrow and Saturday's National AAU championships at Maryland University, but the fight for team honors narrows down to three clubs.

Defending champion Los Angeles A. C., which appears to have the inside track, is sending a squad of 28, many of them from Southern California and Occidental College, one of the best small track schools in the Nation.

In the best challenging positions are Olympic A. C. of San Francisco, strong in the field events, and New York A. C., potent in the distance and weight events.

Spearheading the Olympic delegation will be Stanford's versatile Gay Bryan, who broad jumps better than 25 feet, high jumps better than 6 feet 5 inches, and runs the hurdles with the best in the Nation.

In the discus, Olympic relies on Fortune Gordien, the Minnesota alumnus, whose 188-foot heave is the best of the year and Otis Chandler will put the shot better than 56 feet. He ranks second only to Yale's Jim Fuchs.

And speaking of Fuchs, he'll be in there pitching for New York A. C. Helping him in the weights department will be Sam Felton and Henry Draper, in the hammer throw and 56-pound ball.

G-Man Fred Wilt is a double threat for the N.Y.A.C. in the 5000 nd 10,000 meter runs, both of which he won last year.

Los Angeles has balance and depth.

Dash Champ

Boyd Arrives For Big Meet

Big Bob Boyd, who became the N. C. A. A. 100-yard dash champion two months after he went out for college track, arrived in town yesterday for the National A. A. U. meet tomorrow and Saturday at the University of Maryland.

The Loyola of Los Angeles senior arrived in good company. With him were Lloyd LaBeach and Herb McKenley, 100- and 400- meter running stars.

The 6-foot, 1-inch, 208-pounder, who failed to make his high school track team at Riverside, Calif., decided four years later to give track another try.

Since May, he has beaten such standouts as LaBeach, Charlie Peters of Indiana, Paul Blenz of Tulane, Don Anderson of California and Charlie Parker of Texas, within a four-week stretch. In beating LaBeach in the Compton, Calif., meet, he ran 100 in 9.5.

A rank outsider at the N. C. A. A. games at University of Minnesota last week, he qualified with a 9.6 heat, and won the title in 9.8.

Marriage Forces Gehrmann Withdrawal

Matrimony won out over track with Don Gehrmann yesterday. The Wisconsin mile and half-mile star was forced to pass up the National AAU games tomorrow and Saturday at University of Maryland so he could complete plans for his marriage, which is set for next week.

DEAR FOLKS:

Jockey Benny Civitello, one-time Bowie sensation, is making a saddle comeback after two months away from the races. He quit the Bobanet Stable at Havre de Grace and now has joined forces with Trainer Tony Francis. Vanderbilt's Next Move will be seen in action here in the $22,500 Delaware Oaks on Saturday. Trainer Frank Gall is going to determine just how good is Justine Funkhouser's Noble Impulse. He's shipping the 4-year-old to New York for the Carter Handicap. Jockey Carson Kirk completed a 10-day suspension and is back in action. Pat Smithwick has joined the long list of disciplined jockeys here. The steeplechase rider dubbed, "Arcaro of the infield," was fined $100 for disobedience at the post before Tuesday's jumping event. The B. & O. is working on a Laurel race way stop for the race train.—BILL.

2-Year-Old Beats Out Iswas, Iliad

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Delaware Park, June 21.—Count Turf, a chip off the old block that is Count Fleet, showed some of the punch of his famous sire here today and won the $10,000 added Dover Stakes.

In the colors of Jack J. Maiel, the bay colt drove home a length and a half in front of Iswas with Iliad third, this pair comprising the Brookfield Farms Entry.

Count Turf operated in the role of a favorite and returned a $4.30 win mutuel to his backers in a crowd of 9000. The colt was clocked in 1:08 for the five and a half furlongs, the slowest time since the Dover has been at the present distance.

The day's hurdle event proved something of a farce. Mrs. Esther duPont Weir's The Mast was far out in front and apparently had the race locked up when he refused to stay on the course approaching the last jump.

With the leader eliminated, Justin Funkhouser's Spleen came through with a rush that carried him to victory at a $15.80 win mutuel.

The test brought a spill and a broken left collarbone to Jockey Mike Flynn. He was aboard Robert W. Grants' Cash and the 7-year-old was well placed when he tumbled over the last hurdle, barely missing rolling on the rider.

Ira Hanford Hunt

A flat race jockey, Ira Hanford, also was injured on the program. Hanford, who as an apprentice won the Kentucky Derby with Bold Venture, crashed on the track when Mrs. Larry MacPhail's Ballachuliss went down in the second event. He was taken to the Delaware Hospital where X-ray pictures showed a slight fracture of the left collarbone.

The day's secondary feature, the Monchanin Handicap, was won by Incline, owned by Joe Tucci of Washington, D. C. The 7-year-old paid $9.30.

Mighty Express Pulls Trot Upset

The $5000 Silver Spring Stakes, with seven Hambletonian candidates in the field of 11, resulted in an upset last night at Laurel Raceway as Mighty Express, from the powerful Octave Blake stable, and driven by Del Cameron, scored a nose victory over the favorite, Lawrence Sheppard's Star's Pride, before a crowd of 7500.

Coming with a burst of speed, Mighty Express returned the juisy mutual price of $45.40, $15.80, $10.80, with Star's pride, which broke twice, paying $5.00, 3.40. Wendall Wathen's Vic Song was third at $3.60.

Previously unbeaten Solicitor was upset by Chuck Volo in the feature division of the split $7500 Baltimore for 2-year-old pacers. Del Miller's ace broke at the start and wound up fourth. Direct Rhythm, a stablemate, won the other division.

Cameo Wins on 3-Hitter

Ed Gallaher, Gardner's 65 Wins Medal

Jim Gardner and Eddie Gallaher of the Washington Golf and Country Club posted a six-under-par best ball round of 65 yesterday to take the medal in the Congressional Country Club's member-guest tourney.

Gardner shot a 68 but his partner went him three better, sinking a long putt for a birdie on the last hole.

Second low scoring team in the 18-hole play was A. G. Dezendorf and Harold H. Hair, also of Washington, with a 67 best ball score.

The only other combination to finish under 70 was Chevy Chase's Harry Bachman and Bobby Brownell, 36-33-69.

Today's pairings:

1:30—Eddie Gallaher and Jim Gardner, Washington (65), vs. W. L. Shea and M. B. Swanson, Columbia (72).

1:36—T. K. Wheeler and Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase (70) vs. Elmer Jenkins and Paze Cornwell, Columbia (73).

1:42—Harry Bachman and Bobby Brownell, Chevy Chase (69) vs. J. D. Kendall and Bobby Morris, Prince Georges (73).

1:48—R. O. Wissmiger and Eddie Ault, Indian Spring (72) vs. E. P. Kavanaugh and Col. Tom Belshe, Burning Tree (74).

1:54—A. G. Dezendorf and H. H. Hair, Washington (67) vs. F. K. Smith and Walter Brill, Ridgewood, N. J. (73).

2:00—V. A. Johnson and Col. Jimmy Wilson, Army & Navy (71) vs. A. V. Holmes and George Thornton, Indian Spring (73).

2:12—C. P. Given and Dick Essex, Columbia (72) vs. J. M. Conroy and John Jankowski, Prince Georges (74).

GI Admits Killing Cabbie at Bolling Base

Carmody Hills dr., Carmody Hills, Md.

Police indicated a belief that the revolver was cached at the home of the youth's grandmother in Elmira, N. Y. Bolling officials said a plane will be sent to Elmira to pick up the murder weapon if it is there.

After dictating what police reported was a murder confession, the lanky (6 feet 3, 160 pounds) Reynolds posed briefly for news photographers, then was taken to police headquarters.

The suspect, dressed in green fatigues, and with a green fatigue cap clenched in his right hand, stared at the floor with a glazed expression of shock as he was protographed.

Before police took him from the base, they accompanied him to the place where Brown's body was found in his cab, and had the airman reenact the crime.

Authorities said this was the substance of the confession:

Reynolds hailed the cab about 2 a. m. near Base Operations at the north end of the base and asked to be taken to the "top of the hill," the Portland st. entrance to the base. There was an argument, base authorities said he confessed, and then a struggle when the airman charged the driver was going in the wrong direction. In the struggle, the airman struck the driver on the back of the head with the butt of his revolver, then shot him once in the back of the head, he was quoted as saying. The airman got out of the cab and fled.

The development in the killing was announced by Washington homicide detectives and Air Force investigators who have worked together on the mystery for nearly four weeks.

Two leads were instrumental in breaking the case, it was learned. The first came two days after the slaying when a green and white checkered sports shirt was found in a coal bin at the south end of the base by Detective Sergt. Grayson Chapman, of the Metropolitan Police, and Capt. Clifford Muller, Air Force special agent.

Analysis in the laboratory of the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed that lint found on Brown's clothes matched the fabric in the sports shirt.

The sports shirt was traced to Reynolds, who is a driver in the 11th Motor Vehicle Squadron at Bolling.

The second lead came on a tip that the suspect was known to possess a revolver.

Investigators learned from two airmen at Bolling that Reynolds had a revolver. Air Force personnel are not permitted to keep revolvers on the base without approval of their commanding officers.

Authorities at Bolling said Reynolds enlisted in the Air Force February 11, 1949, for a three-year hitch and until now had a good record except for one summary court-martial. He went AWOL for three days last December 30 and was fined $20 pay.

At the time of the arrest, police and Air Force investigators had questioned more than 4000 of the 5000 military and civilian personnel at the base.

Raynolds was one of those first questioned because he is stationed at the south end of base but he managed to avoid suspicion at that time.

A detail of 10 detectives had worked on the case at Bolling continuously since the slaying. Lieut. Richard Felber directed the day shift and Lieut. Jack Baker the night shift. They had set up a temporary homicide office at the base.

Ten men under Lieut. Col. Kirby M. Gillette, head of the Office of Special Investigation for the Air Force's Fourth District, headed a group of 10 Air Force investigators who worked in alliance with the Washington detectives.

After the confession was announced last night, Gillette declared:

"The District homicide squad is the best I ever saw operate, and that includes Scotland Yard."

Gillette worked with Scotland Yard for 13 months during World War II.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Brown, sr., of Carmody Hills, Md., parents of the murdered man, learned about the arrest from a reporter. They hurried to the Air Base to "see if we can be of any help to the authorities."

The family arrived after Reynolds had been removed to police headquarters. Informed the suspect was 18 years old, Mrs. Brown said, "Isn't it terrible!"

With the parents was their surviving child, Charles, 12.

"I'd like to talk to that man. I would," the dry-eyed, handsome mother declared.

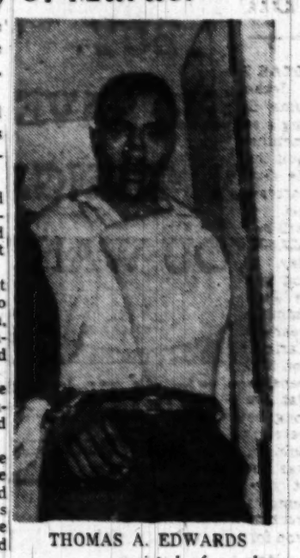
EDWARDS—From Pge. 1

Edwards Guilty of Murder



THOMAS A. EDWARDS
. . . convicted of murders

torneys, headed by former Judge William McWilliams of the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, appealed the case.

The Court of Appeals reversed the first conviction on grounds Edwards had been offered an improper inducement to confess.

The second trial resulted and went through seven days of testimony and argument. It was held before a two-judge court without a jury.

In final arguments, Assistant State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro described Edwards as a "mean, vicious, irreligious and irresponsible killer," who was deceitful and untruthful.

McWilliams declared the State had failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Edwards had committed the crimes.

Referring to a keystone of the State's case, an empty cartridge case fired from Edwards' pistol and found six days after the bodies were discovered at the spot, he suggested the "real killers" could have planted it.

Children at Playground Enjoy Games Under Shelter as Light Rains Fall

ACTRESSES—Carol Viner (left) and Judith Fiora were all set to star in a production by members of The Little Mothers Club. Dressed in costumes supplied by older sisters and mothers, the leading women sought shelter on the playground porch and waited patiently until the light showers stopped TOURNAMENT—For older playground habitues the annual checker tournament is a serious undertaking. The wet, damp day proved ideal for enforced checker playing in preparation for the event next week. Attending this session were (from left) Robert Alexander, Norma Holman, John Wilkinson, Bob Hesslar, Nancy D'Ambrosio and Peggy Perkins. The group didn't mind the chatter of the kibitzers

The Federal Diary
by Jerry Kluttz

Agreement Reached On Bill to Aid Former Employes of U S.

Senate-House conferees yesterday agreed on a bill to benefit the 100,000 Federal workers who retired prior to April 1, 1948. They voted to strike out the Williams amendment that would have had the effect of reducing pensions for many retirees.

The report would give the retired employes a 25 per cent boost in their annuities or $300, whichever is smaller, plus free survivorship benefits. They were given their choice of one of these benefits in the 1948 law that liberalized the civil service retirement system.

Congressional approval of the report is expected to be routine. The Administration, however, has withheld comment on the bill. Several top officials are reported to be opposed to it because of its cost.

UNION BOOST: The Administration yesterday indorsed the principle of a bill to open the way toward collective bargaining in Government.

Chairman Harry B. Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission, insisted, however, that any such procedure should be covered in an executive order instead of by legislation. He testified before a House Civil Service Subcommittee that is considering the "Little Wagner Act" for Federal workers by Representative Rhodes (D., Pa.).

The Rhodes bill would require Federal officials to negotiate with employe representatives on all types of working conditions, employe grievances, promotion policy, salaries, leave, etc. Officials who failed to negotiate would be penalized under the bill, a provision objected to by Mitchell.

The Civil Service official also criticized that provision to allow unions to collect dues and to solicit for members during working hours. Another bill considered at the same time would give Federal officials the right to suspend employes summarily up to 30 days without pay for serious offenses such as reporting to work drunk, stealing Federal property, etc.

The Rhodes bill was indorsed by the AFL employe leaders. NFFE President Luther C. Steward indorsed, in general, the views of Chairman Mitchell.

CAA: Civil Aeronautics asked the Senate Appropriations Committee for funds to hire 489 additional employes. It has a staff of 16,551 now. The House not only disallowed funds for new employes but made budget cuts that would force the firing of about 500 employes. A safe bet: the Senate committee won't give CAA all the money it has requested.

CAB: A firm of management engineers, Booz, Allen & Hamilton, has been retained to make an efficiency study of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

CAB was given a huge House cut. The House Appropriations Committee was hotly critical of CAB's internal operations. The agency has now brought in a firm to streamline its work.

P&MA: R. Douglas Smith, personnel director of Agriculture's big Production & Marketing Administration since the agency was created in 1945, is being promoted to be chief of the field supervisory staff of the transportation and warehousing branch. John T. Whalen has moved up to be acting personnel director.

CIVIL SERVICE: John F. Edwards, chairman of Civil Service's Board of Review and a fine public servant, is retiring at the end of this month.

Tyler Says Police Beat Him Into Confessing

Signed Statement Admitting Double Murder Is Read To D. C. Court Jury

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

William A. Tyler, jr., testified yesterday he was beaten, tortured, threatened, starved and hounded by prolonged questioning into confessing the Good Friday killing of two Lansburgh & Bro. watchmen.

Outwardly calm, the 18-year-old defendant looked over at the eight-woman, four-man District Court jury and said he was actually "nervous" because his life lay in their hands.

The Government may today rest its first-degree murder case on the sixth day of trial.

Confession Recounted

Tyler took the witness stand in an attempt by his lawyers to show that the confession was obtained by police through duress. The signed paper was buttressed by the testimony of two police officers, an Army captain and United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence that he orally admitted his guilt. Also, a store official testified later that Tyler re-enacted the crime in his presence.

Tyler, who was arrested for another offense, said that on May 6, at Police Headquarters, he was kept all day without food, drink or cigarettes until after he signed the confession. Also, he said he was not allowed to see his family who were waiting for him, and that he was threatened that they might be sent to jail for the crime.

Brutality Charged

But mainly, his testimony centered around a charge of police brutality. Without naming the officer, he said that handcuffs around his wrist were twisted until deep grooves formed and the pain became unbearable.

He accused Detective Sergt. Lawrence A. Hartnett of slapping him, hitting him on the head and forehead, and breaking a tooth by a blow in the mouth.

In addition, he declared that a crossfire of questions was given him until he was confused and dizzy.

"I was tired, sick and drowsy," he testified. "I didn't care what happened. I just took the chance. I just told them something to get

Mother Who Died in Jail Cell Was Not Drunk, Test Shows

Laboratory tests showed yesterday that a Washington woman who died in a Hyattsville jail cell June 16 after being arrested for drunkenness was not drunk at the time of her arrest.

Dr. John T. Maloney, Prince Georges County medical examiner, said this conclusion came from a spinal fluid analysis made by the State medical examiner's office. The report showed "absence of sufficient quantity of alcohol to indicate the woman was drunk at the time of her arrest," he said.

The dead woman was Mrs. Lillian H. Shoap, 38, mother of four children. She lived at 233 12th pl. ne. with her mother, Mrs. Rose Cook. She was divorced about five years ago.

The analysis also showed, Maloney said, that hemorrhaging from a cranial injury which caused the death could have started "hours or even weeks before her death". She was semiconscious when jailed, he recalled.

Mrs. Shoap was arrested June 16 by Pvt. David Dudley in Kenilworth on a call that two drunken persons were creating a disturbance. Booked for drunkenness, she was placed in a cell about 7:45 p. m. and found unconscious during a routine check at 11:30 p. m.

Maloney pronounced her dead soon afterward.

Meanwhile, county police are continuing their investigation into the circumstances surrounding the woman's injury.

A similar death in the District three years ago led to sweeping changes in the procedure for handling drunks after arrest.

The case which brought this about was the death of 59-year-old John Forrest Bunch in Gallinger Hospital on August 4, 1947. He died of a fractured skull six days after his arrest for drunkenness.

A coroner's jury ruled the death accidental, and a subsequent FBI investigation exonerated police of any blame in the death.

The procedure for handling drunks set up by Metropolitan police as an aftermath to the Bunch death includes the following steps in cases where arrests are made of unconscious or semiconscious persons:

A hospital examination to determine if the arrested person may be suffering from illness or injury; a "thorough" report by the arresting officer; a search of the prisoner's person for insulin "or any papers which might indicate the person is taking treatement for diabetes".

Provision also was made for hospital examination of any prisoner complaining of illness in a cell.

Rates Hiked On Medical Insurance

Individual Policies To Cost 20c More, Family 70c, for D. C. Service Plan

Subscribers to Washington's insurance plan against doctors' bills during hospitalization will have to pay 20 or 70 cents a month more, beginning in September, it was announced yesterday.

Participating doctors have been asked to take part payment on their future bills, with full payment promised when the fund has stabilized itself.

The twin developments in the 2-year-old Medical Service Plan of the District of Columbia were announced yesterday by Dr. Frank D. Costenbader, plan president.

Rate increases will be 20 cents for those now paying 80 cents a month on individual contracts, and 70 cents for family contracts now costing $2.

Thousands Affected

Affected will be 44,241 persons with individual policies, and 178,611 covered by family contracts. Participating physicians number 1326.

Just how deep a temporary cut the doctors were asked to take was not disclosed, but a spokesman for the insurance group said it should average between 30 and 40 percent of their usual fees.

The plan is sponsored by the District Medical Society and administered by Group Hospitalization, Inc., which enrolls Washington residents for protection against hospital bills. GHI's own hospitalization policies are unaffected by the medical insurance rate rise, it was emphasized.

Under the Medical Society insurance plan, subscribers are insured by prepayments against physicians' fees for surgical, obstetrical and other services given in the hospitals. Where the subscriber's income warrants, a doctor may charge the patient the difference between his regular fee and that allowed him from the insurance fund payment schedule.

$20,000 Monthly Deficits

Dr. Costenbader said operating deficits of about $20,000 monthly for the past three or four months necessitated both the rate rise and "pro rata" payments" to the participating physicians.

He blamed the deficits themselves on the medical insurance plan's rapid growth and "unexpectedly high" use of its services.

"Almost all Blue Shield Plans have found themselves in our present position after the first two or three years of operation, for each community presents its own special problem and a firm program has to be built on the experience gained in the early stages of the plan's operations," he stated.

Waiting Period Instituted

One early problem which contributed to the drain on plan finances, he said, was that subscribers were not required to wait for such elective operations as tonsilectomies and pelvic surgery. That has since been corrected, he pointed out, by requiring a "waiting period" of ten months before such operations are covered by the plan.

The medical service insurance plan also pays on the bills for such services as X-rays, laboratory tests and anesthesia. In many other cities, Dr. Costenbader said, such services are considered a part of the hospitalization insurance program, not the medical service insurance program.

Dr. Costenbader stressed that though the recent monthly operating deficits represent real deficits they don't mean that the plan is showing an actual deficit. It just means, he said, that the fund has been forced to dip into its reserve funds.

"After two years, we have the experience and information we need to place Medical Service on a sound financial basis," he said.

Humidity and Spatters Mark Official Arrival of Summer

The season of the year in any region in which the sun shines most directly there; the warmest period of the year . . .
—Webster.

The sun didn't shine directly, and it didn't rain to speak of. The day wasn't unusually warm but it was humid enough.

Summer — "considered," says Webster's, "to begin with the summer solstice, about June 21"—arrived in damp Washington precisely and officially at 7:37 p. m.

This fact moved absolutely nobody to hire brass bands, not even the Weather Bureau.

"Summer," sniffed Forecaster W. P. Day, "begins in Washington early in the month of June. At this point, we merely consider June 21 as the 'official' summer, as an astronomical fact . . .

"It will really get hot," Day prophesied firmly, "in July and August."

Along with this lack of enthusiasm for summer's entrance, yesterday— as the last day of "official" spring—was one of those motorist-harassing days.

There was just enough threat of rain to send car owners to their parking places to roll up the windows.

Kids got no pleasure out of it, either. At the playgrounds, they kept pretty much indoors because of intermittent and localized showers.

Humidity was high. About 90 minutes before "official" summer, it hit 56 percent, with the mercury at 81 degrees. Early in the morning the humidity was 92 percent.

For today, the Weather Bureau predicts mostly fair skies, with a high of about 82.

Relief is surely due sometime in October.

Judge Won't Delay Order Voiding Gas Rate Raise

Consumer Refund Likely After Ruling Setting Aside Boost Is Finally Signed

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

District Court Judge T. Alan Goldsborough yesterday refused to delay execution of his order canceling the $750,000 gas rate increase.

Stays of execution, he said, could be granted when the court had some doubt about its decision. "As far as this court is concerned, it has no doubt whatsoever as to the correctness of its ruling," the judge said.

Judge Goldsborough vacated the November rate increase last week. At that time he ruled the Public Utilities Commission had acted "arbitrarily, cynically, and illegally" in granting the Washington Gas Light Co. a 6-14 percent rate increase.

Both the PUC and the company said they would appeal that ruling, and filed a motion to stay execution of the ruling pending their appeal.

Yesterday's decision will have no immediate effect on consumer gas bills.

If Judge Goldsborough's refusal to stay the execution is allowed to stand, the price of gas will revert to the November rate, and Washington consumers will be refunded between $350,000 and $400,000, collected in increased rates since that time.

But Judge Goldsborough has not yet signed the order which will vacate the PUC-granted increase in accordance with his oral opinion of last week. He said yesterday he will not sign that order "before Tuesday."

The gas company has at least two alternatives open, before it starts refunding money to consumers, C. Oscar Berry, company attorney, said yesterday.

The company may appeal Judge Goldsborough's decision of yesterday against staying execution of his decision.

Or the company may file a "supersedeas" bond, which he said, would automatically stay execution of Judge Goldsborough's order.

Guest House Asks Zoning Law Relief

An international guest house here yesterday argued before the Zoning Board that it should be permitted to continue its violation of zoning laws.

The American Friends Service Committee told the board it had operated the seven-bedroom house at 2410 Wyoming ave. n.w., as a free guest house for foreign visitors since 1925. Until 1946, Chisman Hanes, attorney for the committee, said, the house was owned by the late Mrs. Bancroft Davis, and for zoning purposes was considered a single family home. As such, its use as a free guest home was permitted in the residential neighborhood.

Ignorant of Violation

Mrs. Davis conveyed the house to the committee at her death, Hanes said. But committee officials did not realize the changed status had made them zoning violators until a neighborhood protest set off a BZA investigation this spring, he stated.

About 15 neighbors appeared at the hearing to protest its continued use as a guest house because of noise, guests arriving at late hours and the resulting harm to property values.

Mrs. Grace S. Lowry, director of Davis House, suggested that if some of the neighbors had more guests "it might be a more normal neighborhood."

In another case the board was asked to grant variances to make legal rear porches erected last year on 10 homes lacking required sideyard space. Five of the houses are in the first block of Tuckerman st., nw. The others are around the corner in the 6400 block of N. Capitol st.

Built Without Permits

District Building Inspector Jesse J. Kimball told the board the 8-by-12-foot concrete slab porches with roofs had been erected without building permits. He said the contractor who built the porches had been given a suspended fine in Municipal Court for doing the work without a permit. If the BZA turned down the requests, he said, the home owners must either tear down their $500 porches or face court action.

The property owners said they did not realize that the construction violated regulations.

These and 34 other cases were taken under advisement after an all-day hearing at the District Building. It was the board's longest monthly docket in its 12-year history.

Housing Project

Zoning Board Action Upheld In Fairfax

The Fairfax County supervisors yesterday upheld the board of zoning appeals in its rezoning of an eight-acre tract near Falls Church for a million-dollar multiple housing project for Negroes.

The county heads voted 4-1 to reject appeals from two citizens associations for a reversal of the zoning board's action. One member declined to vote, saying he was unfamiliar with the project. The vote was taken after a public hearing on the question was moved from the board of supervisors' room to the trial justice courtroom to accommodate the more than 100 spectators.

Strenuous opposition to the project was voiced by representatives of the City Park-Jefferson Village and Hillwood Citizens Associations. They said they object to multiple housing in the area and not to the race of the prospective tenants. Site of the proposed 148-unit project—off Lee blvd. between Hillwood ave. and Annandale rd.—is in an area occupied mostly by single-family homes, they contended.

F. H. Hankes, former president of the Hillwood group, said last night a petition would be filed in Fairfax Circuit Court to enjoin the county from permitting the project.

The injunction will be asked "on the basis of property damage," said Hankes, who charged that "no more than 10 or 12" prospective tenants have been found for the development.

In voting against the project, Supervisor Maurice Fox joined in this view, saying his vote was based on his opposition to multiple housing and that "there is no racial element involved." Supervisor Arthur Schaffer declined to vote.

Approval of the project, to be developed by an Arlington builder, was voted by the board of zoning appeals last month.

Joseph Miller Heads Haverford Society

Joseph L. Miller, labor relations consultant, yesterday was elected president of the Haverford Society of Washington. Representative John R. Phillips (R., Calif.) retiring president, was named honorary president. Henry Balivet was named vice president and Charles M. Boteler, jr., secretary-treasurer.

Sesqui Drops Idea of Drama Pre-Premiere

The pre-premiere unveiling of a few select scenes from the Sesqui drama "Faith of Our Fathers" will not take place at the Armory July 11 after all.

Instead, all but a quick look at a few costumes and two or three of the lead characters will be saved for the invitation-only premiere at the new Rock Creek Park amphitheater on August 4, officials said yesterday.

Two days ago Paul Massmann, Sesqui general manager, disclosed he would serve up at the Armory a few scenes or dress rehearsal of the Paul Green Symphonic drama to satisfy several thousand Indiana folks who will be here for their State honor day on July 12.

May Get a Look at George

But yesterday, in anouncing the premiere date, he said he had decided such a piecemeal unveiling would "take the edge off" the production.

However, the Hoosiers will probably get a speech on the birth of the drama by its Pulitzer-prize winning author, Green, and a look at George Washington and his wife, Martha, in costume. (The drama—in two acts, lasting an estimated two hours—depicts the life and times of the first President.) This and other unannounced events will make up the Indiana night program at the Armory, Massmann explained.

The Rock Creek Park premiere will be a top-drawer affair. Invitations will be sent to all Congressmen, high government officials, Broadway and local drama critics and prominent business, civic and society leaders.

Annual Revival Possible

The production will open to the general public the following night, August 5. It is expected to run about seven weeks and, if it follows the pattern of Green's Williamsburg drama, "The Common Glory" and the "Lost Colony," Manteo, N. C., may be revived annually.

The amphitheater, near 16th st and Colorado ave. nw., will have a capacity of 4,056 persons. Tickets will range from 90 cents to $2.40.

The drama will run nightly except Mondays, starting at 8:30 p. m. The outdoor theater features a special rain shelter.

Dr. Deitz to Head Prince Georges Hospital

Dr. Aaron Deitz of Hyattsville has been elected president of the Prince Georges General Hospital Medical Staff.

Other officers named by the staff are Dr. Harry F. Davies, Marlboro, vice president; Dr. Thomas A. Christensen, College Park, secretary; Dr. Leslie H. French, College Heights, chief of medicine; Dr. Robert Coffey, 3259 P st. nw., chief of surgery; Dr. J. Francis Warren, Chevy Chase, chief of obstetrics and gynecology, and Dr. James G. Sasscer, Marlboro, and Dr. William C. Manion, Bladensburg, members at large to the executive committee.

Play Program Gets Started In Arlington

Arlington County's summer recreation program got under way at 9 a. m. yesterday at 32 playgrounds.

Frank J. Allston, jr., supervisor of sports and playgrounds for the County Department of Recreation, said yesterday that 66 persons have been appointed to conduct the programs and carry out play activities.

The centers will be open from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a. m. to 12 noon on Saturday until the season ends August 25. The summer program will be divided into four sections.

Planned for the centers are programs including games, tournaments, craft instruction, museum and historical trips, swimming, picnics, dancing and musical programs.

Three new centers are being added to the county system this summer, Allston said. They are at Parkhurst, at 3502 Washington blvd., and Virginia Highlands.

The Negro section will have playgrounds at Jennie Dean, Hoffman-Boston, Langston and Kemper.

North Division playgrounds are Lyon Village, Charles Stewart, Robert E. Lee, Swanson, Woodlawn, Woodmont, Cherrydale, Cherrydale Field, John Marshall and Parkhurst.

Central Division playgrounds are Woodrow Wilson, Henry Clay, James Monroe, Matthew Maury, Ballston, Stonewall Jackson, Lubber Run, Glen Carlyn and 3502 Washington blvd.

South Division playgrounds are Nellie Custis, Shirley, North and South Fairlington, Four Mile Run, Patrick Henry, Barcroft, Pickett Homes and Virginia Highlands.

Federation Seeks Funds to Fight Gas Rate Increase

The executive board of the Federation of Citizens' Associations last night appealed to the public for funds to carry on a court fight against a gas rate increase.

The funds will be used to fight an appeal by the Washington Gas Light Co. from a District Court decision setting aside last November's 6.14 percent increase.

The original suit against the increase was filed by Vernon V. Baker, chairman of the federation's public utilities committee.

President Herbert P. Leeman was appointed head of the fund-raising committee. Mrs. Mabel Morris said funds should be mailed to her as treasurer of the committee at 1915 Ridge pl. se.

Gregory Estates Unit Elects Silvers Head

Residents of the Gregory Estates, a new 500-unit housing project in Seat Pleasant, Md., last night formed the Gregory Estates Civic Association.

Meeting in the project's club room, the group elected R. Hal Silvers as its first president.

3 Killed, 1 Injured In Traffic Accidents

Three men died yesterday and a 6-year-old boy was critically injured as the result of traffic accidents in the Washington area.

Two men were instantly killed in separate accidents on Route 1 south of Washington. The third died in a Washington hospital of injuries he suffered in an accident June 11.

Killed in Virginia accidents were Marine Corps Pvt. James Roy Pope, jr., 23, of Charlotte, N. C., stationed at Quantico, Va., and Leverett Powel Graves, 56, Stafford County farmer and businessman.

Pope died at about 1:15 a. m. when a car in which he was a passenger ran off the road about a mile north of Triangle and crashed into a light pole after overturning. Police said the driver of the car was Pvt. Joe G. Redmond, also stationed at Quantico, who suffered head cuts.

Hillside Man Dies

Graves was a passenger in a car that crashed into the rear of a truck about a mile north of Fredericksburg, Va. Police said the driver of the car, Randolph Barrack, 45, Fredericksburg insurance man, was badly hurt.

John T. Smallwood, 36, of 6201 N st., Hillside, Md., mechanic, died early yesterday in Casualty Hospital of injuries he sustained June 11 when his motorcycle skidded and crashed into a fence near Ritchie, Md. He suffered a broken back and fractured skull in the accident.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lois R. Smallwood, a daughter, Janet, aged 1, and two sons by a former marriage, John, 14 and Donald, 10. Funeral services will be held at Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Friday at 1 p. m. with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Hal Everett Heirn, 6, suffered compound fractures of both legs when he was hit by a truck at 3:30 p. m. yesterday while returning from a store with mustard for hot dogs.

Hurt Crossing Street

Police said that young Hal, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Eloise Hudins at 7018 Greig st., Mount Rainier, had gone to visit his grandfather, Louis O. Savage at 45th st. se. for lunch.

The accident happened in front of 5 5th st. across the street. Police said the driver of the truck was William Brown, 33, of 4th and High sts., Denton, Md. The truck owner is listed as John Norris Coulby, also of Denton.

Young Heirn is in critical condition at Casualty Hospital.

In Arlington yesterday, police arrested Edward A. Coppage, 44, of 1913 N. Jefferson st., Arlington, on a reckless driving charge after his car crashed into a tree in the 4000 block of Glebe rd. Police said officers from the Seventh Washington Precinct asked them to make the arrest after they said they followed Coppage over Chain Bridge. Coppage put up $50 collateral for his appearance in Arlington County Court today.

Scissors Rout Him

Woman Says Youth, 14, Attacked Her

A 14-year-old Arlington boy has been charged by Fairfax County police with assaulting an attractive Falls Church housewife.

The lad, accused of assault and attempted carnal knowledge, will be tried in the county's juvenile court before Judge Harry Carrico June 30. He has been released in $1500 bond pending the hearing.

Detective Sergt. Joseph Howard said the youth was apprehended by the husband of his intended victim several blocks from her home late Tuesday a few minutes after she used a pair of scissors to resist his advances. He suffered a slight laceration of the left chest during the struggle, Howard said.

The boy twice approached the woman in the yard of her home and tried to sell her a newspaper subscription, the detective said. Police said she was dressed in a blouse and shorts.

A few minutes later, the complainant told Howard, the buy returned, when she was in the house and forced his way in. She said he grabbed her by the arm and threw her against a fireplace, but fled after she stabbed him with the scissors, which she had in her hand when she answered the door.

Her husband, a builder, was working at a house nearby. Attracted by her screams, he summoned two unidentified laborers who helped him catch the youth after a brief chase.

101 Children Here as Guests Of Rep. Mack

One hundred and one youngsters, aged 12 to 15, went to bed exhausted at the Hains Point tourist court last night, but feeling mighty grateful to Representative Peter F. Mack, jr. (D., Ill.).

The visitors, all from the Congressman's 21st district, are here on a two-day junket at the expense of Representative Mack.

They were selected by a nonpartisan committee of public-school superintendents as the "most deserving children" in the seven counties which comprise Mack's district.

Yesterday's schedule included a handshake with President Truman at the southwest gate to the White House, a boat ride to Mount Vernon, the monument tour and movies at the Capitol.

Today they will go to Congress, lunch in the Senate family dining room where they will be joined by Vice President Barkley and Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) and pay a call on FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Ceremony Marks Closing of 4-H Encampment

The Washington Post

ENLIGHTMENT—A symbolic "Candle-Light" ceremony last night at the Jefferson Memorial marked the closing of the National 4-H encampment here. Youth leaders light their candles (flashlights) from the International candle. The group (from left) Yoshio Fujimiki, Japan; E. J. Sheehy, Ireland; M. L. 4-H Camp Sends Message Of Cheer to German Youth

A slim Yankee farmer just out of his teens last night provided a fitting close to the twentieth national 4-H club encampment.

In the twilight blur around the Jefferson Monument, Bill Thayer of New Ipswich, N. H., sent out a message of hope and encouragement to German youth which symbolized one of the major concerns of the encampment.

"We want to encourage youth all over the world and you especially to start youth programs so we may share our experiences with one another," read Thayer.

At the end of the message were 200 signatures from young farmers all over the country and from several foreign guests at the encampment. The letter will be sent to a youth forum in the state of Hesse.

Candle Lit for Fifth "H"

During the closing candlelight ceremony at the monument, a Cuban boy and a Hawaiian girl lit a fifth candle for a fifth "h", symbolizing international friendship.

The ceremony pointed up a discussion earlier yesterday in a windup a windup assembly at the Departmental Auditorium. There delegates reported suggestions culled from the week's panel discussions.

The young farmers wanted a reverse Voice of America to bring them information from foreign lands. They wanted more international news in American newspapers; they suggested discussions of foreign affairs in local 4-H meetings.

American Letters Help

They wanted the International Farm Youth Exchange program to keep on growing.

It was at one of these panel discussions that Bill Thayer heard from a German guest that American letters stimulated and inspired German youth.

In fact, the talks with foreigners will provide the most vivid memories back in New Ipswich where Thayer owns 16 Guernsey cows and manages a hosiery mill with his father.

"The sights and monuments in Washington are fascinating but we expected that," he said. What was surprising was the friendliness, the eagerness to learn and join hands he found in the 80 visitors who attended the encampment.

The activities of the twentieth National 4-H Club encampment indicate that America's young farmers would like to reciprocate.

Tyler Tells Of Beatings

away from them, to get in custody of someone else."

He said he refused to continue with a lie-detector test after Capt. Wilfred Curley accused him of lying.

Tyler testified he was hounded by police 'continuous questioning, back and forth, back and forth. You get tired of that. All I could say was no, no, no.."

Hartnett and Det. Sergt. Lloyd B. Furr, the officers who questioned him, denied that they ever mistreated Tylar.

Later, the jury was read Tyler's confession, in which he says that he went to the store to rob and then killed Oliver R. Hess, 57, and John C. Carpenter, 67, the watchmen, with a boning knife on April 7.

Lansburgh operating manager, John L. McIntosh, said that on May 6, Tyler retraced his footsteps and showed how the guards were murdered.

According to McIntosh, Tyler at one point reached for a knife in the tear-room during the re-enactment, but that Hartnett grabbed his hands.

Despite the fact that the killer attempted to rob a cash room, lifted a suitcase, dropped a package of cigarettes and stabbed each guard on a different floor, police never found a fingerprint they could trace to him.

This testimony was given by Police Pvt. John B. Singleton, who said the wood of the knife handle was such that it would not readily reveal the prints.

Navy Captain Hakansson Funeral Today

Funeral services for Navy Capt. Erik G. Hakansson, 63, who commanded the Bethesda Naval Medical Center from 1943 to 1948, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Arlington Cemetery.

Capt. Hakansson

He died Monday at the Naval Hospital, Chelsea, Mass., after a short illness.

A veteran of 33 years of Navy service, Capt. Hakansson moved to Richmond after his retirement in 1948 for physical disability.

During his five-year command of the Bethesda Naval Hospital, he also served as chief of the research division of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

Captain Hakansson, born in Smaland, Sweden, took his premedical training in that country, his medical degree from the University of Illinois.

Appointed an Assistant Surgeon in the Naval Reserve in 1917, he transferred soon after to the Regular Navy and became a captain in 1942.

His numerous awards include one from the Swedish government, the Royal Order of Vasa, first class, for his work in connection with the 1939 International Congress of Military Medicine and Pharmacy held here.

Capt. Hakansson was a member of the American Medical Association, the American Society of Tropical Medicine, the Academy of Tropical Medicine, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Hakansson of Richmond, and a daughter, Mrs. Rhonda Elizabeth Pearson of Minneapolis, Minn.

The Weatherman Smiles on Clifford Debut

By Marie McNair

MR. and Mrs. Clark Clifford had the weatherman on their side yesterday. "Scattered thundershowers" failed to materialize and the sun was shining brightly for their daughter Margery's debut tea at the Clifford's new house on the Rockville Pike.

The party yesterday, "for ladies only," included friends of Mrs. Clifford and some of the young friends of her daughter. Later Mr. Clifford joined Mrs. Clifford to welcome some 200 guests for a buffet supper at small tables set out on the sweeping green lawn.

There was much to be done to the Cliffords' 120-year-old white clapboard house before it was ready for a party. But everything yesterday was complete to the last detail and the house was as fresh-looking as the blonde mother-daughter combination standing in the drawing room to greet the guests.

"Jery" Clifford, who's very tall with a clear glowing skin, looked as every debutante should, wearing a full-skirted embroidered white organdy gown over pale pink taffeta and a wide chartreuse taffeta sash. Her old-fashioned bouquet of pink roses in a paper frill was sent to her by Mrs. George Garrett, wife of our Ambassador to Ireland.

Mrs. Clifford's gown of heavy amethyst silk was made with a wide neckline and pleated skirt.

Two Grandmothers Come for Party

JERY CLIFFORD'S two grandmothers, Mrs. Willis Gove Carleton Kimball of Glenn Farm, Woburn, Mass., and Mrs. Frank A. Clifford of St. Louis, Mo., both came on for the occasion. Mrs. Kimball's gown was of mauve organza; Mrs. Clifford wore dark blue sheer crepe. Another visitor, Mrs. J. Howard Stannard of Duxbury, Mass., was in beige chiffon.

Sub-deb Joyce Clifford, Jery's younger sister, was there too, in a full heaven-blue organdy frock with a tracery of dark blue embroidery on the skirt.

Flowers sent to the debutante filled every corner. A fan-shaped basket of pink roses, blue delphinium and white larkspur lodged in the fireplace in the dining room, where ice cream, coffee and iced tea was being served by more than a dozen ladies in turn. White carnations and red roses were on the piano in the drawing room, where chartreuse and green was the color note. In the pine was paneled library and the sun-filled porch, nosegays of varicolored summer flowers were everywhere.

Mrs. Alben Barkley, wife of the Vice President, who had been asked to assist, brought along her charming young daughter, Jane. The Veep's wife was in navy blue with a single pink rose on her hat, while Jane wore a summer print with a white cloche.

Notables Alternate At Tea Table

MME. BONNET in Dior's puff-sleeved black frock was also among those at the tea table. Others were Mrs. Arthur Gardner, Mrs. Stuart Symington, Mrs. James J. Wadsworth, Mrs. Roswell B. Snow, Mrs. Martin Hayden, Mrs. George Holmes, Mrs. James L. Wright, Mrs. Duke Shoop, Mrs. Henry Schweinhaut, and Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin.

Everybody seemed to have their plans lined up for the summer, including the debutante. She'll be off for Rye Beach, N. H., on July 15 to ride and play tennis until September 15 when she will be back for language study at George Washington, and her piano and voice instruction.

Mrs. Fred Vinson told me she and the Chief Justice will visit Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies at their Adirondacks camp in July. Mme. Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister, whose dusty rose matched the glycerined ostrich on her hat, said she and her daughter Margaret will leave by boat for Iceland about July 7 for six weeks or two months away, and will be joined later by the Minister who will fly home.

Mrs. John W. Snyder, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, was there and I saw Cabinet ladies, Mrs. Charles Brannan, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, and Mrs. Oscar Chapman who had with her Miss Elizabeth Blanc of Denver, here for a short stay before going to Virginia Beach for the season.

Harris & Ewing

MISS MARGERY CLIFFORD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark M. Clifford, who was presented to society yesterday at a tea given by Mrs. Clifford at the Cliffords' new home on the Rockville pike. Miss Clifford will leave July 15 for Rye Beach, N. H., to spend the summer

Accordion Echoed The Conversation

CONVERSATION hummed to the accompaniment of Erwin Devron's accordion and his strolling musicians, who played in the garden. Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, Mrs. Paul Porter and her daughter, Betsy, were in one group; while Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Charles Ross and Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark made the circuit. I saw Mrs. Samuel Alexander; Mrs. Nathan Wyeth; Mrs. George Holmes' daughter, Kathryn, Mrs. David H. Stowe, whose husband is Administration Assistant to the President, and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim.

Mrs. J. William Fulbright was there, and was also among those coming back for the 8:30 supper party, with Senator Fulbright, this time. The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnett and their niece, Mlle. Sophie Meyer, were supper guests also, and others were the British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks (Lady Franks has sailed for England), the Attorney General and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Charles Sawyer and Senator and Mrs. Brien McMahon.

Other guests for the evening fete were Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, Gen. and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg, Mrs. George Holmes and Kathryn; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, and Betsy; Mrs. Lauris Norstad (the General is in Alaska), the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan, Joseph Davies, and Charles Murphy, who succeeded Mr. Clifford as President Truman's Special Counsel, with Mrs. Murphy.

Then there were Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross and William Hassett of President Truman's secretarial staff; Admiral Robert Dennison, White House Military Aide, and Mrs. Dennison, and Mr. and Mrs. James K. Vardaman 3d.

Arts, Letters Group Honored at Reception

DR. PAUL DOUGLASS, president of American University, entertained at a reception last evening at his residence on Massachusetts ave. for members of the National Security Society of Arts and Letters.

Among the guests were Richard Patterson, American Ambassador to Guatemala; Mrs. James E. Douglass, new president of the National Society of Arts and Letters, and Mr. Douglass; Mrs. Robert E. Kline, jr., auditor for the organization, and Mr. Kline; Mrs. Emil Hurja, the society's registrar, and Mr. Hurja, and Mrs. William Henry Hessick, past president of the NSAL.

Distinguished Austrian Visitor Entertained

DR. Wilhelm Taucher, former Austrian Minister of Commerce, now chief of the Central Bureau of ERP affairs, arrived by plane yesterday from Vienna. Today he will be honored at a luncheon to be given by the Minister, Dr. Ludwig Kleinwaechter, at the Austrian Legation.

In the company will be Assistant Secretary of State George W. Perkins, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Thomas C. Blaisdell, jr., Homer Byington, Tyler C. Wood, Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Edward T. Dickinson, James Cooley, Fred Strauss, James McCullough, Charles W. Jeffers, Daniel K. Hopkinson, Saul Nelson, Mrs. Eleanor Dulles, Roger Ernst, W. Giblin, deputy chief ECA in Vienna, who accompanied Dr. Taucher to Washington; Austrian Counselor Wilfried Platzer, Wilhelm Goertz, Economic Counselor of the Austrian Legation, and Franc Milos of the Legation.

Mr. and Mrs. Goertz will give a cocktail party on June 27 for Dr. Taucher, who will remain in Washington until July 2.

Juan Felipe Yriart, First Secretary of the Uruguay Embassy, has with him for a visit his parents, Senor and Senora Felipe Yriart, who arrived recently from Uruguay. The senior Yriarts will visit Washington until August 9 when they will sail on the Ile de France for Europe.

Mrs. Robinson Honored at Luncheon

MRS. William S. Robinson was the honor guest of JANGOS at the monthly luncheon Tuesday in the Huyler Room of the Dupont Plaza Hotel. Mrs. Robinson is one of the original JANGOS who worked under Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, Mrs. Ralph A. Bard, Mrs. William R. Smedberg, jr., Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. George C. Marshall, Mrs. Harold R. Stark and Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, who founded JANGOS in January, 1943. During the past seven years Mrs. Robinson has served as assistant treasurer, budget finance chairman, and produced the annual report each year.

Gathered in her honor were her close friends and associates from JANGOS, Mrs. John William Jefferies, Mrs. Fred Miller, Mrs. B. W. Bain, Mrs. M. E. Browder, Mrs. William J. Butler, Mrs. Ralph L. Walker, Mrs. A. J. Cooper, Mrs. W. C. Beecher, and past president Mrs. John Hamilton Neill, jr. Vice president Mrs. Sherman Frick presided. Mrs. William J. MacKenzie, the new entertainment chairman, made all arrangements.

Miss Jennifer Williams, whose marriage to John Pickett will take place July 8 in St. Alban's Church, will be guest of honor at a shower on Thursday to be given by Miss Suzanne Barnett and Miss Patricia Cole at Miss Barnett's house. There will be about 20 guests, most of them classmates of the bride-to-be and of the hostesses at the University of Maryland.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Henry Wed to Navy Lieutenant

MISS Mary Elizabeth Henry and Lieut. George Junkin, jr., USN, were married yesterday in Westmoreland Congregational Church, the Rev. Phillip Scott officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stanton Henry of Washington, and her husband is the son of George Junkin of Bayside, Long Island, and the late Mrs. Philip Goldsborough of Easton, Md.

Mr. Henry gave his daughter in marriage. The bride was dressed in white organdy over candlelight satin. She wore a cap of heirloom rosepoint lace, and her flowers were white roses, larkspur and babies' breath with an orchid center.

The bridal attendants were Miss Marie Freeman Pollock of Philadelphia, maid of honor; Miss Mackenzie Goldsborough of Easton; Miss Lynn Clark of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Miss Jane Oyster of Easton; Mrs. Robert Thompson of Florida; Miss Catherine Boisseau and Mrs. William Gemmill of Washington. Miss Virginia Brown was flower girl.

Dr. Lawrence Claggett of Easton was best man. Ushering were Edwin Stanton Henry, jr., David Breslin, John Belt, Murray Bartlett, Thomas McLaughlin and William Gemmill.

After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the couple will reside in Chevy Chase. The bridegroom is now stationed at the Bureau of Aeronautics in Washington.

Mrs. Hurja Donates Home For Benefit

The lovely home of Mrs. Emil Edward Hurja, 2903 44th st. nw., will be the setting for the last social event on the season's calendar of the Salvation Army Women's Auxiliary. The auxiliary has planned a silver tea today from 4 to 7 p. m. and already many well-known Washingtonians have accepted invitations.

Mrs. Robert Lee O'Brien, jr., planning committee chairman, and her coworkers have arranged a program, including songs by Mme. Maria Dele Hull. Her accompanist will be Miss Adele Bush. Mrs. Gustav Villaret, member of the Friday Morning Club and one of Washington's best known young artists, will entertain the guests with pianoforte presentation of modern classics.

The silver tea is for the benefit of the Salvation Army's camping program and it is expected that the proceeds will make it possible for many underprivileged children to spend two weeks as guests of the Army at the organization's Patuxent, Md., and Triangle, Va., camps.

FRAGILE, graceful stole, made by displaced persons in India, is novel accessory with American dance frock of pale blue tulle and taffeta. The scarf, worn here over the head in the fashion of India, is of black net and hand-embroidered in the "mirror work" for which the Indian artisans are famous

Saris (the Real Thing) Invade World of Fashion

By Peggy Preston

AMERICANS are going to see more and more of the exquisite fabrics of India, if plans work out for a small group of Indian women in Washington.

With a view to stimulating interest in the textiles and handicraft of their native land, they are sponsoring a series of displays and fashion shows featuring saris, stoles and scarfs. To prove their interest in the project, they have learned how to model and are walking on the runways like professionals.

One such showing took place recently at the final fashion show-luncheon of the season at the Shoreham Hotel, presented by Jelleff's.

The group of Indian models, all members of the local colony, moved slowly and gracefully along the runway attired in their floating, beautifully tinted saris. There were cotton saris for morning, and truly magnificent ones for evening, including one of deep pink Benares cloth, embroidered with tiny gold and silver flowers. Each of the saris is made of a single piece of cloth measuring from 5½ to 6 yards.

Professional models, wearing American-made fashions, added scarfs and stoles made of the gauze-like silk, threaded in gold or silver. These scarfs are the handiwork of displaced persons in India and represent ancient handicraft in various of the provinces.

Real hit of the show was a sari-dress, made of rose colored silk, stiffened with silver threads. A strapless, typically 1950 American dance frock, it is a happy meeting of the best in East and West fashions.

A similar display was held not long ago at the United Nations Club, and additional shows are planned at clubs and hotels this summer. By fall, the commitee expects to have a sufficient supply of the saris and scarfs on hand to offer them for sale in Washington and other cities.

The committee sponsoring the project is headed by Mrs. B. K. Nehru, wife of the Financial Counselor of the Indian Embassy. Members include several women prominent in the local colony, including Mrs. D. S. Sawkar, wife of the Indian Alternate Executive Director of the International Bank.

Another country, far removed from India, will claim Washington's fashion spotlight on Monday. This time it will be tiny Belgium, noted for its beautiful, handwoven woolens. Invitations are out to a formal showing of a fall collection of imports to be held, from 5 to 7 p. m., at the residence of the Commercial Counselor of the Belgium Embassy and Mme. Heyne.

Jobé Says...

Do You Own a Year-Rounder Suit?

The "year-rounder suit" is one of the great contributions that our American fashion producers have made to the American woman's wardrobe. If you do not recognize it by that name let us explain that "year-rounders" are those wonderfully useful little two-piece suits made of a good spun rayon fabric that looks like a fine worsted.

These are tailored in regular suit factories, are unlined but have taped seams, and are sold all over the country at both medium and popular prices. The fabrics come in plain colors, or in smart menswear patterns.

We can't think of a more useful "extra" suit. You can also wear it as a tailored two-piece dress.

Married at St. Alban's

Admiral's Son Weds Nancy Misson

THE MARRIAGE of Miss Nancy Louise Misson, daughter of Rear Admiral Clinton Alonzo Misson, USN (ret.), and Mrs. Misson, to George Randolph Cooper, jr., son of Rear Admiral G. R. Cooper, USN, on duty in Paris and Mrs. Cooper, took place at 4 p. m. yesterday in St. Alban's Church. A reception at the Carlton Hotel followed the ceremony at which the Rev. James Lawrence Basil Williams officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ivory satin gown with lace bands at the shoulders and the waistline and a helmet-shaped lace cap held the long illusion veil. Her flowers were a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley, stephanotis and white orchids.

MRS. GEORGE R. COOPER, Jr.
. . . Navy wedding

Miss Anne Josephine Misson, sister of th bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Reuben F. Woodall of Glen Burnie, Md., matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Arthur H. Page 3d, Miss Virginia Summerlin, Miss Jane Lingo and Miss Elaine Trimble, all of Washington. Donald W. Davis, jr., of New Britain, Conn., was best man.

Ushers were Lieut. Comdr. Reuben F. Woodall, USN, and John Brumbaugh, of Washington; Eugene Biddle of Cambridge, Mass.; Lane McGovern of Winchester, Mass., and Bruce Morell of Cochituate, Mass.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will live in Cambridge, Mass. while the bridegroom completes his studies at Harvard Law School.

The bride is a graduate of Sidwell Friends School, Washington; attended Vassar College and was graduated from George Washington University. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi and the Junior League of Washington.

Mr. Cooper is an alumnus of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a member of the Lincoln's Inn Society at the law school. During the war he served as a Naval officer aboard the U. S. S. Guam in the Pacific.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM F. BROWN 2d
. . . married in St. Matthews Cathedral

Wed to William Brown

Ann Distler Bride at St. Matthews

MISS ANN DISTLER, daughter of Mrs. Walter Distler and the late Mr. Distler, became the bride yesterday of William F. Brown, 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Brown of Montclair, N. J., the ceremony taking place at noon in St. Matthew's Cathedral. The Rev. Edward S. Hauber, S. J. officiated and a reception followed at the Chevy Chase Club.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Walter G. Distler, jr. She wore a gown with a Brussels and rose point lace bodice and a net skirt sweeping into a cathedral train. Her Brussels lace veil had been worn by her mother at her wedding, and her flowers were gardenias and lilies of the volley.

Miss Elizabeth Bradley of Baltimore, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing champagne organdy with a leghorn hat and carrying daisies and field flowers.

Truman M. Talley of New York served as best man. Ushers were Kenneth B. Baldwin of Short Hills, N. J.; James M. Crosby of Chevy Chase, Md.; Robert E. Bradley, cousin of the bride, of Baltimore and Arthur J. May of Selinsgrove, Pa.

After a wedding trip to California, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will live in New Jersey.

The bride is a graduate of Potomac School, Washington; Westover in Middlebury, Conn. and Vassar College. She is a member of the Junior League of Washington and was presented to society here and at the Bachelors Cotillion in Baltimore.

Mr. Brown was graduated this month from Princeton where he was editor of the "Princeton Tiger." He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the Charter Club of Princeton.

New Weapons No Cure-All, General Warns

Maj. Gen. S. L. Howard, USMC, warned members of the Navy Mothers Club not to be "lulled into apathy" at reports of new weapons.

"Most of these new weapons are still in the experimental stage and some still only on the drawing board," General Howard said in a speech to the Navy Mother's banquet last night in the Mayflower Hotel.

"Our defense still rests," he continued, "in the hands of brave young men, and if war comes in the near future, more and not less men will be needed."

The peace can be maintained, General Howard said, by (1) keeping our armed services at such strength that our shores are protected and the weight of our foreign policy respected; (2) maintaining research programs that will give us the best tools of defense that modern science can devise; and (3) maintaining adequate reserve programs so that our first line of defense will always be reinforced by trained and ready patriots.

General Howard paid tribute to the Navy Mothers for their part in the early training of the Bluejackets and Marines. "In peace and war, your sons are stationed wherever the American flag flies, on the high seas and ashore," he said. "In peace and war, you, the mothers, have remained always faithful."

Yesterday morning the Navy Mothers made a pilgrimage to Arlington Cemetery. Mrs. Elsie M. Peterson, national commander, placed the Navy Mothers Clubs of America Memorial Plaque in the Trophy Room of the Memorial Amphitheater.

AAUW Presents Award, Hears Scholarship Report

The American Association of University Women made news on two scenes yesterday.

At a banquet last night at the Statler Hotel, highlighting the AAUW State Presidents' Conference, the society presented its $2500 Achievement Award to Dr. Elizabeth C. Crosby, professor of anatomy at the University of Michigan Medical School.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Dorothy W. Weeks, chairman of the AAUW Committee on International Grants, presented an optimistic report on the achievements of European women who have in past years studied in this country with grants from the association.

Dr. Crosby will use her award, she said, to buy "rather expensive" electrical apparatus for her research in neuro-anatomy.

In making the award Dr. Margaret Elliott Tracy, chairman of the AAUW Committee on Fellowship Awards, cited Dr. Crosby's recent studies of the midbrain and cerebral cortex in advanced mammals, including man.

Among her achievements, Dr. Crosby organized the first course in histology and neuro-anatomy at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland; she did research at the University of Puerto Rico, University of London and the Institute for Brain Research at Amsterdam, Holland.

Dr. Weeks, Chambersburg, Pa., returned Monday from 64 days in Europe where she was studying on a Guggenheim fellowship. But in between her research hours she was able to visit at least 50 former recipients of the AAUW's annual awards for study in American Universities and Colleges.

On return from their studies in this country the European women have played important roles in the scientific, educational and civic lifes of their countries, Dr. Crosby said.

Political Might Of Women Parley Theme

by The Associated Press

The actual and potential political power of women was a recurrent theme at today's sessions of the University of Maryland's rural women's short course.

It was stressed by Mrs. Raymond Sayre of Ackworth, Ia., president of the Association of Country Women of the World and of the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

She credited the overthrow of the socialist government in Australia and the defeat of the communists in Italy to women voters.

Dr. Louise M. Young of Washington, D. C., author of "Understanding Politics," called on the 1100 Maryland farm women attending the course to make the most of their political privileges, especially on the local level.

Dr. Young said that in five Maryland counties women still are not permitted to sit on juries although a State law makes jury service compulsory elsewhere in Maryland.

"Why don't you do something about it?" she demanded of the farm women. "You can have that changed in six months if you really wanted it changed."

The "students" at the course sponsored by Agriculture College and Extension Service also heard an address by Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College.

At the close of the General assembly sessions, Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of the College of Agriculture and director of the Extension Service, presented a plaque to Mrs. Sayre in the name of Epsilon Sigma Phi, national honorary extension fraternity, in recognition of her services.

The five-day course will come to an end Friday.

Mary Haworth's Mail

In College Days, Girl Was Friend of Another Whose Beauty, Brains and Talent She Admired; Now, 15 Years Later, She Is a Neurotic Bore

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Fifteen years ago, when I was in college, I began a friendship with a girl whose good mind, beauty and talents I admired. We both have married since that time, and I have a family, but Sally claims she wants no children. And she has changed from a sweet talented girl into a neurotic selfish woman whose company is a trial, as she dwells on her imaginary woes and ails.

She has a fine husband and many material things, enough to satisfy most people, but her self interest kills all chance of realizing the real values in life, aside from keeping up with society and the latest fashions. She turns to me for advice, provided it is advice she wants to hear, and she visits me frequently although I no longer invite her.

I have tried to tell her in a nice way that life gives back whatever we put into it. But all my suggestions to her to achieve maturity, and to learn to give rather than take, are shrugged off with endless rationalizations. It seems I only hurt her feelings and never really help her; and I've come to believe that a psychiatrist is the only person who can show her the way to a full and satisfying life; but she would be terribly offended if I suggested that.

Writer Claims Happy Marriage

MY MARRIAGE is happy, and whatever problems arise, my good husband and I can solve between us—except for this one, which is my own, as John dislikes Sally and wishes I would stop seeing her. It is most difficult to go against his wishes, for his estimate of her is accurate, and in his shoes I'd feel as he does. But weary as I am of being her wailing wall, I can't bring myself to abruptly discard her, when we were once such close friends.

Through the years I've kept many friends, both girls and fellows; and this is the first time I've faced a need to extinguish an old friendship. Can you shed any light on what to do? R. B.

Critic Hasn't Matured Either

DEAR R. B.: It seems to me that Sally isn't your problem, really. Rather you are frustrated by your conditioned subservience to her personality.

It is my impression that you considered her friendship a great honor in the beginning. Possibly she was a year or two ahead of you in school, maybe with a campus rating and social background that greatly impressed you then, so that involuntarily you looked up to her and swallowed her terms of companionship. And maybe the net result was that she used you as a deferential audience for endless discussions of herself—a set-up that continues to this day.

In growing older, producing children, forging a good interpersonal relationship with your husband, and generally weaving your thoughts and energies into a fabric of living in which you are a dominant figure, it would be natural if Sally's patronage lost much of its pristine significance for you. It is to be expected that you wouldn't any longer have the time or ingenuous sympathy or listening interest to give her, that her self absorption requires.

Honest Attitude Might Ease Rub

AS I SEE the picture, this is the drift; but it catches you unawares. You are still captive to habit where Sally's tacit demands are concerned. You automatically give out the responses you know she wants to get, buttering her up, as the saying goes, even when your mind records the impression that she is a neurotic selfish woman, a parasitic waster of others' strength nowadays.

Because of this conflict engendered by Sally's company, you feel tired and cross after visits from her, and to let off steam you probably complain of her faults to John, who reacts by disliking her—or so he thinks—for her ill effect on you, which in turn chafes him. And so he says, "Stop seeing her," whereupon you nobly profess that you can't be so drastic.

What to do? When Sally dwells on her supposed difficulties and asks your comment, give her the truth as you see it. Why deal deceptively in honeyed lies and sugarcoated half truths? If you offer her an honest slant, and she isn't looking for that, she won't call around uninvited so often; and still she can't say that you threw her out.—M. H.

Asparagus, Plain Jane From Farm, Becomes Darling of the Epicures When Graced With Piquant Sauces

DEAR ANNE:
Will you please print instructions for serving asparagus? I have a cookbook that tells how to prepare it for cooking but not what to do after it is cooked. Isn't there a sauce of something to put over it? M. B., Washington.

There's many a way to serve asparagus and I'm surprised the writer of your cookbook wasn't thoughtful enough to include a few.

The new 1950 edition of the "Woman's Home Companion Cookbook" (Collier) has about 15 ways listed, I note. Simplest of all is serving it with plain butter, salt and pepper, either by itself or on toast. In addition here are five sauces you might like.

Polonaise: Brown ½ cup dry bread crumbs in 1/3 cup butter. Add 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste and a dash of paprika. Serve over hot asparagus.

Quick Mushroom: To 1 can condensed mushroom soup, add 2/3 cup milk and 2 teaspoons grated onion. Heat and serve over asparagus. (Makes 2 cups sauce).

White Sauce: 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups milk. Melt butter over low heat. Gradually stir in flour, salt and pepper. Remove from heat and gradually add milk. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly until thick. This makes an attractive dish served over asparagus on toast with a garnish of sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Mock Hollandaise: To above recipe, add 3 tablespoons lemon juice, and 6 tablespoons butter, stirring in very slowly just before serving. Add dash cayenne. Heat thoroughly and gradually stir a little hot sauce into three slightly beaten egg yolks. Stir into remaining sauce and cook over very low flame, 2 to 3 minutes, stirring constantly.

Cheese Sauce: Add 2 cups grated cheese to thickened white sauce, made by recipe above. Add ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Stir until cheese melts.

DEAR ANNE:
Can you give me some tips on buying towels—bath towels, I mean? Prices seem to vary widely. While I know enough to shy away from the obviously sleazy ones, I'm not well enough posted on the desirable and long-wearing qualities that make one towel better than another, even when they look about the same.
W. W. M., Warrenton, Va.

You have to look behind the loop to judge a Turkish towel! The American Institute of Laundering, which has done a lot of research on what towels wash and wear best, say it is the "ground weave" of the towel which holds the loops that is important. This takes the strain of pulling and acts as a sponge, too, in absorbing water from the surface loops.

So check on this under weave when you're buying bath towels. See that it's close, tightly woven, and firm to the touch. About the best place to check is in the plain portion of the towel where there is an area without loops. Here, usually near the hem or border, the fabric weave can easily be seen.

Holding the towel up to the light will give some indication of the strength or weakness of this underweave. You can see if it's loose and uneven.

There should be tiny and regular pinpoints of light shining through.

DEAR ANNE:
Sometime ago, I read in one of the better magazines an article about a compact or "packaged" bathroom, consisting of a small square tub over which could be fitted a shower, a lavatory and a toilet, same to be installed where bathroom space is limited, such as under a stairway in a country home, or in a large closet. Would you please tell me where I might buy this small bathroom unit equipment?
Mrs. Frank W. Bullock,
Brooke Place Manor, Island Creek, Md.

Your description of this packaged bathroom, in which the lavatory and toilet fit OVER the bathtub, has puzzled the manufacturers' agents we've consulted. They say "no can do." However, one of the leading plumbing firms in the United States does make undersize fixtures for use in limited space. Their "midget" bathtub measures 42 by 31 inches, and the lavatory, 18 by 15. The smallest available toilet bowl stands 27 inches from the wall. Perhaps you could fit these three fixtures into the space at your disposal. Call Metropolitan 3122 for further information.

DEAR ANNE:
Would you please tell me how I can remove adhesive tape from a pair of nylon stockings of a dark shade? This pair, which happens to be my best, is completely covered over the toe. I am hesitant to experiment for fear of rotting the nylon. I have already tried nail polish remover but that has no effect.
Emily K. Bowman
Yn 3, USN, Arlington, Va.

Sponge or soak the stocking in carbon tetrachloride, which won't damage nylon, and is most effective in dissolving adhesive tape residue. To avoid starting a run, however, rub as gently as possible.

Truman 'Propagandists' Use 'Whitewash' On Reds in Government, Wherry Charges

President Truman is blocking a move to sweep radicals out of Government jobs, Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) told a cheering gathering of Arlington County Republicans last night.

The President "has turned loose his 23,000 propagandists . . . to cover up and whitewash" charges that the Government is riddled with Communists and fellow travelers, the Senator said.

Senator Wherry lambasted the Truman Administration policy from foreign aid to the Brannan Plan in an address before the Republican Club of Arlington.

More than 120 enthusiastic GOP rooters gave him a standing ovation when he finished.

Our Government, he told them, "must be cleansed of its alien-minded plotters and moral perverts."

A second speaker last night, Representative Glenn R. Davis (R., Wis.), said that within the past "two score years," State and local government have been "increasingly dominated by the Federal Government." Such central controls "endanger the freedom of the American people," he declared.

Both speakers were introduced by Republican Club President Joel T. Broyhill. Lee Potter, county GOP chairman, spoke briefly.

Wilderman Dominates In 'Faust'

By Paul Hume

Gounod's "Faust" needs great voices and the smoothest staging in order to come to life on an opera stage today.

It was well intended last night at the Watergate, but there were not enough of the desired qualities to give it the true flavor of greatness.

William Wilderman dominated the scene in his impersonation of Mephistopheles. His voice is admirable for the rich color and bite of the role, and he has contrived a dramatic routine that is effective.

Minor problems in the top of his voice may be due to the frequency with which he appears in a single week. He moves about the stage with a purpose that gives point to his acting and singing; his long duties as the world's best known operatic devil do not seem to tire him.

He was as rewarding in the part as he has been on recent San Carlo evenings in "Butterfly," "Boheme," and "Aida."

Mina Cravi added her third role for the current short season, in a repetition of last summer's success as Marguerite. Her voice becomes rich with the more impassioned Gounod lines, and tender in the earlier sequences. The simplicity of her conduct in the garden scene gave way to a brilliantly contrived madness at the death of her brother. We shall miss her singing until she comes back to us again.

Jon Crain has the voice and looks for the title role in "Faust." But his French diction and his wide-open production rob it of the noble sound it should have. He already shows signs of vocal strain. These will increase unless he takes steps to change his method.

Richard Torigi, though less easy in voice than he has been recently, was an effective Valentine. The ballet and staging seemed rather unimaginative. The chorus tried hard, but can produce little beautiful tone.

Rescigno saved the opera from monotony by the vitality of his direction.

Tonight: "Il Trovatore," with Ribla, Kreste, Granda, Marco, and Rescigno.

2 Convicted, 1 Acquitted In Robbery

Two men were convicted yesterday of the pistol-whip robbery last March of Martin Silver of 818 Xenia st. se.

Found guilty by a District Court jury of the robbery were defendants Bryant O. Pearce, 34, and Augustine F. Lawrence, 26. The trial was before Judge James R. Kirkland.

Acquitted of the charge was Anthony T. DiPietro, 34, of 3507 Varnum st., Brentwood, Md. The jury was out 45 minutes.

According to the Government, Silver was robbed of $38 in cash and $352 in checks as he left the drug store he manages at 4141 Wheeler rd. se. The assailants beat him with a pistol in the robbery, it was charged.

Servel, Inc., Others Face Price Charges

The Justice Department said yesterday a Federal grand jury at Pittsburgh has indicted Servel, Inc., of Evansville, and other firms on charges of price-fixing in the gas refrigeration field.

A department announcement said the indictment names Servel and 12 other persons, firms and corporations. They are accused of fixing prices in the sale of gas refrigerators to consumers in western Pennsylvania, western New York, eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia.

Woman Grante $20,000 in Suit Over Fall

A District Court jury yesterday awarded $20,000 damages to Miss Vivian Parker, 42, for injuries she suffered when she fell while leaving a Capital Transit bus in February, 1948.

The accident ocurred on Eastern ave. nw., near Georgia ave. Miss Parker was going from her work at the Webb Engraving Co. to her home at 831 Gist ave., Silver Spring, Md. The bus stopped when it could not maneuver an icy hill and, according to Miss Parker, the passengers were ordered to leave.

She said she fell on the slippery street as she stepped from the bus and fractured her left hip. The injury has resulted in a partial absorption of the bone, according to her attorneys, Joseph D. Bulman and Sidney Goldstein.

The verdict was returned before Judge Richmond B. Keech and was against the Capital Transit Co. The plaintiff said the bus driver was duty-bound to find a safe place before discharging passengers.

Children Who Play With Fire Box Shouldn't

The identity of "Lucky J.," intrepid and police-defying false-alarm puller, was established by a stool pigeon yesterday.

As it turns out, "Lucky J." is the 10-year-old daughter of a wealthy Georgetown family.

Last Sunday morning, an alarm was turned in at 44th and Hawthorne sts. nw. Responding firemen discovered not a fire but a note, reading:

"To the firemen. Ha Ha Ha. So you think there is a fire but there isn't any. You will hear from me again."

Below the signature, "Lucky J." added: "I hate you and the cops so go to hell.

Yesterday, a male voice called police and inquired about the stationery on which the note was written. If it was from so-and-so school, better seek out thus-and-thus.

Police did. And "Lucky J.," in the presence of her governess, admitted she pulled the alarm—"just to see the engines go."

Police brought no charges. Instead they decided to write "Lucky J.'s" vacationing parents a little note.

FSA Building On Residential Site Opposed

Silver Spring area civic leaders yesterday favored locating the proposed Federal Security Administration building in Montgomery County, but emphasized it should not be placed in a residential zone.

Ralph D. Boyd, past president of the Allied Civic Group, and Robert Sherwin recommended placement on an East-West hwgy. site offered by Sam Eig, or on Federal acreage along Columbia pike near White Oak.

Several opposed location of the building on another tract owned by Eig on Forest Glen rd. near Georgia ave. on the ground that FSA's 5000 workers would jam the already overcrowded Georgia ave. roadway.

All present at the meeting on the structure concurred in the statement of Blair Lee 3d, vice chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, that all projected Federal building locations in Montgomery County should be discussed with the planning commission by the Federal agencies involved before definite action is taken. This would avoid conflict with established zoning patterns, he said.

The leaders who attended the meeting also felt that such locations should be discussed with Representative J. Glenn Beall, (R., Md.), who represents that district in Congress. Beall favored location of the building in Montgomery County, but agreed that it should not interfere with zoning patterns.

Petranek Has Many Strings To His Bow

Chester Petranek, Silver Spring musician who combines the long-hair and crew-cut musical outlook, has many strings to his bow.

He proved his versatility recently at tryouts in Philadelphia for the music festival at Tanglewood, Mass.

Petranek, who directs the Montgomery Symphony Orchestra, feels most at home with a violin. But he auditioned with a viola because with this instrument, he explained:

"I will have more leisure and opportunity to observe the conductor, Serge Koussevitsky."

Then, one summer soon, Petranek, 34, hopes to be one of the younger conductors chosen to assist the great baton master at Tanglewood.

But heavy music is not the sole interest of Petranek, whose full-time job is that of music director of Montgomery schools. He also occasionally enjoys playing musical obbligato for those who would trip the light fantastic.

He helped organize the Sentimentalists, dance band at Bethesda High. Now and again he plays with the band. And back at Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, he had his own dance band. In his spare time he played golf in the low 80s and established himself as college handball champion.

Petranek, who plays nearly every instrument in a symphony orchestra—you name it, French horn, flute, tuba, trumpet, piccolo, saxophone—feels this way about lighter music:

"No musical education is complete until the musician rounds it out with popular dance music. And popular music definitely has its place in the education of children."

Boy, 3, Drives Car; Town Loses Electricity

Le Mars, Iowa, June 21 (AP).—A 3-year-old boy "drove" his parents' car last night and the town of Le Mars was without electric light or power for three hours.

The car was demolished but the driver, Robert Johns, was uninjured.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johns of Summitville, Ind., was placed in the car by his mother. The family was going downtown. She went back into the house. Robert started the automobile. In reverse, it moved down the inclined driveway, jumped a curb, knocked down a power pole, then rolled over and landed upside down.

Ex-Publicist Buys Weekly In Bethesda

Purchase of control of the Bethesda Journal was announced yesterday by Robert Jerome Smith, of Bethesda, Md. Smith also has been negotiating to purchase the Montgomery County Record and the Bethesda Tribune.

The purchase price of the weekly was not revealed by Smith, formerly a public relations consultant with offices in Washington.

In a front page announcement, prepared for today's issue, Smith stated that "some changes in policy are contemplated" and that these "changes constitute the first step toward consolidation of newspaper management so as better to present the news of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area and of Montgomery County as it relates to the interests of this community."

The front page announcement also states that the Journal will "not grind axes" and "will serve no political party."

Informed sources revealed that Smith has been negotiating for two thirds of the stock of the Montgomery County Record, another Bethesda weekly. The stock is owned by Mrs. J. Reed Bradley of Bethesda.

Stalemate was reported in Smith's negotiations for a third weekly, the Bethesda Tribune, owned by William Prescott Allen, of Bethesda.

Evacuate Ivory Tower, Chemists Told

Chemists should step out of their ivory towers and make themselves better world citizens, Alpha Chi Sigma members were advised here yesterday.

The same spirit that binds chemists into a fraernity of friendship is equally applicableto friendship on an international scale, declared Alden H. Emery, executive secretary of the American Chemical Society.

He spoke in welcoming some 100 delegates to the opening session of the 20th biennial conclave of the professional chemical fraternity. The convention, at the Washington Hotel, will continue through Sunday morning.

"Members of our profession," declared Emery, "we must come out of those ivory towers which too many of us occupy, and become active citizens of our communities, citizens of the Unted States, citizens of the world.

"While it is proper and highly desirable for a fraternity 'to bind its members with a tie of true and lasting friendship,' this should only be a pattern to the development of a way of life."

He reproved chemists who spend all their spare time during conventions visiting chemical plants, and urged them to spend more in cultural and recreational pursuits.

The recreational aspect was emphasized later at a party last night for the visiting delegates. Host to the "Smoker and Beer Party" was the American Instrument Co., 8030 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Maryland.

Court Upholds Bequest Here To 5 Russians

Judge F. Dickinson Letts yesterday refused to void a provision of a will by which five Russians may receive a total of $40,000.

The District Court jurist made the ruling against the claims of four Washingtonians who seek to share in the estate of the late Jennie B. Fine, who died here in 1946. Under her will, the $40,000 estate was to go to certain relatives, who predeceased her. Another provision said that in the event of their death, the money should go to five second cousins, believed to be Russians.

It was charged that the Russians could not be found, and might not be allowed by the Soviets to keep the money anyway. So three nephews and a niece of Miss Fine asked for the money. They are Julius B., Joseph and Harry Naiman, and Mrs. Jeanette Danziger, all of Washington.

Burned Bear Due to Reach Zoo Today

Smokey, the 3-month-old black bear weaned on trouble, has been getting more of the same.

Smokey suffered third degree burns in a recent New Mexico forest fire. Nursed back to health by a veterinarian on pablum and honey mixed with milk, he's been given new cause to be inflamed by difficulties in reaching the Washington Zoo.

This time it was the Civil Aeronautics Board that put on the heat. Regulations, they said, prevents a live animal from being transported by plane except in the luggage compartment, and then he must be crated.

This would be a most inappropriate mode of travel for America's most beloved little black bear.

So irately protested Elliott S. Barker, New Mexico game warden, who nurtured Smokey back to health. He insisted Smokey must travel on the lap of a human friend.

So for several days it looked as if Smokey wouldn't get to Washington for public presentation to the zoo at 11 a. m. Friday.

But at the eleventh hour, the Piper Cub people heard about all this. They pressed into service one of their flivver planes, and Smokey is due to arrive from Santa Fe today at 4 p. m.

Then he'll be introduced to Gene, a hybrid cub, for better or worse.

Judge Refuses To Throw Out Poll Tax Test

Alexandria Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan refused yesterday to throw out an Arlington woman's suit challenging the validity of Virginia's poll tax law.

He overruled a motion by Virginia Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., seeking to have the case dismissed on the ground that the Federal Court, a United States District Court, has no jurisdiction in the matter.

The suit was filed January 6 by Mrs. Jessie Butler of Halls Hill, Arlington, against Mrs. Mary A. Thompson, Arlington registrar. She contends she was refused the privilege of registering because she had not paid her poll tax. She seeks an injunction to compel the registrar to register her.

Almond entered the case on behalf of the Virginia board of elections.

In overruling the motion, Bryan said the case presented by the complainant "does not present a question of such political character as would exclude it from cognizance by the judicial arm of the Government."

He called for further arguments from counsel as to whether the case should be tried by a single judge or by a three-judge court. No date has been set for hearing the case.

Extensions Sought On Va. Beer Curfew

Richmond, Va., June 21 (AP).—A new attempt took shape today to win exceptions to the Statewide curfew of 11 p. m. on beer sales.

The Norfolk City Council adopted unanimously and dispatched to the State ABC Board a resolution asking that the closing time on beer sales in Norfolk be extended one hour to midnight.

Almost simultaneously, the Virginia Beach Town Council asked for a 1 a. m. deadline at the seaside resort.

Broadway Heartbeat

Celebs About Town: His Honor, the Mayor, "no commenting" the query: "Aren't you going to run for governor?" The inside is he will "if drafted" . . . Mr. Justice Wm. O. Douglas inviting a columnist to "as close as we can get to Russia for one of your broadcasts" . . . Don Taylor, a click in "Father of the Bride" (and other hits), job-hunting here, so scare are Movietown roles . . . The Desi Arnazes (Lucille Ball), who are keeping their Infanticipation such a secret . . . Patricia Neway, the star of "The Consul," charging along the Stem on one of those long walks that keep her new . . . H. Pollet, the Nat'l League's top curve-hurler, studying Joan Diener's at the Blue Angel . . . George Shearing, the blind British piano star (now at Bop City), explaining why he is becoming a United States citizen: "I toured much of America and love what it sounds like."

Sallies in Our Alley: Disk-jockey Martin Block, just returned from Hollywood, was asked: "What's new out there?" . . . "Not a thing," was the reply. "The same old two-faces" . . . Sound-in-the-night: "How's your wife?" . . . "Please, not while I'm eating."

Midtown Vignette: Coca-Cola's chief Woodruff winces whenever he is in the vicinity of Broadway and 47th st. . . . The sight of the huge electrics advertising Pepsi-Cola (on the front of the building which divorces 7th ave. from the Big Apple) gives him the "hmfs" . . . "How come a smart guy like Woodruff let his competitor beat him to Broadway's top location?" we inquired . . . "It's a very sad story," was the reply. "Pepsi-Cola owns the building!"

Memos of a Midnighter: The Franklin P. Adamses, wed nearly 30 years, are the victims of anonymous pot-shotters. Never were happier. They are summering in New England . . . Doris Duke has taken up poem-scrivening. The theme is always Death . . . H. Houghton, top man at the Encyc Britannica, and Ethel MacLean (veep of Muzak) were blended the other day . . . Ann Blyth's most serious romance is Richard Long . . . Songwriter Mack Gordon's ex-wife has been awarded $20,000 in cash, $1000 a month for 10 years and $500 monthly thereafter. Plus custody of their image . . . Flair's October issue will be an all-showbiz feature . . . Liberty mag's final issue featured: "On the Edge of Doom" . . . The Newsweekers have petitioned the Newspaper Guild to take a strike vote.

Yale Was Never Like This: (By Jim Goode): To the tables down at Lindy's. To the place where Winchell dwells . . . To the dear old cheese-cake stall we loved so well . . . Sing the Forty Thieves assembled—with their pencils raised on high—and the babble of this rabble casts a spell . . . Yes, we wonder at the plunder of the jokes we know too well . . . The farmer and his daughter and the rest . . . Milt swipes lines from Sid and Sid got his from Jack . . . And Jack lifts his from Milt to get them back . . . They are poor little parrots who love the cliche . . . Trite . . . Trite . . . Trite . . . Little lost jokers who never see day . . . Night after night after night . . . Hacks and Gagmen—who love an old wheeze . . . Born to lift and never say please . . . Joe Miller have mercy on Such As These . . . Yak . . . Yak . . . Yak.

86 'Air Boots' Start Course At Anacostia

Eighty-six "air boots," armed with new diplomas from Washington area high schools, came aboard the Anacostia Naval Air Station yesterday for a summer session with the Navy.

For the next eight weeks, the boots—"seaman recruits" it says on the forms—will focus their attention on naval aviation.

Learning about Navy planes, they'll get Navy uniforms, chow, quarters, liberty and pay. The last item will amount to about $150 for each man.

When it's all over, they'll have the choice of either dropping out or joining the volunteer inactive reserve, the regular Navy or the organized reserve.

But, said Lieut. Comdr. Patrick J. Finneran, who'll be their skipper for the next two months, "we'd like them to stick in the organized reserve with the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit here."

If they do, he pointed out, the eight-week course will cut four months from the normal time required for the first promotion.

The Anacostia program is part of a Nation-wide setup to indoctrinate 2100 reserve recruits this summer.

Lieut. Comdr. W. E. Pomfrey, public information officer, said 14 more "boots" are being processed and will soon join those starting yesterday.

New Multiple Birth For Mrs. Dionne Hinted

Callander, Ont., June 21 (U.P.). Reports persisted in this small community today that recent X-rays show signs of a new multiple birth to Mrs. Oliva Dionne, mother of the famed quintuplets.

Her physician refused to confirm or deny the reports. Three children have been born to Mrs. Dionne since the quints were born on May 28, 1934. She is now 42 years old. In all Mrs. Dionne has had 13 children.

Judge Ousts Gold Key Club 'Forever'

The Gold Key after-hours club was "ousted forever from the District of Columbia" yesterday by District Court Judge T. Alan Goldsborough.

The bottle club was enjoined Monday by Judge Goldsborough from "transacting its business," but the judge spelled out his ruling yesterday during arguments on wording of the injunction.

A receiver was appointed to dispose of the assets of the club, located at 606 E. st., nw. Club president Albert B. Glickfield was ordered to post $1500 bond, pending disposition of the assets and a possible appeal.

Charles E. Ford, Gold Key attorney, told the court "it is possible that a new corporation might operate in the same place".

Ford, who has represented many of the clubs, said yesterday the law does not prevent any of the clubs from reincorporating and opening for business under a new charter.

The Gold Key is the ninth after-hours spot that United States Attorney George Morris Fay has shut down on grounds of charter violations. The Gold Key was chartered for the "social, patriotic and educational uplift" of its members. The Government charged that the charter was abused and misused and constitutes a "fraud to violate D. C. liquor laws."

One after-hours club remains to be tried. Another has agreed to apply for a regular liquor license. And one after-hours club, the Stagecrafters, has been acquitted. Its president, Edward "Patsy" Meserrole, said yesterday he plans to open the Stagecrafters again.

Truman to Make Talk at Baltimore Airport Dedication

President Truman will deliver an eight-minute dedication address at the new International Airport near Baltimore on Saturday, the White House announced yesterday.

The President plans to fly to the airport, weather permitting, leaving the Capital at 10:30 a. m. The entire dedication program is expected to take about 45 minutes.

The new airport is capable of handling the biggest transports now on the drafting boards.

Mr. Truman also will make an off-the-cuff speech to a group of Democratic Governors at a luncheon meeting today in the Mayflower Hotel here.

Given Appointments

President Truman yesterday nominated Horace W. Harper of Texas to be a member of the Railroad Retirement Board for the term expiring August 29, 1954.

He also sent to the Senate the nomination of Isador Lubin of New York, now United States Representative on the United Nations Economic and Social Council, to serve as representative on the Council itself.

Stone Finds Plenty Of Rugged Combat

—By John Crosby—

THE late O. O. McIntyre spread abroad the idea that anything can happen in the big city at any moment. Every time you turned a corner you were likely to stumble over a corpse, the body still warm. I very much doubt that McIntyre ever stumbled over any himself, but he maintained this fiction with such persistence that it was planted firmly in a great many heads, especially small-town heads.

I know it was planted deeply in my Aunt Sarah's skull. Everytime I get to my home town, Aunt Sarah bids me firmly to sit down and tell all. And by all, she means how many bodies, who were they and did I catch the killers single-handed or did I require assistance from the police.

I couldn't possibly tell Aunt Sarah that I hadn't solved a single killing in 15 years in New York. She would consider this a shameful blot on the family escutcheon. I've been forced to fabricate my own tales of heroism in which I shine forth modestly as sort of a plainclothes Hopalong Cassidy.

Columnist's Adventures

LATELY, though, I've been storing up material from a regular little treasure trove of a program called "Night Beat," which you'll find on NBC (WRC), 10 p. m. Mondays. "Night Beat," according to its own definition, is "the adventures of a columnist in search of material." The columnist is Randy Stone, played by Frank Lovejoy, if that sort of information interests you, columnist for the Chicago Star. He prowls around Chicago from dusk to dawn, seeking hand-to-hand combat, like the knights of old. Bless me, if he doesn't find it, too.

Once he was on his way to get a shave and encountered a homicidal maniac trying to kill his psychiatrist, an idea that has probably occurred to a lot of people. Stone intervened and was presently knocked cold as a haddock. Stone, I found, always loses these hand-to-hand combats. That's the new fashion in heroes. The old-style hero was an expert at meting it out; the newfangled ones have to be able to absorb enormous amounts of punishment.

In this particular episode, besides that opening knockout which was just a preliminary to the big bout, he was pushed out a second-story window, landing on his head on a sidewalk, and also found himself at the wrong end of a gun—the other end being in the possession of that homicidal maniac.

"Dawn Is Just Around the . . ."

DESPITE these misadventures, we find him back at the office in front of his typewriter. "Well," he remarks, "dawn is just around the corner and the lights are going out one by one." And he settles down to write his column, welts and all. Being a man who can be deterred from writing a column by so much as a bruised finger, I'm awed by Randy Stone's conscientiousness. But I keep wondering how he got a column out of that homicidal maniac who didn't seem to me to be worth much more than a paragraph. Frankly, I think Stone would get better material hanging around the Wrigley Bar, drinking with the rest of the mob. Or he could have done a piece about dawn turning the corner. I've never seen dawn turn a corner and I'd like to read about it.

But no, he has to go pushing his nose into other people's business. "You can't keep a finger on the city's pulse without getting some of its blood and sweat on your hand," is one of Stone's favorite remarks. Generally it's his own blood. Once he went down to Chinatown to stop a tong war all by himself. Not just a local tong war, either. This tong war took place in Chicago, Los Angeles and New York. In so doing, he got taken for a ride and beaten to a blister with a rubber hose. Got his column out, though.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Maybe Albert Is On An Ida Jean Kain Diet

There's an interesting controversy raging in Milwaukee between a thrifty taxpayer and some experts from the State Board of Tax Appeals.

Taxpayer Albert Rappold, a bachelor, contends that his annual living expenses come to no more than $300—which is about $5.77 a week.

But the tax experts say a man can't live on that. He needs a minimum of $800 a year, or $15.38 a week.

I do not think these experts can be accused of suggesting a level of riotous luxury calculated to turn us into a decadent people.

If Citizen Rappold eats with a fair degree of regularity, shaves occasionally, wears clothes, and treats himself to a periodic toothache, or visit to the doctor, he may find that even $15.38 is not an oppressively large sum.

It will certainly not plunge him into a mad whirl of chorus girls, champagne and Wall Street speculation—although with careful management he might work in an occasional stick of chewing gum.

Of course if Taxpayer Rappold were a married man, the experts would be more inclined to accept his figures. Many a married man has learned how to get along on less than $5.77 a week.

The little woman doles out a tired $5 bill on payday and says: "Make this last. All you have to buy is a streetcar pass and your lunches, so don't waste the rest."

A well-disciplined husband makes no protest, because he is accustomed to this procedure. He even manages to retain his equanimity when the good woman muses: "You really ought to work out a budget for yourself. You never seem to be able to save anything."

ADD DEFINITIONS

"A game in which a small ball is propelled from a grassy plot known as a tee to another grassy plot known as a green, with implements thoroughly unsuited to such endeavors."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Complete set of Aeronautics Magazines." (Union 2004).

"Two 7-week-old male kittens." (Georgia 4146.)

"Three fine grown cats." (Union 0076 after 7:30 p. m.)

"Mother cat, five 4-week-old kittens, and two 9-month-old male cats. All good mousers; will deliver." (Hudson 9456.)

"Three healthy, frisky kittens." (Lincoln 6-3734.)

"Mother cat, good mouser, and her three 6-week-old housebroken kittens." (Jackson 8-2756.)

MISCELLANY

The switch in broadcast schedules for Nats ball games is easy enough to remember. Starting on the 27th, WWDC will carry all games on its AM frequency only. WASH-FM will air all Senator contests on FM only. Television coverage remains with WTTG as before . . . Grace W. Reynolds of 5508 Glenwood rd., Bethesda, Md., is another who subscribes to the theory that people are nicer than anybody. She was out shopping for a graduation present for her daughter when she lost her wallet—with not a scrap of identification in it. But Attorney E. Austin Carlin of 7240 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, Md., found the money, advertised his discovery, and returned the greenbacks to Mrs. Reynolds . . . Ted Bullockus of 105 W. Masonic View ave., Alexandria, Va., wonders why magazines require four to six weeks notice to change a subscriber's address. My guess is that it's because circulation is often up in the millions, with the printing being done several weeks in advance of distribution . . . Mrs. J. H. Freeman of 3736 D st. se. tells me that the Fairfax Cooperative Nursery School has finally found a home—at Burns and C sts. se. Mothers in the Greenway area can get details at that address . . . I guess one of the reasons that Arthur Clarendon Smith is a successful businessman (and politician) is that he's learned how much folks appreciate a word of encouragement . . . Cab Driver Leonard D. Yates of 1206 Westlawn dr., Falls Church, Va., is a hacker with a heart. He won't accept payment from crippled passengers. And after 17 years of bucking Washington traffic he says: "Doggone if I don't think it's brought me good luck" . . . Twelve-year-old Chuck Miller of 5706 Broad Branch rd. nw. reports that when he applied for a picnic site reservation at the Recreation Department, he had to leave three cents to pay for the stamp so that the permit could be mailed to him. As a taxpayer, I rejoice. But as a permit seeker, I think I'd be annoyed . . . J. C. Runyon of 503 N. West st., Falls Church, Va., hails the observation of Non-smoker E. S. Kendall that there's no place in Washington where a restaurant meal can be enjoyed without having it "contaminated by the disgorgement of some human incinerator." He says if you want to know how repulsive second-hand smoke becomes to a non-smoker, just abstain for a month . . . Did he say a month? I'd never make it. Reminds me of the hardened criminal whom the late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis sentenced to 60 years in prison. "But I'm an old man, judge," pleaded the prisoner. "I could never do a 60-year stretch." Murmured Landis in reply: "Then do as much of it as you can."

Capitol Hill Club To Install Officers

The Capitol Hill Lions Club will install T. David Gates as president at its regular meeting in the Continental Hotel at 12:30 p. m. today.

Others to be installed are C. B. Moore, first vice president; Clyde Taylor, second vice president; George H. Clouden, third vice president; Ernest S. White, treasurer, and Carl H. Portofee, secretary.

Wood's Role in Probe Recalled

By Drew Pearson

The chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee is supposed to root out communism wherever he finds it, regardless of friends, foes or fees.

WOOD

However, it has already been shown that Congressman John S. Wood of Georgia, when chairman of the committee in 1945-46, did not investigate communism in Hollywood even though his committee was supplied with important information on Communist film writers, later convicted. It was the Republicans, not Wood, who brought about the convictions.

At that time—1945-46—an obscure Georgia lawyer, Edgar Dunlap, living in Representative Wood's district, was hired by Louis B. Mayer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and quite mysteriously the Hollywood probe was postponed.

Later, when the Republicans took over the Un-American Activities Committee, and Wood stepped down from the chairmanship, he still continued to be Mayer's ace-in-the-hole inside the committee.

On the night before the long-delayed Hollywood probe was about to begin under the Republicans, Film Czar Eric Johnston and Film Attorney Paul McNutt informed Bob Kenny and Bartley Crum, attorneys for the film writers, that the man on the committee they could depend on was Wood, that he was on the train en route to Washington, and that they would meet him next morning and rush him up to the hearings.

Next day, October 20, 1947, Wood arrived at the Hollywood committee room a little late, but apparently well coached. Louis B. Mayer, the film mogul who had had the foresight to hire Georgia Attorney Edgar Dunlap, was on the stand. Dunlap had done his job well. For Wood immediately began to ask Mayer the friendliest type of questions, carefully calculated to help ease the criticism for having filmed "Song of Russia."

Wood to the Rescue

Here is part of the cross-examination:

Mr. Wood: Since you have been in the production business, Mr. Mayer, approximately how many pictures have you made?

Mr. Mayer: About 1200, probably.

Mr. Wood: What criticism, if any, has there been from the public or the press or the Government leveled against any of them that you have made?

Mr. Mayer: Well, Mr. Congressman, we have always received great approbation, until this thing started, about this picture "Song of Russia".

Mr. Wood: Well, about the time that you made "Song of Russia"—by the way, at that time we were engaged in a war in which Russia was one of our allies, is that correct?

Mr. Mayer: Yes, sir.

Mr. Wood: Perhaps that is one of the reasons that the committee wanted to hear from you, with reference to the underlying reasons that prompted the production of that particular picture. Can you give up any more enlightment on that?

MGM's Philosophy

Mayer proceeded to tell at some length about his philosophy in making motion pictures. Then Wood, carefully coached in advance about the matters on which Mayer wanted to testify, suddenly remembered that Mayer had made a speech. The examination resumed:

Mr. Wood: Mr. Mayer, I believe back in May of this year you made a talk before the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association in San Francisco; is that right?

Mr. Mayer: Yes, sir.

Mr. Wood: About the 7th of May, was it?

Mr. Wood: I find in the Congressional——

Mr. Mayer: July 7.

Mr. Wood: I find under the date of July 15 of this year, an insertion in the Congressional Record by Honorable Gordon L. McDonald of the State of California of what purports to be a copy of that address. . . . I would like to quote from some portions of that speech as it appears in the Congressional Record and see if you still subscribe to some of the statements you made in that address:

"More precious than our lives we hold our liberty, a liberty that means free speech, free press, the right to assemble and remonstrate against real or imaginary wrongs and the right to worship in any shrine . . ."

Mr. Mayer: Mr. Congressman, that is what makes us great. That would make any country great that only knew how to appreciate it.

Mr. Wood: You still subscribe to that?

Mr. Mayer: Yes, sir.

Mr. Wood: You say, then, that that is a correct quotation of your speech in San Francisco on the 7th of May?

Mr. Mayer: Seventh of July, sir.

It is significant that Wood was the only member of the committee who cross-examined Mayer. No other committee member asked a question.

Spicy Raisin Hermits
2 cups seedless raisins
1 cup butter or margarine
1½ cups brown sugar (packed)
1 tablespoon dark molasses
3 eggs
3¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
3 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup chopped nuts
Rinse raisins in hot water, drain and dry thoroughly. Cream butter with sugar and molasses. Beat in eggs. Sift together dry ingredients and stir into creamed mixture. Add nuts and raisins, and blend thoroughly, without beating. Drop onto greased cooky sheets about 2 inches apart. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes.
Makes about 40 medium-sized cookies.
